Head-Smashed-In Buffalo Jump Gordon Reid, 2010      Head-Smashed-In Buffalo Jump Anna Rebus, 2008 Grade level 4 5 6 7 e i      Imagining Head-Smashed-In Jack Brink, 2008 At the place known as Head Smashed In in southwestern Alberta Aboriginal people practiced a form of group hunting for nearly 6 000 years before European contact The large communal bison traps of the Plains were the single greatest food getting method ever developed in human history Hunters working with their knowledge of the land and of buffalo behaviour drove their quarry over a cliff and into wooden corrals The rest of the group butchered the kill in the camp below Author Jack Brink who devoted 25 years of his career to The Jump has chronicled the cunning danger and triumph in the mass buffalo hunts and the culture they supported He also recounts the excavation of the site and the development of the Head Smashed In Buffalo Jump Interpretive Centre which has hosted 2 million visitors since it opened in 1987 Brink s masterful blend of scholarship and public appeal is rare in any discipline but especially in North American pre contact archaeology Brink attests I love the story that lies behind the jump the events and planning that went into making the whole event work I continue to learn more about the complex interaction between people bison and the environment and I continue to be impressed with how the ancient hunters pulled off these astonishing kills anthropology Brown U treats such provocative issues as whether the Eden in which Native Americans are viewed as living prior to European contact was a feature of native environmentalism or simply low population density indigenous use of fire and the Indian role in near extinctions of buffalo deer and beaver He concludes that early Indians culturally mediated closeness with nature was not always congruent with modern conservation ideas with implications for views of and by contemporary Indians Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR      Head Smashed in Buffalo Jump Interpretive
