Honor Clean:

The Minneapolis ,1915      The Marine Corps Gazette ,1980      The Bounds of Defense Bradley Jay Strawser,2023

Liberal conceptions of the moral justification for war have become dominant since the publication of Michael Walzer's Just Unjust Wars in 1977. This dominance is seen across all contemporary manifestations of just war theory from international relations and diplomatic discourse from the minds and proclamations of military commanders and governmental leaders to the everyday political assertions and philosophical rationalization of most individuals. Similarly, rights based accounts of the moral justification of individual defensive killing have been dominant since at least Judith J. Thomson's work on the issue in the early Seventies. Over the past two decades, however, these already rich fields of research just war theory and the ethics of defensive harm have each experienced significant and sustained resurgence.      Marines ,1984      Race Steven Gregory, Roger Sanjek, 1994. What unites these essays is a common focus on the social construction of racial categories and a desire to expose the exercise of racism and its intersection with other forms of social domination such as class, gender, and ethnicity. Fascinating Multicultural Review. The coming together of theoretical, multiethnic, and on-the-ground perspectives makes this book a particularly valuable contribution to the discourse on race. Paula Giddings. Timely and thoughtful, contributes to our understanding of how race operates as a social process and in the contextualization of power and status. Contemporary Sociology. A treasure chest full of gems. Virtually every article is fascinating and important, and as a collection, its impact is tremendous. Neo-conservative myths and fantasies fall like nine pins before its well-researched and tightly argued papers. Martin Bernal, author of Black Athena. A timely antidote to that reaction tome, The Bell Curve. Daily News, New York. Let's be clear from the start: what this book is about, writes Roger Sanjek, is the framework of ranked categories segmenting the human population that was developed by Western Europeans following their global expansion. To contemporary social scientists, this ranking is baseless, though it has had all too real effects. Drawing on anthropology, history, sociology, ethnic studies, and women's studies, this volume explores the role of race in a variety of cultural and historical contexts. The contributors show how racial ideologies intersect with gender, class, nation, and sexuality in the formation of complex social identities and hierarchies. The essays address such topics as race and Egyptian nationalism, the construction of whiteness in the United States, and the transformation of racial categories in post-colonial Haiti. They demonstrate how social elites and members of subordinated groups construct and rework racial meanings and identities within the context of global political, economic, and cultural change. Race provides a comprehensive and empirically grounded survey of contemporary theoretical approaches to studying the complex interplay of race, power, and identity.      Rural Manhood ,1914      Ithaca Patrick Dillon, 2016-07-05. In the tumultuous aftermath of the Trojan War, a young man battles to save his home and his inheritance. Setting out to find his father, he ends up discovering himself. Telemachus's father, Odysseus, went off to war before he was born and never came back. Aged sixteen, Telemachus finds himself abandoned, his father's house overrun with men.

pursuing his beautiful mother Penelope and devouring the family's wealth. He determines to leave Ithaca, his island home, and find the truth. What really happened to his father? Was Odysseus killed on his journey home from the war? Or might he one day return to take his revenge? Telemachus's journey takes him across the landscape of bronze age Greece in the aftermath of the great Trojan war. Veterans hide out in the hills. Chieftains scarred by war hoard their treasure in luxurious palaces. Ithaca retells Homer's famous poem The Odyssey from the point of view of Odysseus' resourceful and troubled son, describing Odysseus's extraordinary voyage from Troy to the gates of hell and Telemachus's own journey from boyhood to the desperate struggle that wins back his home and his father.

Moral Warriors, Moral Wounds Wollom A. Jensen, James M. Childs Jr., 2016-05-19 The experience of Wollom Jensen's distinguished career in military service and James Childs's long and productive career in the fields of theology and ethics combine to bring Christian ethics into dialogue with the harsh realities of military service in today's world of war. The authors seek to correlate the ethics of neighbor love with the vocation of the chaplaincy, the framework of just war theory, the published values of the military services and sample issues such as the challenge of pluralism for the chaplaincy, drone warfare, interrogation practices and truth telling. Special emphasis is placed on the reality of moral injury and the moral obligation of society and the churches to respond to the needs of these wounded warriors. The book espouses the view that the Christian ethic more than a set of principles is a true ministry to those who struggle to be faithful and fear that they have not been.

American Gunfight Stephen Hunter, John Bainbridge, 2005-11-02 A fast paced definitive and breathtakingly suspenseful account of an extraordinary historical event: the attempted assassination of President Harry Truman in 1950 by two Puerto Rican Nationalists and the bloody shoot out in the streets of Washington DC that saved the president's life. Written by Pulitzer Prize winner and New York Times bestselling novelist Stephen Hunter and John Bainbridge Jr. an experienced journalist and lawyer. American Gunfight is at once a groundbreaking work of meticulous historical research and the vivid and dramatically told story of an act of terrorism that almost succeeded. They have pieced together at last the story of the conspiracy that nearly doomed the president and how a few good men, ordinary guys who were willing to risk their lives in the line of duty, stopped it. It begins on November 1, 1950, an unseasonably hot afternoon in the sleepy capital. At 2:00 P.M. in his temporary residence at Blair House, the president of the United States takes a nap. At 2:20 P.M. two men approach Blair House from different directions. Oscar Collazo, a respected metal polisher and family man, and Griselio Torresola, an unemployed salesman, don't look dangerous, not in their new suits and hats, not in their calm purposeful demeanor, not in their slow unexcited approach. What the three White House policemen and one Secret Service agent cannot guess is that under each man's coat is a 9mm automatic pistol and in each head a dream of assassin's glory. At point blank range Collazo and then Torresola draw and fire and move toward the president of the United States. Hunter and Bainbridge tell the story of that November day with narrative power and careful attention to detail. They are the first to report on the inner workings of this conspiracy; they examine the forces that led the perpetrators to conceive the plot. The authors also tell the story of the men themselves, from their youth and the worlds in which they grew up to the women they loved and who loved them to the moment the gunfire erupted. Their telling commemorates heroism, the quiet commitment to duty that in some moments of crisis sees some people through an ordeal even at the expense of their lives.
