From Political Economy to Economics Dimitris Milonakis,Ben Fine,2009-01-13 Economics has become a monolithic science variously described as formalistic and autistic with neoclassical orthodoxy reigning supreme So argue Dimitris Milonakis and Ben Fine in this new major work of critical recollection The authors show how economics was once rich diverse multidimensional and pluralistic and unravel the processes that lead to orthodoxy s current predicament The book details how political economy became economics through the desocialisation and the dehistoricisation of the dismal science accompanied by the separation of economics from the other social sciences especially economic history and sociology It is argued that recent attempts from within economics to address the social and the historical have failed to acknowledge long standing debates amongst economists historians and other social scientists This has resulted in an impoverished historical and social content within mainstream economics The book ranges over the shifting role of the historical and the social in economic theory the shifting boundaries between the economic and the non economic all within a methodological context Schools of thought and individuals that have been neglected or marginalised are treated in full including classical political economy and Marx the German and British historical schools American institutionalism Weber and Schumpeter and their programme of Social konomik and the Austrian school At the same time developments within the mainstream tradition from marginalism through Marshall and Keynes to general equilibrium theory are also scrutinised and the clashes between the various camps from the famous Methodenstreit to the fierce debates of the 1930s and beyond brought to the fore The prime rationale underpinning this account drawn from the past is to put the case for political economy back on the agenda This is done by treating economics as a social science once again rather than as a positive science as has been the inclination since the time of Jevons and Walras It involves transcending the boundaries of the social sciences but in a particular way that is in exactly the opposite direction now being taken by economics imperialism Drawing on the rich traditions of the past the reintroduction and full incorporation of the social and the historical into the main corpus of political economy will be possible in the future      Revisiting Colonialism and Colonial Labour Sivachandralingam Sundara Raja,Shivalinggam

Raymond,2023-07-31 This book argues that the prevailing view of colonialism that it was a negative and destructive phenomenon needs to be rethought It focuses on the experiences of the South Indian working class large numbers of which came to Malaya in the early years of the twentieth century emigrating from socially economically and environmentally inhospitable south India It examines the opportunities which colonialism presented for these people highlighting also the British approach to colonialism in Malaya an approach which emphasised conservatism and tradition and which protected the interests of the Malay aristocrat classes and by extension the Malay masses in order to compensate for European economic dominance and the influx of a non Malay labour force Overall the book demonstrates that the South Indians a class whose identity social existence and prospects were inextricably linked to imperial processes benefitted from colonialism and should be viewed as an active transnational entity within a constructive system rather than as passive victims of repressive destructive forces      Encyclopedic Dictionary of Diasporic Indian English Writing Manju Jaidka,      A Catalogue of the Mercantile Library Company of Philadelphia Mercantile Library of Philadelphia,1850      For Good Measure Advancing Research on Well-being Metrics Beyond GDP OECD,2018-11-27 The 2009 Commission on the Measurement of Economic Performance and Social Progress Stiglitz Sen Fitoussi Commission concluded that we should move away from over reliance on GDP when assessing a country s health towards a broader dashboard of indicators
