Iron Rails, Iron Men, and the Race to Link the Nation: The Story of the Transcontinental Railroad Martin W. Sandler, 2015-09-08 Experience the race of rails to link the country and meet the men behind this incredible feat in a riveting story about the building of the transcontinental railroad brought to life with archival photos In the 1850s gold fever swept the West but people had to walk sail or ride horses for months on end to seek their fortune The question of faster safer transportation was posed by national leaders But with 1 800 miles of seemingly impenetrable mountains searing deserts and endless plains between the Missouri River and San Francisco could a transcontinental railroad be built It seemed impossible Eventually two railroad companies the Central Pacific which laid the tracks eastward and the Union Pacific which moved west began the job In one great race between iron men with iron wills tens of thousands of workers blasted the longest tunnels that had ever been constructed built the highest bridges that had ever been created and finally linked the nation by two bands of steel changing America forever The Journal of the Iron and Steel Institute, 1877

Function and Fantasy: Iron Architecture in the Long Nineteenth Century Paul Dobraszczyk, Peter Sealy, 2016-07-01 The introduction of iron and later steel construction and decoration transformed architecture in the nineteenth century While the structural employment of iron has been a frequent subject of study this book re-directs scholarly scrutiny on its place in the aesthetics of architecture in the long nineteenth century Together its eleven unique and original chapters chart for the first time the global reach of iron's architectural reception from the first debates on how iron could be incorporated into architecture's traditional aesthetics to the modernist cleaving of its structural and ornamental roles The book is divided into three sections Formations considers the rising tension between the desire to translate traditional architectural motifs into iron and the nascent feeling that iron buildings were themselves creating an entirely new field of aesthetic expression Exchanges charts the commercial and cultural interactions that took place between British iron foundries and clients in far flung locations such as Argentina Jamaica Nigeria and Australia Expressing colonial control as well as local agency iron buildings struck a balance between pre fabricated functionalism and a desire to convey beauty value and often exoticism through ornament Transformations looks at the place of the aesthetics of iron architecture in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries a period in which iron ornament sought to harmonize wide social ambitions while offering the tantalizing possibility that iron architecture as a whole could transform the fundamental meanings of ornament Taken together these chapters call for a re evaluation of modernism s supposedly rationalist interest in nineteenth century iron structures one that has potentially radical implications for the recent ornamental turn in contemporary architecture

"Iron, Ornament and Architecture in Victorian Britain " Paul Dobraszczyk, 2017-07-05 Vilified by leading architectural modernists and Victorian critics alike mass produced architectural ornament in iron has received little sustained study since the 1960s yet it proliferated in Britain in the half century after the building of the Crystal Palace in 1851 a time when some architects engineers manufacturers and theorists believed that the fusion of iron and ornament would reconcile art and technology and create a new modern architectural language Comprehensively illustrated and richly researched Iron Ornament and Architecture in Victorian Britain presents the most sustained study to date of the development of mechanised architectural ornament in iron in nineteenth century architecture its reception and theorisation by architects critics and engineers and the contexts in which it flourished including industrial buildings retail and seaside architecture railway stations buildings for export and exhibition and street furniture Appealing to architects conservationists historians and students of nineteenth century visual culture and the built environment this book offers new ways of understanding the notion of modernity in Victorian architecture by questioning and re evaluating both Victorian and modernist understandings of the ideological split between historicism and functionalism and ornament and structure
