Irrawaddy Tango:

Irrawaddy Tango Wendy Law-Yone, 1993 A pepper tongued tango dancing Asian beauty rises from a village girlhood to become the wife of her country's dictator and then a leader of the rebel forces arrayed against him She is the electric eponymous heroine of a novel that resonates with the fevers and tumults of our era that opens with a captive lion's roar and moves halfway around the world and through our century from the turbulent Asian country here called Daya to America and back from the 1940s to the 1990s From our earliest glimpses of the edgy young girl in a busy gossipy close knit river hamlet we know we are in the presence of a star energized funny dangerously savvy and on the move from the day when a boy in her compound teaches her the dance that will name her and crucially affect her fate It is a fate that carries her dazzled to Daya's capital and the talent contest where her performance in a sun and star spangled dress of the Irrawaddy Tango captures the obsessed attention of the tough ambitious colonel Supremo an adventurer already on the threshold of power whom on a wild impulse she marries We see her swimming against the fierce currents of our time maintaining her equally fierce integrity in the face of her dubious celebrity as consort to Daya's hated absolute yet precarious head of state her capture by the Jesu guerrillas in the Punished Provinces where she is first prisoner then foot soldier then a leader her recapture rescue exile and mysterious return Ten years after Wendy Law Yone's greatly admired The Coffin Tree she gives us a novel equally powerful a novel that like its heroine shocks and moves us by its fire and color by its fluctuation of emotional tone from harsh to tender cruel to comic to frighteningly quiet An unfaltering evocation of lives lived on the rim of the volcano BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved Irrawaddy Tango Wendy Law-Yone, 1995-11-01 Beyond the Borders Deborah L. Ho, 2015-01-31 When the world thinks of Burma it is often in relation to Nobel laureate and icon Aung San Suu Kyi But beyond her is another world one that complicates the overdetermination of Burma as a pariah state and myths about the high status of Southeast Asian women Highlighting and critiquing this fraught terrain Tamara C Ho's Romancing Human Rights maps Burmese women as real and imagined figures across the twentieth century and into the twenty first century More than a recitation of on the ground facts Ho's groundbreaking scholarship the Betrayal and Other Acts of Subversion Leslie Bow, 2011-10-16 Asian American women have long dealt with charges of betrayal within and beyond their communities Images of their disloyalty pervade American culture from the daughter who is branded a traitor to family for adopting American ways to the war bride who immigrates in defiance of her countrymen to a figure such as Yoko Ono accused of breaking up the Beatles with her seduction of John Lennon Leslie Bow here explores how representations of females transgressing the social order play out in literature by Asian American women Questions of ethnic belonging sexuality identification and political allegiance are among the issues raised by such writers as Jeanne Wakatsuki Houston Bharati Mukherjee Jade Snow Wong Amy Tan Sky Lee Le Ly Hayslip Wendy Law Yone Fiona Cheong and Nellie Wong Beginning with the notion that feminist and Asian American identity are mutually exclusive Bow analyzes how women serve as boundary markers between ethnic or national collectives in order to reveal the male based nature of social cohesion In exploring the relationship between femininity and citizenship liberal feminism and American racial discourse and women s domestic abuse and human rights the author suggests that Asian American women not only mediate sexuality s construction as a determiner of loyalty but also manipulate that construction as a tool of political persuasion in their writing The language of betrayal she argues offers a potent rhetorical means of signaling how belonging is policed by individuals and by the state Bow s bold analysis exposes the stakes behind maintaining ethnic feminist and national alliances particularly for women who claim multiple loyalties

Words Matter King-Kok Cheung, 2000-02-01 In this age of rapid transition Asian American studies and American studies in general are being reconfigured to reflect global migrations and the diverse populations of the United States Asian American literature in particular has embodied the crisis of identity that is at the heart of larger academic and political debates surrounding diversity and the inclusion and exclusion of immigrant and refugee groups These issues underlie the very principles on which literature culture and art are produced preserved taught and critiqued Words Matter is the first collection of interviews with 20th century Asian American writers The conversations that have been gathered here interviews with twenty writers possessing unique backgrounds perspectives thematic concerns and artistic priorities effectively dispel any easy categorizations of people of Asian descent These writers comment on their own work and speak frankly about aesthetics politics and the challenges they have encountered in pursuing a writing career They address among other issues the expectations attached to the label Asian American the burden of representation shouldered by ethnic artists and the different demands of mainstream and ethnic audiences

Challenging Boundaries Joyce W. Warren, Margaret Dickie, 2012-03-15 What if the American literary canon were expanded to consistently represent women writers who do not always fit easily into genres and periods established on the basis of men s writings How would the study of American literature benefit from this long needed revision This timely collection of essays by fourteen women writers breaks new ground in American literary study Not content to rediscover and awkwardly fit female writers into the white male scheme of anthologies and college courses editors Margaret Dickie and Joyce W Warren question the current boundaries of literary periods advocating a revised literary canon The essays consider a wide range of American women writers including Mary Rowlandson Margaret Fuller Harriet Beecher Stowe Emily Dickinson Frances Harper Edith Wharton Gertrude Stein Amy Lowell and Adrienne Rich discussing how the present classification of these writers by periods affects our reading of their work Beyond the focus of feminist challenges to American literary periodization this volume also studies issues of a need for literary reforms considering differences in race ethnicity class and sexuality The essays are valuable and informative as individual critical studies of specific writers and their works Challenging Boundaries presents intelligent original well written and practical arguments in support of long awaited changes in American literary scholarship and is a milestone of feminist literary study

The Americas of Asian American Literature Rachel C. Lee, 1999-10-04 Drawing on a wide array of literary historical and theoretical sources Rachel Lee addresses current debates on the relationship among Asian American ethnic identity national belonging globalization and gender Lee argues that scholars have traditionally placed undue emphasis on ethnic based political commitments whether these are construed as national or global in their readings of Asian American texts This has constrained the intelligibility of stories that are focused less on ethnicity than on kinship family dynamics eroticism and gender roles In response Lee makes a case for a reconceptualized Asian American criticism that centrally features gender and sexuality Through a critical analysis of select literary texts novels by Carlos Bulosan Gish Jen Jessica Hagedorn and Karen Yamashita Lee probes the specific ways in which some Asian American authors have steered around ethnic themes with alternative tales circulating around gender and sexual identity Lee makes it clear that what has been missing from current debates has been an analysis of the complex ways in which gender mediates questions of both national belonging and international migration From anti miscegenation legislation in the early twentieth century to poststructuralist theories of language to Third World feminist theory to critical studies of global cultural and economic flows The Americas of Asian American Literature takes up pressing cultural and literary questions and points to a new direction in literary criticism just fifteen when Burma's military staged a coup and overthrew the civilian government in 1962. The daughter of Ed Law Yone, the daredevil founder and chief editor of The Nation, Burma's leading postwar English language newspaper, she experienced firsthand the perils and promises of a newly independent Burma. On the eve of Wendy's studies abroad, Ed Law Yone was arrested and The Nation shut down. Wendy herself was briefly imprisoned. After his release, Ed fled to Thailand with his family, where he formed a government in exile and tried unsuccessfully to foment a revolution. Exiled to America with his wife and children, Ed never gave up hope that Burma would one day adopt a new democratic government. Though he died disappointed, he left in his daughter's care an illuminating trove of papers documenting the experiences of an eccentric, ambitious, humorous, and determined patriot, vividly recounting the realities of colonial rule, Japanese occupation, postwar reconstruction, and military dictatorship. This memoir tells the twin histories of Law Yone's kin and his country, a nation whose vicissitudes continue to intrigue the world.

The Scent of the Gods Fiona Cheong, 2010-10-01 The Scent of the Gods tells the enchanting, haunting story of a young girl's coming of age in Singapore during the tumultuous years of its formation as a nation. Eleven-year-old Su Yen bears witness to the secretive lives of grown-ups in her diasporic Chinese family and to the veiled threats in Southeast Asia during the Cold War years. From a child's limited perspective, the novel depicts the emerging awareness of sexuality in both its beauty and its consequences, especially for women. In the context of postcolonial politics, Fiona Cheong skillfully parallels the uncertainties of adolescence with the growing paranoia of a population kept on alert to communist infiltration. In luminous prose the novel raises timely questions about safety protection and democracy and what one has to give up to achieve them
