Is Separate Unequal? Albert Leon Samuels, 2004 In this critique of the liberal perspective on desegregation Samuels leads readers from the Brown decision to Green v School Board of New Kent County and on to United States v Fordice to show how the future of public black universities has been left uncertain at best For Samuels economic equality not segregation remains the primary obstacle to fully realized citizenship for African Americans He argues that African Americans pursuit of equality in higher education can be achieved without defunding programs at these schools and that their funding should be increased in recognition of their role in preserving African American culture Envisioning Black Colleges Marybeth Gasman, 2007-06-29 The multifaceted story of the UNCF Winner Outstanding Publication Award American Educational Research Association Etched into America s consciousness is the United Negro College Fund s phrase A mind is a terrible thing to waste This book tells the story of the organization s efforts on behalf of black colleges against the backdrop of the cold war and the civil rights movement Founded during the post World War II period as a successor to white philanthropic efforts the UNCF nevertheless retained vestiges of outside control In its early years the organization was restrained in its critique of segregation and reluctant to lodge a challenge against institutional and cultural racism Through cogent analysis of written and oral histories archival documents and the group s outreach and advertising campaigns historian Marybeth Gasman examines the UNCF s struggle to create an identity apart from white benefactors and to evolve into a vehicle for black empowerment The first history of the UNCF Envisioning Black Colleges draws attention to the significance of black colleges in higher education and the role they played in Americans struggle for equality Historically Black Colleges and Universities Charles L. Betsey, 2017-07-12 Beginning in the 1830s public and private higher education institutions established to serve African Americans operated in Pennsylvania and Ohio the Border States and the states of the old Confederacy Until recently the vast majority of people of African descent who received post secondary education in the United States did so in historically black institutions Spurred on by financial and accreditation issues litigation to assure compliance with court decisions equal higher education opportunity for all citizens and the role of race in admissions decisions interest in the role accomplishments and future of Historically Black Colleges and Universities has been renewed This volume touches upon these issues Historically Black Colleges and Universities HBCUs are a diverse group of 105 institutions They vary in size from several hundred students to over 10 000 Prior to Brown v Board of Education 90 percent of African American postsecondary students were enrolled in HBCUs Currently the 105 HBCUs account for 3 percent of the nation s educational institutions but they graduate about one quarter of African Americans receiving college degrees The competition that HBCUs currently face in attracting and educating African American and other students presents both challenges and opportunities Despite the fact that numerous studies have found that HBCUs are more effective at retaining and graduating African American students than predominately white colleges HBCUs have serious detractors Perhaps because of the increasing pressures on state governments to assure that public HBCUs receive comparable funding and provide programs that will attract a broader student population several public HBCUs no longer serve primarily African American students There is reason to believe and it is the opinion of several contributors to this book that in the changing higher education environment HBCUs will not survive particularly those that are

When is Separate Unequal? Ruth Colker, 2008-11-17 This book does not start from the premise that separate is inherently unequal Writing from an anti subordination perspective Professor Colker provides a framework for the courts and society to consider what programs or policies are most likely to lead to substantive equality for individuals with disabilities In some contexts she argues for more tolerance of disability specific programs and in other contexts she argues for more disability integrated programs Her highly practical investigation includes the topics of K 12 education higher education employment voting and provision of health care At the end of the book she applies this perspective to the racial arena arguing that school districts should be given latitude to implement more use of racial criteria to attain integrated schools because such environments are most likely to help attain substantive equality from an anti subordination perspective The book measures the attainment of equality not on the basis of worn out mantras but instead on the basis of substantive gains      Black Colleges Across the Diaspora M. Christopher Brown II, T. an alternative to questioning the modern day relevance of these schools Wooten asks readers to consider how race and racism precludes black colleges from acquiring the resources and respect worthy of them      Other People's Colleges assessed in colleges today Desegregation State provides WPAs and writing teachers with a disciplinary history for understanding racism in writing assessment and writing programs Mendenhall brings emerging scholarship on the racialization of institutions into the field showing why writing studies must pay more attention to how writing programs have institutionalized racist literacy ideologies through arguments about student placement individualized writing instruction and writing assessment
