Broken Gloss of Bliss Felix Bongjoh, 2018-06-21 The collection of poetry is centered on a father's nostalgic feelings about a beloved departed daughter whose death occurred in peculiar circumstances primarily attributable to a psychosis to which she fell victim After languishing for a very long time she suddenly passed away while still in her thirties The expression of deep feelings of compassion and empathy enables the poet to bring into play imagery compatible with the paternal and filial love that characterizes an exceedingly warm father daughter relationship Although the young daughters short lived life is broken by the cruel hands of death her gloss as reflected in her cheerful and blissful moods prevails throughout with the strong sense of melancholy and eternal life aroused by the verse Bartók and His World Peter Laki,2020-10-06 Béla Bartók who died in New York fifty years ago this September is one of the most frequently performed twentieth century composers He is also the subject of a rapidly growing critical and analytical literature Bartók was born in Hungary and made his home there for all but his last five years when he resided in the United States As a result many aspects of his life and work have been accessible only to readers of Hungarian The main goal of this volume is to provide English speaking audiences with new insights into the life and reception of this musician especially in Hungary Part I begins with an essay by Leon Botstein that places Bartók in a large historical and cultural context László Somfai reports on the catalog of Bartók's works that is currently in progress Peter Laki shows the extremes of the composer's reception in Hungary while Tibor Tallián surveys the often mixed reviews from the American years The essays of Carl Leafstedt and Vera Lampert deal with his librettists Béla Balázs and Melchior Lengyel respectively David Schneider addresses the artistic relationship between Bartók and Stravinsky Most of the letters and interviews in Part II concern Bartók's travels and emigration as they reflected on his personal life and artistic evolution Part III presents early critical assessments of Bartók's work as well as literary and poetic responses to his music and personality simple definition opens a world of questions by indicating an openness to the world To affect and to be affected is to be in encounter and to be in encounter is to have already ventured forth Adventure far from being enclosed in the interiority of a subject affect concerns an immediate participation in the events of the world It is about intensities of experience What is politics made of if not adventures of encounter What are encounters if not adventures of relation The moment we begin to speak of affect we are already venturing into the political dimension of relational encounter This is the dimension of experience in the making This is the level at which politics is emergent In these wide ranging interviews Brian Massumi explores this emergent politics of affect weaving between philosophy political theory and everyday life The discussions wend their way transversally passing between the tired oppositions which too often encumber thought such as subject object body mind and nature culture New concepts are gradually introduced to remap the complexity of relation and encounter for a politics of emergence differential affective attunement collective individuation micropolitics thinking feeling ontopower immanent critique These concepts are not offered as definitive solutions Rather they are designed to move the inquiry still further for an ongoing exploration of the political problems posed by affect Politics of Affect offers an accessible entry point into the work of one of the defining figures of the last quarter century as well as opening up new avenues for philosophical reflection and political engagement
