Iraqi Kurdistan Political Development And Emergent Democracy:

Iraqi Kurdistan Gareth R. V. Stansfield, 2003-08-29 In this groundbreaking study Stansfield identifies the principal dynamics of Iraqi Kurdish politics and analyzes the record and potential of the Kurdish democratic experiment and explores the development of the Kurdish political system since 1991

The Kurds before a Regional Transformation Ferhad Ibrahim Seyder, 2019 The Kurdish independence movement is in retreat Contributing factors for this withdrawal are the new outbreak of the Kurdish war in Turkey the structural weakening of the autonomous region Rojava in Syria proclaimed by the DUP and the setbacks in Iraqi Kurdistan caused by political and economic blockades The Kurdish autonomy projects will be reduced to a minimum The independence referendum in Iraq and the Iraqi and Shiite militias military response are indicative of the reluctance of the Middle Eastern ruling forces to accept political and ethnical pluralism External actors as the USA the EU and the UN support the return of the strong state in order to support regional stability Kurdish elites and their political organisations are facing a crisis of their own The Kurdistan Workers Party propagates postmodern concepts of a post nation state in a region requiring stable political structures more than ever before In Iraqi Kurdistan ongoing internal fighting between the main actors sets back Nation and State building processes by decades All these factors are part of a phase of transition aiming at a new regional order whose outlines can't be anticipated yet

The Future of Kurdistan in Iraq Brendan O'Leary, John McGarry, Khaled Salih, 2006-08-11 The Future of Kurdistan in Iraq appraises the consequences of the US led intervention in Iraq for its most neglected region

Kurdish Studies Archive publishes the content of volumes 1 to 10 of Kurdish Studies This interdisciplinary and peer reviewed journal was dedicated to publishing high quality research and scholarship Since 2023 the journal has been continued as the new Kurdish Studies Journal published by Brill and focuses on research scholarship and debates in the field of Kurdish studies in a multidisciplinary fashion covering a wide range of topics including but not limited to economics history society gender minorities politics health law environment language media culture arts and education A Potential Kurdistan Janet Klein,2009-11-19 The name Kurdistan has a long and curious history but it did not become politicized or contentious until the 20th century particularly after the breakup of the Ottoman Empire and the emergence of new states that incorporated Kurdistan understood as the land of the Kurds in their new borders Today the term has received renewed attention as it no longer just signifies an innocuous geographical term or a nationalist dream it is the name of the political entity in northern Iraq that has many features of statehood but is not in fact a state The Kurdistan Region of Iraq KRI is a curious entity indeed it looks like a state it acts like a state but it is not certified as a state through international recognition The KRI s current state capacity has been the result of a determined state building project that began nearly two decades ago and yet it remains somewhere between state and statelessness Is it in the process of forging an alternative kind of polity This question has consumed not only the governments of Iraq Turkey Iran and Syria the four main states who house most of the 30 million Kurds who refer to themselves as a nation without a state but also the wider world The obvious questions that loom large in the minds of many are what do the Kurds want What are they really building in northern Iraq What would an independent Kurdistan look like Is independence what Kurds seek If Iraqi Kurdistan seceded from Iraq what would this mean for Kurds outside of its borders What would happen to the rest of Iraq These are certainly pressing questions and there have been many insightful responses in recent years However more interesting is how the Kurdistan Regional Government KRG is working to sell its very unique state building project to the rest of the world in its bid to gain international recognition of and support for its venture This paper analyses the KRG s marketing campaign waged not only through the usual diplomatic or para diplomatic channels but also via the Internet and through its novel development of what can only be described as nationalist infomercials This performative aspect of state building literally acting out the state in an attempt to sell sovereignty may represent both old and new chapters in the history of nationalist movements but ones that have not yet been adequately theorized This paper examines the question of a potential Kurdistan through a new lens of analysis that explores not simply the cold hard struggle for sovereignty but the softer para diplomatic performances acting as the creative energies that market these struggles to the international community Nationalism and Minority Identities in Islamic Societies Maya Shatzmiller, 2005-04-29 The essays focus on identity formation in five minority groups Copts in Egypt Baha'is and Christians in Pakistan Berbers in Algeria and Morocco and Kurds in Turkey and Iraq While every minority community is distinctive the experiences of these groups show that a state's authoritarian rule uncompromising attitude towards expressions of particularism and failure to offer tools for inclusion are all responsible for the politicization and radicalization of minority identities The place of Islam in this process is complex while its initial pluralistic role was transformed through the creation of the modern nation state the radicalization of society in turn radicalized and politicized minority identities Minority groups though at times possessing a measure of political autonomy remain intensely vulnerable The Iraq War and Democratic Politics Alex Danchev, John MacMillan, 2004-11-10 This book examines the meaning of the 2003 Iraq war for democratic politics It shuns simplistic analysis and provides a nuanced and critical overview of this key moment in global politics struggle with a thorough empirical investigation informed by International Relations theory Identifying international legitimacy interaction and identity as significant themes in the politics of de facto states and important variables shaping the evolution and policies of these actors at both the domestic and international levels this book will be of interest to students and researchers of International Relations Middle East Politics and Political Science Syria's Kurds Jordi Tejel, 2008-08-29 Jordi Tejel presents combining different disciplines such as history sociology and anthropology a new understanding of the dynamics leading to the consolidation of a Kurdish minority awareness in contemporary Syria The book explores in particular how conditions for a change in ethnic strategy from one of dissimulation to one of visibility have emerged amongst Syria's Kurds The Kurdish Question Revisited Gareth Stansfield, Mohammed Shareef, 2017-08-15 The Kurds once marginal in the study of the Middle East and secondary in its international relations have moved to centre stage in recent years The contributors to The Kurdish Question Revisited offer insights into how this once seemingly intractable immutable phenomenon is being transformed amid the new political realities of the Middle East Turkey's Kurds Ali Kemal Özcan, 2012-10-12 The Kurdish Worker's Party PKK is examined here in this text on Kurdish nationalism Incorporating recent field based research results and newly translated material on Abdullah Ocalan the PKK's long time leader it explores the nature and the organizational working of the party from its growth in the late 1970s to its recent shrinkage A variety of issues are addressed including the views and philosophy of Abdullah Ocalan the successes and failures of the PKK in bringing about the Kurdish opposition in Turkey the role of PKK's philosophy of recruitment organizational diligence use of arms and other contextual factors in Kurdish resistance factors involved in the development of the nationalism of the Kurds in Turkey The text also reappraises the Kurdish movement in Turkey and presents insights into the nature of Kurdish social structure thinking and the particularities of the Kurdish ethnic distinctness The Kurds in the Middle East Mehmet Gurses, David Romano, Michael M. Gunter, 2020-06-22 In light of the changes that the Kurds and the countries in the Middle East are undergoing The Kurds in the Middle East Enduring Problems and New Dynamics provides a comprehensive analysis of the Kurdish state relations in the four key Middle Eastern countries Democratic Peace Across the Middle East Yakub Halabi, 2016-05-24 From Tunisia to Egypt and from Israel to Iran the debates surrounding the concept of democracy in the Middle East are never straightforward This has been particularly evident since the events of 2009 in Iran and the uprisings across the Arab world in late 2010 and 2011 Against this backdrop Democratic Peace across the Middle East critically analyses the prospects for democracy throughout the region specifically asking whether political and social modernisation are absolute preconditions for democratic peace to take hold in the region or whether democracy without modernisation might be enough It explores the dynamics between neo patriarchy and Islam on the one hand and democratisation and modernisation on the other and also considers the prospect of the political accommodation of opposition groups Incorporating an analysis of a variety of key dynamics which affect each Middle Eastern country in turn such as tribal and sectarian identity Islamism and the structure of political party systems this book will appeal to those researching the Middle East and its patterns of rule

The Making of Foreign Policy in Iraq Zana Gulmohamad, 2021-01-14. How is foreign policy made in Iraq? Based on dozens of interviews with senior officials and politicians, this book provides a clear analysis of the development of domestic Iraqi politics since 2003. Zana Gulmohamad explains how the federal government of Iraq and the Kurdistan Regional Government (KRG) have functioned and worked together since toppling Saddam to reveal in granular detail the complexity of their foreign policy making. The book shows that the ruling elites and political factions in Baghdad and in the capital of the Kurdistan Region, Erbil, create foreign policies according to their agendas. The formulation and implementation of the two governments' foreign policies is to a great extent uncoordinated. Yet Zana Gulmohamad places this incoherent model of foreign policy making in the context of the country's fragmented political and social context and explains how Iraq's neighbouring countries—Iran, Turkey, Saudi Arabia, and Syria—before the civil war have each influenced its internal affairs. The book is the first study dedicated to the contemporary dynamics of the Iraqi state outside the usual focus on the great powers and it explains exactly how Iraqi foreign policy is managed alongside the country's economic and security interests.
