Iron bridge to crystal palace; impact and images of the industrial revolution A. Briggs, Iron Bridge to Crystal Palace Asa Briggs, 1979 Letters, Postcards, Email Esther Milne, 2012-02-27 In this original study Milne moves between close readings of letters postcards and emails and investigations of the material technological infrastructures of these forms to answer the question How does presence function as an aesthetic and rhetorical strategy within networked communication practices As her work reveals the relation between old and new communication systems is more complex than allowed in much contemporary media theory Although the correspondents of letters postcards and emails are not usually present to one another as they write and read their exchanges this does not necessarily inhibit affective communication Indeed this study demonstrates how physical absence may in some instances provide correspondents with intense intimacy and a spiritual almost telepathic sense of the other's presence While corresponding by letter postcard or email readers construe an imaginary incorporeal body for their correspondents that in turn reworks their interlocutor's self presentation In this regard the fantasy of presence reveals a key paradox of cultural communication namely that material signifiers can be used to produce the experience of incorporeal presence To Engineer is Human Henry Petroski, 2018-10-16 Though ours is an age of high technology the essence of what engineering is and what engineers do is not common knowledge Even the most elementary of principles upon which great bridges jumbo jets or super computers are built are alien concepts to many This is so in part because engineering as a human endeavor is not yet integrated into our culture and intellectual tradition And while educators are currently wrestling with the problem of introducing technology into conventional academic curricula thus better preparing today's students for life in a world increasingly technological there is as yet no consensus as to how technological literacy can best be achieved I believe and I argue in this essay that the ideas of engineering are in fact in our bones and part of our human nature and experience Furthermore I believe that an understanding and an appreciation of engineers and engineering can be gotten without an engineering or technical education Thus I hope that the technologically uninitiated will come to read what I have written as an introduction to technology Indeed this book is my answer to the questions What is engineering and What do engineers do Henry Petroski To Engineer is Human The Vital Landscape William M. Taylor, 2017-11-22 The Vital Landscape explores the arrival of the biological sciences most notably the sciences of life entailed in studies of botany and zoology ecology and evolutionary science physiology and psychology in the nineteenth century and their impact on architecture and landscape architecture in Great Britain Specifically the book explores the idea of the contrived or artificial environment as an object of both scientific speculation and aesthetic reflection Unlike specialist histories of biological science or environmental thought this book is unique in locating one source for present day concerns for the environment and human well being in debates over proper housing and the growing popularity of domestic and public gardens in the nineteenth century The book skilfully interweaves architecture and garden history the history and philosophy of science plant and animal physiology and human psychology works of literature popular science and domestic economy in a story that opens new opportunities for the study of architecture and gardens

Victorian Visions of Suburban Utopia Nathaniel Robert Walker, 2020-11-17 The rise of suburbs and disinvestment from cities have been defining features of life in many countries over the course of the twentieth century In Victorian Visions of Suburban Utopia Nathaniel Walker asks why did we abandon our dense complex urban places and seek to find the best of the city and the country in the flowery suburbs While looking back at the architecture and urban design of the 1800s offers some answers Walker argues that a great missing piece of the story can be found in Victorian utopian literature The replacement of cities with high tech suburbs was repeatedly imagined and breathlessly described in the socialist dreams and science fiction fantasies of dozens of British and American authors Some of these visionaries such as Robert Owen Edward Bulwer Lytton Edward Bellamy William Morris Ebenezer Howard and H G Wells are enduringly famous while others were street vendors or amateur chemists who have been all but forgotten Together they fashioned strange and beautiful imaginary worlds built of synthetic gemstones lacy metal colonnades and unbreakable glass staffed by robotic servants and teeming with flying carriages As varied as their futuristic visions could be Walker reveals how most of them were unified by a single desperate plea for humanity to have a future worth living we must abandon our smoky poor chaotic Babylonian cities for a life in shimmering gardens

The Pencil Henry Petroski, 1992-11-10 Henry Petroski traces the origins of the pencil back to ancient Greece and Rome writes factually and charmingly about its development over the centuries and around the world and shows what the pencil can teach us about engineering and technology today

Dominion Peter Ackroyd, 2018-09-06 Uncover the intricate past of England in Peter Ackroyd's acclaimed volume Dominion a crucial part of his sweeping History of England series This charismatic narrative opens with the aftermath of Waterloo in 1815 and concludes with the death of Queen Victoria in 1901 Ackroyd masterfully recounts the era of George IV whose rule witnessed staunch resistance to reform and that of Sailor King William IV an epoch which marked significant modernisation and the abolition of slavery When eighteen year old Queen Victoria's took the throne a period of astonishing technological breakthroughs and innovation such as steam railways and the telegraph Yet beneath the progress Ackroyd unflinchingly reveals the harsh reality of the ordinary working classes mired in poverty whilst the industrial revolution flourishes around them It was a time that saw a flowering of great literature too As the Georgian era gave way to that of Victoria readers could delight not only in the work of Byron Shelley and Wordsworth but also the great nineteenth century novelists the Brontë sisters George Eliot Mrs Gaskell Thackeray and of course Dickens whose work has become synonymous with Victorian England Finally Ackroyd illustrates the British Empire's global expansion reflecting Britannia's iron rule over the waves the shockwaves of which are still felt today

The Pit Sinkers of Northumberland and Durham Peter Ford Mason, 2012-08-01 Shaft sinking for the extraction of minerals has taken place for centuries and for much of this time coal mining was carried out in the North East of England Various methods of pit sinking developed from the use of shallow bell pits to the excavation of deep shafts in order to access rich seams of coal and other minerals for sale in rapidly urbanising areas such as London In the close mining communities of Northumberland and Durham those who dug the initial shafts the sinkers themselves were regarded as the mining elite This book not only tells the story of mining itself through upheaval and technological developments but also focuses on the lives of miners and their families above ground in the emerging pit towns and villages places where religion and miners' games were an integral part of life Peter Ford Mason descended from three generations of County Durham miners has written a fascinating investigation into mining society which makes a compelling read for anyone interested in the social history of the North East or the mining industry as a whole Eye Witness Sam Smiles, 2018-05-08 This title was first published in 2000 This study examines the ways in which very different visual fields might be said to have shared certain working assumptions concerning the truth of representation It concentrates particularly on prints

The Public Image Of Chemistry Joachim Schummer, Bernadette Bensaude-vincent, Brigitte Van Tiggelen, 2007-10-17 Popular associations with chemistry range from poisons hazards chemical warfare and environmental pollution to alchemical pseudoscience sorcery and mad scientists which gravely affect the public image of science in general While chemists have merely complained about their public image social and cultural studies of science have largely avoided anything related to chemistry This book provides for the first time an in depth understanding of the cultural and historical contexts in which the public image of chemistry has emerged It argues that this image has been shaped through recurring and unlucky interactions between chemists in popularizing their discipline and nonchemists in expressing their expectations and fears of science Written by leading scholars from the humanities social sciences and chemistry in North America Europe and Australia this volume explores a blind spot in the science society relationship and calls for a constructive dialog between scientists and their public

The Age of Improvement, 1783-1867 Asa Briggs, 2014-06-17 The Age of Improvement has long established itself as a classic of modern historical writing Widely read and quoted it has had a unique influence on teaching and research This second edition draws on the great volume of new research produced by Lord Briggs amongst others since its original publication The book stresses both the underlying unity and the rich variety of the age and raises fundamental issues about a period of crucial change in British history industrialisation war constitutional change and the attitudes of politicians towards it political development and not least society and culture In the background are the new economic powers based on the development of a coal and iron technology in the foreground new social and political problems and new ways of tackling them The author also discusses perceptions of and reactions to changing circumstances the influence of religion and science on national life and changing styles in art and literature The story ends not with a full stop but with a question mark Could improvement be maintained Could balance and progress continue to be reconciled
