and what God wanted men to be like and that He imparts to them today the strength necessary to fulfil this purpose if they seek it according to His will The other religions claim that the divine revelation came through a prophet as in Mohammedanism or else through some lesser god as in the ancient Hermetic cults but never through the Supreme God Himself Jesus Christ in order to perpetuate the revelation which God had made in Him gathered about Him self a group of disciples from whom He chose an inner circle which were known as the Twelve and later as the Apostles At the time of His death on the cross they all deserted Him but after His resurrection He inspired them with new hope and they went forth to carry to the world the Gospel the good news about the salvation to be obtained through faith in Him For the first hundred years or so of Christian history the early disciples expected the imminent return of Christ from heaven in glory to judge the world Consequently they made no provision for the future or the carrying on of their message beyond their own generation The early development of the Church came as a result of its adjustment to the fact of the delayed return of Christ His first Jerusalem disciples continued to worship in the Temple forming a synagogue of the Nazarene which differed from the other synagogues only in their belief that Jesus Christ was the Messiah predicted by the Scriptures and that He was about to return to judge the world and to set up His Kingdom After the persecution and death of St Digest of the Canons for the Government of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America Episcopal Church. Documents of Witness Robert Boak Slocum, Don S. Armentrout, 2007-10-01 This volume is a documentary history of the Episcopal Church from 1782 to 1985 The documents selected illustrate what the Episcopal Church believes and what it has done They also show how the Episcopal Church has developed in the context of American culture The documents are arranged chronologically in thematic chapters Care has been taken to see that the documents are widely representative of various positions in the church The editors hope that the reader can hear the history and drama of the Episcopal Church through the many voices assembled here The goal has been to let these witnesses speak for themselves with few editorial interruptions These documents have much to say about the Episcopal Church what it has been what it is and what it needs to be Digest of the Canons Episcopal Church, 1896 Constitution of the Protestant Episcopal Church ... as amended in General Convention, 1841. Diocese of Ohio, 1852 The Wisconsin Oneidas and the Episcopal Church L. Gordon

McLester III, Laurence M. Hauptman, Kenneth Hoya House, 2019-05-02 This unique collaboration by academic historians Oneida elders and Episcopal clergy tells the fascinating story of how the oldest Protestant mission and house of worship in the upper Midwest took root in the Oneida community Personal bonds that developed between the Episcopal clergy and the Wisconsin Oneidas proved more important than theology in allowing the community to accept the Christian message brought by outsiders Episcopal bishops and missionaries in Wisconsin were at times defenders of the Oneidas against outside whites attempting to get at their lands and resources At other times these clergy initiated projects that the Oneidas saw as beneficial a school a hospital or a lace making program for Oneida women that provided a source of income and national recognition for their artistry The clergy incorporated the Episcopal faith into an Iroquoian cultural and religious framework the Condolence Council ritual that had a longstanding history among the Six Nations In turn the Oneidas modified the very form of the Episcopal faith by using their own language in the Gloria in Excelsis and the Te Deum as well as by employing Oneida in their singing of Christian hymns Christianity continues to have real meaning for many American Indians The Wisconsin Oneidas and the Episcopal Church testifies to the power and legacy of that relationship
