Lesley Cook,1958 Evidence for the Effects of Mergers on Market Power and Efficiency Bruce A. Blonigen,Justin R. Pierce,2016 Abstract Study of the impact of mergers and acquisitions M As on productivity and market power has been complicated by the difficulty of separating these two effects We use newly developed techniques to separately estimate productivity and markups across a wide range of industries using detailed plant level data Employing a difference in differences framework we find that M As are associated with increases in average markups but find little evidence for effects on plant level productivity We also examine whether M As increase efficiency through reallocation of production to more efficient plants or through reductions in administrative operations but again find little evidence for these channels on average The results are robust to a range of approaches to address the endogeneity of firms merger decisions The Effects of Mergers Klaus Peter Gugler,2015 This paper analyzes the effects of mergers around the world over the past 15 years We utilize a large panel of data on mergers to test several hypotheses about mergers The effects of the mergers are examined by comparing the performance of the merging firms with control groups of nonmerging firms The comparisons are made on profitability and sales The results show that mergers on average do result in significant increases in profits but reduce the sales of the merging firms Interestingly these post merger patterns look similar across countries We also did not find dramatic differences between mergers in the manufacturing and the service sectors and between domestic and cross border mergers Conglomerate mergers decrease sales more than horizontal mergers By separating mergers into those that increase profits and those that reduce them and by then examining the patterns of sales changes following the mergers we determine the effects of mergers on efficiency and market power Our results suggest that those mergers that decrease profits and efficiency account for a large proportion However we can also identify mergers that increase profits by either increasing market power or by increasing efficiency The first conclusion seems to be a more likely explanation for large companies whereas the latter is likely to be true for small firms Department of Justice United States Department of Justice,1992 Merger in the Round David T. Levy,James David Reitzes,1989 Mergers and Acquisitions P. L. Beena,2014-10-10 This book provides a holistic account of developments and patterns of mergers and acquisitions that have taken place in the Indian corporate sector especially in the post liberalisation era It combines astute analyses with up to date data to present an all inclusive picture of globalisation and its impact on business in contemporary India This will serve as an important resource to researchers scholars and students of economics management business administration business studies commerce and corporate law as well as policy makers legal practitioners industrial houses and industrial bodies

Horizontal Merger Guidelines ,1997 RETRACTED, The Regulation of Transnational Mergers in International and European Law Dimitris Liakopoulos,Armando Marsilia,2009-12-07 The major problem associated with the regulation of transnational mergers which affect several national markets is the allocation of jurisdiction Each country concerned may wish to exert jurisdiction and apply its national competition law to regulate the anti competitive effects a merger may have in its territory. However, this approach may lead to risks of inconsistent decisions regarding the legality of mergers. Indeed, the national competition laws applied by the regulating authorities may diverge in several aspects which raise the likelihood of inconsistency. Therefore, it is desirable to opt for regulatory approaches which are more sensitive to the transnational nature of mergers and which allow cooperation between competition authorities. A possible solution may be bilateral cooperation agreements through which two countries coordinate the enforcement activities of their national competition authorities. However, the benefits of these agreements are enjoyed only by the signatory parties. The sole reliance upon bilateral agreements does not appear to be the optimal regulatory approach towards transnational mergers.

Winning by Losing Ulrike Malmendier, Enrico Moretti, Florian S. Peters, 2012. Do acquirors profit from acquisitions or do acquiring CEOs overbid and destroy shareholder value? We present a novel approach to estimating the long run abnormal returns to mergers exploiting detailed data on merger contests. In the sample of close bidding contests, we use the loser's post merger performance to construct the counterfactual performance of the winner had he not won the contest. We find that bidder returns are closely aligned in the years before the contest but diverge afterwards. Winners underperform losers by 50 percent over the following three years. Existing methodologies including announcement effects fail to capture the acquirors underperformance.
