Beagle Charles Darwin, 1839 A Narrative of the Voyage of H.M.S. Beagle Robert Fitzroy, Charles Darwin, Philip Parker King, Sir Bartholomew James Sullivan, 1977 Covering the second voyage of HMS Beagle from December 1831 to October 1836 under captain Robert FitzRoy with naturalist Charles Darwin aboard Beagle sailed across the Atlantic Ocean and then carried out detailed hydrographic surveys around the coasts of southern South America returning via Tahiti and Australia after having circumnavigated the Earth Fitzroy authored v 2 covering this time and edited both volumes of the Narrative Evolution's Captain Peter Nichols, 2003-10-07 Evolution's Captain is the story of a visionary but now forgotten English naval officer but for whom the Darwinian Revolution would never have occurred When Captain Robert FitzRoy the twenty six year old captain of the H M S Beagle set out for Tierra del Fuego in the fall of 1831 he invited a young naturalist to accompany him That twenty two year old gentleman was Charles Darwin and perhaps no single voyage in history had a greater impact on how we would come to understand the world in both religious and scientific terms When the Beagle's first captain committed suicide while at sea in 1828 he was replaced by a young naval officer of a new mold Robert FitzRoy was the most brilliant and scientific sea captain of his age He used the Beagle a survey vessel as a laboratory for the new field of the natural sciences But his plan to bring four savages home to

England to civilize them as Christian gentlefolk backfired when scandal loomed over their sexual misbehavior at the Walthamstow Infants School FitzRoy needed to get them out of England fast and thus was born the second and most famous voyage of the Beagle FitzRoy feared the loneliness of another long voyage with madness in his own family he was haunted by the fate of the Beagle's previous captain so for company he took with him the young amateur naturalist Charles Darwin Like FitzRoy Darwin believed at the beginning of the voyage in the absolute word of the Bible and the story of man's creation The two men spent five years circling the globe together but by the end of their voyage they had reached startlingly different conclusions about the origins of the natural world In naval terms the voyage was a stunning scientific success But FitzRoy a fanatical Christian was horrified by the heretical theories Darwin began to develop As these began to influence the profoundest levels of religious and scientific thinking in the nineteenth century FitzRoy's knowledge that he had provided Darwin with the vehicle for his sacrilegious ideas propelled him down an irrevocable path to suicide This true story part biography part sea drama and a subtle study of one of the defining moments in the history of science reads like the finest historical fiction It is a chronicle of the remarkable chain of events without which Darwin would most likely have lived and died an obscure English country parson with a fondness for collecting beetles
