Social Inclusion: Societal and Organizational Implications for Information Systems Eileen Trauth,Debra Howcroft,Tom Butler,Brian Fitzgerald,Janice DeGross,2006-09-13 Changes in society resulting from the pervasiveness of information technology have produced positive and negative intended and unintended consequences Key among them is the exclusion of individuals who lack access to technological resources from various societal processes and services The theme of this book social inclusion explores the many dimensions of this exclusion This issue has been the focus of much debate within the social sciences yet has largely been underresearched in the Information Systems field despite our concerns with the social and organizational aspects of technology To the extent that contemporary debates have identified access to information as a key component of poverty digital exclusion is seen as the problem Thus ICTs are portrayed as either exacerbating exclusion or are presented as the solution for greater inclusion This conference will provide us with the opportunity to build upon our strong tradition of studying technology design and use in organizations and expand our field of enquiry to consider the processes that engender social exclusion and the issues that derive from it This theme invites consideration of social and organizational constraints that result in the underrepresentation of certain groups and by implication certain issues Likewise it invites consideration of emerging technologies that have the potential to alter social political and economic relations Much is being written about the ubiquitous nature of ICTs to change society for example open source software has recently emerged as a concept with implications far beyond the technology domain This suggests that the role of ICTs in addressing social exclusion is far more complex than often thought For this reason it is timely to expand our focus and progress the study of IS beyond the organizational level of analysis so that we may consider wider concerns affecting all citizens This book contains the proceedings of the Working Conference on the societal and organizational implications for information systems of social inclusion This conference sponsored by the International Federation for Information Processing Working Group 8.2 was held in Limerick Ireland July 12-15 2006 Information Systems Development Chris Barry, Kieran Conboy, Michael Lang, Gregory Wojtkowski, Wita Wojtkowski, 2008-12-09

Information Systems Development ISD progresses rapidly continually creating new challenges for the professionals involved New concepts approaches and techniques of systems development emerge constantly in this field Progress in ISD comes from research as well as from practice This conference will discuss issues pertaining to information systems development ISD in the inter networked digital economy Participants will include researchers both experienced and novice from industry and academia as well as students and practitioners Themes will include methods and approaches for ISD ISD education philosophical ethical and sociological aspects of ISD as well as specialized tracks such as distributed software development ISD and knowledge management ISD and electronic business electronic government ISD in public sector organizations IOS described as working within a flexible three tiered system that is guided by students academic and behavioral outcomes The goal ultimately is to facilitate learning and mastery by ensuring effective instruction and classroom management for all students Tier 1 and by speeding early and effective interventions to those students who need more strategic interventions Tier 2 or more intensive interventions Tier 3 interventions see the diagram below Critically effective RtI processes focus on a interventions not diagnostic labels b individualized functional assessment not universal or standard assessment batteries tests or evaluation protocols and c student focused contextual decision making not rigid psychometric decision rules At the core of this process is a data based functional assessment problem solving process While there are many sound problem solving models and processes all of the effective ones have four primary components Problem Identification Problem Analysis Intervention and Evaluation While some utilize more steps or different semantic terms all of the research based models components can be distilled down to these four primary components From an RtI perspective it is critical to note that RtI is an evaluation step That is it is impossible to determine whether a student has responded to an intervention if the intervention has not already been implemented This Electronic Book E Book focuses on describing the critical components of effective RtI systems and approaches at the school district and state levels as well as the step by step the Data based Functional Assessment Problem Solving process that has been used nationally by Project ACHIEVE as the SPRINT School Prevention Review and Intervention Team process In doing this a Problem solving Consultation Intervention context is used throughout and effective instruction assessment progress monitoring intervention and evaluation processes from kindergarten through high school are highlighted In addition the seven steps of the Data based Functional Assessment Problem Solving process are presented in detail and applied to case studies Readers will learn how to scientifically clarify and identify referred student problems how to generate hypotheses to explain why these problems exist how to test and validate in invalidate these hypotheses and then how to link confirmed hypotheses to evidence based interventions and to evaluate students responsiveness to them Numerous case studies are presented throughout the E Book to demonstrate the RtI process and to provide readers with examples of how to implement it at student school system and state levels Readers should finish the book with a working understanding of how to implement effective RtI processes at all of these levels and how to strategically plan and evaluate the implementation process

Strategy, Policy, & Review Department, International Monetary Fund. Legal Dept., International Monetary Fund. Monetary and Capital Markets Department, 2013-11-18 In September 2010 the Executive Board made financial stability assessments under the Financial Sector Assessment program FSAP a regular and mandatory part of bilateral surveillance under Article IV for jurisdictions with systemically important financial sectors This decision recognized that although financial sector issues were at the core of the Fund's surveillance mandate the FSAP as designed in the late 1990s had severe limitations as a tool Voluntary participation the low frequency of assessments and their very broad coverage particularly in emerging market and developing countries where assessments are typically conducted jointly with the World Bank limited the usefulness of the FSAP for surveillance Building on the revamp of the FSAP during the 2009 program review that delineated the institutional responsibilities of the Fund and the World Bank and defined the content of the stability assessment under the FSAP the Executive Board took the next step in 2010 to make these stability assessments mandatory every five years for members with systemically important financial sectors Drafting Copyright Exceptions Emily Hudson, 2020-04-02 This is a detailed account of interpretative practices and the law in action that draws lessons for the drafting of copyright exceptions
