

A large, detailed bronze lion statue, known as a Bixie, stands prominently in the foreground. It is positioned on an ornate, carved stone base. The lion has a fierce expression, with its mouth slightly open, showing its tongue. Its body is covered in intricate carvings of scales and patterns. In the background, a traditional Chinese building with a yellow-tiled roof and red pillars is visible. The sky is a deep blue with scattered white clouds. The overall scene is brightly lit, suggesting a sunny day.

Exploring Chinese Society and Culture Umang Marar, 2025-01-03 Exploring Chinese Society and Culture delves into the diverse and complex themes of modern China. We examine the country's social and economic changes, its growing global influence, and the various perspectives on China's development and governance. Our compendium covers topics such as social welfare, gender, ethnicity, and the role of the Communist Party and the State. We provide detailed accounts of social changes from causal processes to the political dynamics of right-wing populism and the causes of major technological disasters. Since the founding of the Communist Party in 1921, China's ethnic relations have continuously evolved. We discuss the impact of ethnic minorities and intra-ethnic relations on the nation. We also explore the framework of urban and rural society in transitional China, examining how family background affects children's academic achievement. Additional chapters focus on cultural sociology, market disputes, government intervention, and the measurement invariance across gender and age among Chinese adolescents. We also investigate the motivations and forms of practicing CSR in art and culture in China, highlighting the driving factors behind corporate engagement in cultural initiatives.

Thinking Heritage Through China Andrew Scott Johnston, 2024-12-30 Thinking Heritage Through China explores major themes in international heritage through the lens of heritage practice in China. China is a dynamic proving ground of heritage practice where international ideas are debated, fought over, and realized in many forms within the context of complex economic, political, and reputational forces. Preservation in China engages with many of the central themes of international heritage practice, shedding new light on considerations of authenticity and intangible heritage, politics, and nationalism and tourism and development. These forces lie at the heart of contemporary heritage practice, not only in China but also all over the world. Written by an architectural historian, architect, and heritage professional with experience in China, this book uses an architecturally and spatially focused analysis, bridging critical heritage studies and the study of the built environment as shaped through heritage practice, exploring a wide range of contemporary heritage themes for a broad audience, including China scholars. This book will be of interest to scholars, practitioners, and both undergraduate and postgraduate students interested in contemporary international heritage practice, heritage studies, theory, and methods of heritage, comparative heritage practice, and heritage practice in China and Asia.

Chinese Silk S. J. Vainker, 2004 Technology, Gender and History in Imperial China Francesca Bray, 2013-06-19 What can the history of technology contribute to our understanding of late imperial China? Most stories about technology in pre-modern China follow a well-worn plot: in about 1400, after an early ferment of creativity that made it the most technologically sophisticated civilisation in the world, China entered an era of technical lethargy and decline. But how are we to reconcile this tale, which portrays China in the Ming and Qing dynasties as a dying giant that had outgrown its own strength, with the wealth of counterevidence affirming that the country remained rich, vigorous, and powerful at least until the end of the eighteenth century? Does this seeming contradiction mean that the stagnation story is simply wrong or perhaps that technology was irrelevant to how imperial society worked Or does it imply that historians of technology should ask better questions about what technology was what it did and what it meant in pre modern societies like late imperial China In this book Francesca Bray explores subjects such as technology and ethics technology and gendered subjectivities both female and male and technology and statecraft to illuminate how material settings and practices shaped topographies of everyday experience and ideologies of government techniques of the self and technologies of the subject Examining technologies ranging from ploughing and weaving to drawing pictures building a house prescribing medicine or composing a text this book offers a rich insight into the interplay between the micro and macro politics of everyday life and the workings of governmentality in late imperial China showing that gender principles were woven into the very fabric of empire from cosmology and ideologies of rule to the material foundations of the state and the everyday practices of the domestic sphere This authoritative text will be welcomed by students and scholars of Chinese history as well as those working on global history and the histories of gender technology and agriculture Furthermore it will be of great use to those interested in social and cultural anthropology and material culture

The Social Construction of Ancient Cities Monica L. Smith, 2013-04-09 What made ancient cities successful What are the similarities between modern cities and ancient ones The Social Construction of Ancient Cities offers a fresh perspective on ancient cities and the social networks and relations that built and sustained them marking a dramatic change in the way archaeologists approach them Examining ancient cities from a bottom up perspective the authors in this volume explore the ways in which cities were actually created by ordinary inhabitants They track the development of urban space from the point of view of individuals and households providing new insights into cities roles as social centers as well as focal points of political and economic activities Analyzing various urban communities from residences and neighborhoods to marketplaces and ceremonial plazas the authors examine urban centers in Africa Mesoamerica South America Mesopotamia the Indian subcontinent and China Collectively they demonstrate how complex networks of social relations and structures gave rise to the formation of ancient cities contributed to their cohesion and sustained their growth much as they do in modern urban centers The authors analyses draw from ancient texts as well as archaeological surveys and excavations of urban architecture and other material remains including portable objects for daily use and comestibles They show clearly how early urban dwellers consciously developed dense interdependent social networks to satisfy their needs for food housing and employment forged their own urban identities and generally managed to thrive in the crowded bustling and competitive environment that characterized ancient cities Not least of all they suggest how urban leaders and urban dwellers negotiated a consensus that enabled them to achieve both mundane and extraordinary goals in the process establishing their unique ritual legal and social status

Age of Exploration Elisabeth Kaske, Elisabeth Köll, 2024-08-19 In the early twentieth century Chinese intellectuals came to realize that Westerners surpassed them not only in knowledge of the world but also in knowledge of China itself A rising generation of Chinese scientists engineers and administrators was eager to address this state of affairs and began to retrace the footsteps of Western explorers who had crisscrossed China during the preceding century The nine case studies assembled in this book show how a new cohort of professional Chinese explorers traveled studied appropriated and reshaped national space from the 1920s to the 1950s In some instances the explorers drew directly from the fieldwork practices of their Western predecessors In others they trained compilers to collect and systematize local knowledge that could be passed up the administrative hierarchy to government and national institutions Their projects helped to claim natural resources prepare for infrastructural development and create new institutionalized knowledge and public engagement with textual representations of China's geobody This book elucidates the ways in which knowledge production in early twentieth century China centered on space and contributed to China's transformation into a modern nation state Let's Explore China Walt K. Chinese Architecture and the Beaux-Arts Jeffrey W. Cody, Nancy Shatzman Steinhardt, Tony Atkin, 2011-01-31 In the early twentieth century Chinese traditional architecture and the French derived methods of the cole des Beaux Arts converged in the United States when Chinese students were given scholarships to train as architects at American universities whose design curricula were dominated by Beaux Arts methods Upon their return home in the 1920s and 1930s these graduates began to practice architecture and create China's first architectural schools often transferring a version of what they had learned in the U S to Chinese situations The resulting complex series of design related transplantations had major implications for China between 1911 and 1949 as it simultaneously underwent cataclysmic social economic and political changes After 1949 and the founding of the People's Republic China experienced a radically different wave of influence from the Beaux Arts through advisors from the Soviet Union who first under Stalin and later Khrushchev brought Beaux Arts ideals in the guise of socialist progress In the early twenty first century China is still feeling the effects of these events Chinese Architecture and the Beaux Arts examines the coalescing of the two major architectural systems placing significant shifts in architectural theory and practice in China within relevant contemporary cultural and educational contexts Fifteen major scholars from around the world analyze and synthesize these crucial events to shed light on the dramatic architectural and urban changes occurring in China today many of which have global ramifications This stimulating and generously illustrated work is divided into three sections framed by an introduction and a postscript The first focuses on the convergence of Chinese architecture and the cole des Beaux Arts outlining the salient aspects of each and suggesting how and why the two met in the U S The second section centers on the question of how Chinese architects were influenced by the Beaux Arts and how Chinese architecture was changed as a result The third takes an even closer look at the Beaux Arts influence addressing how innovative practices new schools of architecture and buildings whose designs were linked to Beaux Arts assumptions led to distinctive new paradigms that were rooted in a changing China By virtue of its scope scale and scholarship this volume promises to become a classic in the fields of Chinese and Western architectural history Contributors Tony Atkin Peter J Carroll Yung Ho Chang Jeffrey W Cody Kerry Sizheng Fan Fu Chao Ching Gu Daqing Seng Kuan Delin Lai Xing Ruan Joseph Rykwert Nancy S Steinhardt David VanZanten Rudolf Wagner Zhang Jie Zhao Chen Encyclopedia of Ancient Asian Civilizations Charles Higham, 2014-05-14 Discusses the historical and cultural changes that occurred in Asia throughout history
