Exploration Stewart A. Weaver, 2014-12-19

We live in an age of globalization on every conceivable level but globalization has a deeper history than politicians and pundits often allow and nothing is more significant to its history than exploration. Wherever trade or faith or empire followed explorers usually led. Their motives were as many sided and various as their actions; their legacies are contested and mixed. But none can doubt the significance of explorers to the making of the modern world. For as long as human societies have existed, people have felt the urge to venture outside of them, either in search of other societies or in search of new land or adventure. Exploration: A Very Short Introduction surveys this quintessential human impulse, tracing it from pre-history to the present, from east to west around the globe and from the depths of volcanoes to the expanses of space. Focusing on the theme of exploration as encounter, Stewart Weaver discusses the Polynesians in the Pacific, the Norse in the Atlantic, and other early explorers. He reflects on the Columbian discovery of the Americas, James Cook, and the place of exploration in the Enlightenment, and Alexander von Humboldt's epochal encounter with tropical South America. The book's final chapters relate exploration to imperial expansion in Africa and Central Asia, assess the meaning of the race to the North and South Poles, and consider the significance of today's efforts in space and deep sea exploration. But what accounts for this urge? Through this brief study of the history of exploration, Weaver clearly shows how the impulse to explore is also the foundation of the globalized world we inhabit today. Exploration combines a narration of explorers' daring feats with a wide lens examination of what it fundamentally means to explore.

Geography Militant Felix Driver, 2000-10-03 Geography Militant is a compelling account of the relations between geographical knowledge, exploration, and empire.

Empire, Education, and Indigenous Childhoods Helen May, Baljit Kaur, 2016-05-06 Taking up a little known story of education, schooling, and missionary endeavor, Helen May, Baljit Kaur, and Larry Prochner focus on the experiences of very young native children in three British colonies. In missionary settlements across the northern part of the North Island of New Zealand, Upper Canada, and British-controlled India, experimental British ventures for placing young children of the poor in infant schools were simultaneously transported to and adopted for all three colonies. From the 1820s to the 1850s, this transplantation of Britain's infant schools to its distant colonies was deemed a radical and enlightened tool that was meant to hasten the conversion of heathen peoples by missionaries to Christianity and to European modes of civilization. The intertwined legacies of European exploration, enlightenment ideals, education, and empire building, the authors argue, provided a springboard for British colonial and missionary activity across the globe during the nineteenth century Informed by archival research and focused on the shared as well as unique aspects of the infant schools colonial experience Empire Education and Indigenous Childhoods illuminates both the pervasiveness of missionary education and the diverse contexts in which its attendant ideals were applied The Last Blank Spaces Dane Kennedy, 2013-03-01 The challenge of opening Africa and Australia to British imperial influence fell to a coterie of proto professional explorers who sought knowledge adventure and fame but often experienced confusion fear and failure The Last Blank Spaces follows the arc of these explorations from idea to practice intention to outcome myth to reality Maritime Empires National Maritime Museum (Great Britain), 2004 Britain's overseas Empire pre eminently involved the sea In a two way process ships carried travellers and explorers trade goods migrants to new lands soldiers to fight wars and garrison colonies and also ideas and plants that would find fertile minds and soils in other lands These essays deriving from a National Maritime Museum London conference provide a wide ranging and comprehensive picture of the activities of maritime empire They discuss a variety of issues maritime trades among them the trans Atlantic slave trade Honduran mahogany for shipping to Britain the movement of horses across the vast reaches of Asia and the Indian Ocean the impact of new technologies as Empire expanded in the nineteenth century the sailors who manned the ships the settlers who moved overseas and the major ports of the Imperial world plus the role of the navy in hydrographic survey Published in association with the National Maritime Museum DAVID KILLINGRAY is Emeritus Professor of Modern History Goldsmiths College London MARGARETTE LINCOLN and NIGEL RIGBY are in the research department of the National Maritime Museum In the Wake of Cook David Mackay, 1985 After the epoch making voyages of exploration of Captain Cook a series of further exploratory missions was financed by the British government to add to the knowledge of the lands of the southern hemisphere a more minute examination of the coast was for example the brief of the voyage of the Investigator Specimens of plants and fauna were to be collected and useful products noted The combination of the commercial streak with a commitment to empirical science was typical of the interests of the eighteenth century This book traces the explorations and achievements of those who undertook missions of this kind as extensions of their patron's eyes as it were The commercial possibilities of cotton furs foodstuffs and other products were exploited to the full and the achievements of science thus helped to strengthen the imperial effort Notable figures include the distinguished naturalist Sir Joseph Banks and the notorious Captain Bligh of the Bounty The fascination and wide ranging story is told with full scholarly documentation and many new insights and discoveries Inside front cover Exploration and Empire Simon Adams, Ann Kramer, 1990 Describes historical and social events in various world nations during the period of exploration and exploitation from 1450 to 1760 Science, Empire and the European Exploration of the Pacific Tony Ballantyne, 2017 Romantic Indians Tim Fulford, 2006-01-26 Romantic Indians considers the views that Britons colonists and North American Indians took of each other during a period in which these people were in a closer and more fateful relationship than ever before or since It is therefore also a book about exploration empire and the forms of representation that exploration and empire gave rise to in particular the form we have come to call Romanticism in which Indians appear everywhere It is not too much to say that Romanticism would not have taken the form it did without the complex and ambiguous image of Indians that so intrigued both the writers and their readers Most of the poets of the Romantic canon wrote about them not least Southey Wordsworth and Coleridge so did many whom we have only recently brought back to attention including Bowles Hemans and Barbauld Yet Indians formative role in the aesthetics and politics of Romanticism has rarely been considered Tim Fulford aims to bring that formative role to our attention to show that the images of native peoples that Romantic writers received from colonial administrators politicians explorers and soldiers helped shape not only these writers idealizations of savages and tribal life but also their depictions of nature religion and rural society The romanticization of Indians soon affected the way that real native peoples were treated and described by generations of travellers who had already before reaching the Canadian forest or the mid western plains encountered the literary Indians produced back in Britain Moreover in some cases Native Americans writing in English turned the romanticization of Indians to their own ends This book highlights their achievement in doing so featuring fascinating discussions of several little known but brilliant Native American writers Exploration and Empire 1440-1760 Ann Kramer, Theodore Rowland-Entwistle, 1989 Writing imperial histories Andrew S.
