Speech of Rastafari Family and Kinship in East London Michael Young, Peter Willmott, 2013-05-13 First published in 1957 and reprinted with a new introduction in 1986 Michael Young and Peter Willmott's book on family and kinship in Bethnal Green in the 1950s is a classic in urban studies. A standard text in planning, housing, family studies and sociology, it predicted the failure in social terms of the great rehousing campaign which was getting under way in the 1950s. The tall flats built to replace the old slum houses were unpopular. Social networks were broken up. The book had an immediate impact when it appeared; extracts were published in the newspapers; the sales were a record for a report of a sociological study. Government ministers quoted it. But the approach it advocated was not accepted until the late 1960s and by then it was too late. This Routledge Revivals reissue includes the authors' introduction from the 1986 reissue reviewing the impact of the book and its ideas thirty years on. They argue that if the lessons implicit in the book had been learned in the 1950s, London and other British cities might not have suffered the anomie and violence manifested in the urban riots of the 1980s. Is This English? Race, Language, and Culture in the Classroom Bob Fecho, 2018-08-24 This is the story of a white high school English teacher, Bob Fecho, and his students of color who mutually engage issues of literacy, language learning and culture. Through his journey, Fecho presents a method of critical inquiry that allows students and teachers to take intellectual and social risks in the classroom to make meaning together and ultimately to transform literacy education. Features the voices, beliefs and struggles of urban adolescents and their teachers. This is a book about what it means to care about both who you teach and what you teach. It is a book about what it means to understand the broader social purposes of schooling and education as possible sites for the advancement of human liberation and the cultivation of democracy. Is this English? Probably. But it is also life. From the Foreword by Gloria Ladson Billings. At a time when most discussion of literacy focuses on either high stakes tests or phonics, it is refreshing to read Bob Fecho's journey in doing critical inquiry crossing cultural borders and engaging passionately and totally with high school students in an urban school. Sonia Nieto, author of What Keeps Teachers Going. Issues of race and struggles with self-identity eloquently permeate this text. This book is a fascinating read about life in a small urban learning community. I highly recommend it to others. Jennifer Obidah, University of California, Los Angeles. Gone is the Ancient Glory James Robertson, 2005 Spanish Town was Jamaica's capital for nearly 350 years and subsequently as a major urban centre. Its streets and squares witnessed key political and social transitions. But although the once proud city has lost all its ancient glory, Spanish Town has a rich and textured legacy. James Robertson guides the reader through the landmarks, identifying sites and scenes long lost and showing what is still there to be appreciated.

Dark Inheritance Brooke N. Newman, 2018-08-28 A major reassessment of the development of race and subjecthood in the British Atlantic. Focusing on Jamaica, Britain's most valuable colony in the Americas by the mid-eighteenth century, Brooke Newman explores the relationship between racial classifications and the inherited rights and privileges associated with British subject status. Weaving together a diverse range of sources, she shows how colonial racial ideologies rooted in fictions of blood ancestry at once justified permanent hereditary slavery for Africans and barred members of certain marginalized groups from laying claim to British liberties on the basis of hereditary status The Fuzzy Logic of Encounter Sünne Juterczenka,2009 From Jamaican Creole to Standard English Velma Pollard,2003 This guide indicates the ways in which Jamaican Creole differs from Standard Jamaican English It is organized into four sections words that look alike but mean different thing words that are different but mean the same things grammatical structures that are different but convey the same information and idiomatic Speech or writing Pidgins and Creoles: Volume 2, Reference Survey John A.
