Day,1996 Coming after the successful first volume the second volume covers the important topics of NASA relations with the military foreign space agencies and NASA industry university relations Organized in a similar format as volume I this book should be very useful to students of space exploration

Exploring the Unknown: Selected Documents in the History of the U.S. Civilian Space Program John M. Logsdon,1996

Exploring the Unknown ,1995      Exploring the Unknown National Aeronautics and Space Administration,John M. Logsdon,Roger D. Launius,David H. Onkst,Stephen J. Garber,2014-02-02 One of the most important developments of the twentieth century has been the movement of humanity into space with machines and people The underpinnings of that movement why it took the shape it did which individuals and organizations were involved what factors drove a particular choice of scientific objectives and technologies to be used and the political economic managerial and international contexts in which the events of the space age unfolded are all important ingredients of this epoch transition from an Earthbound to a spacefaring people This desire to understand the development of spaceflight in the United States sparked this documentary history series The extension of human activity into outer space has been accompanied by a high degree of self awareness of its historical significance Few large scale activities have been as extensively chronicled so closely to the time they actually occurred Many of those who were directly involved were quite conscious that they were making history and they kept full records of their activities Because most of the activity in outer space was carried out under government sponsorship it was accompanied by the documentary record required of public institutions and there has been a spate of official and privately written histories of most major aspects of space achievement to date When top leaders considered what course of action to pursue in space their deliberations and decisions often were carefully put on the record There is accordingly no lack of material for those who aspire to understand the origins and evolution of U S space policies and programs This reality forms the rationale for this series Precisely because there is so much historical material available on space matters the National Aeronautics and Space Administration NASA decided in 1988 that it would be extremely useful to have a selective collection of many of the seminal documents related to the evolution of the U S civilian space program that was easily available to scholars and the interested public While recognizing that much space activity has taken place under the sponsorship of the Department of Defense and other national security organizations the U S private sector and other countries around the world NASA felt that there would be lasting value in a collection of documentary material primarily focused on the evolution of the U S government s civilian space program most of which has been carried out under the agency s auspices since 1958 As a result the NASA History Office contracted with the Space Policy Institute of George Washington University s Elliott School of International Affairs to prepare such a collection This is the third volume in the documentary history series three additional ones detailing programmatic developments with respect to space transportation space science and human spaceflight will follow The documents selected for inclusion in this volume are presented in three major chapters each covering a particular aspect of the utilization of space capabilities and the unique characteristics of the space environment These chapters address 1 communicating via satellite 2 observing the Earth from space for practical purposes Earth science will be covered in a later volume and 3 the various ways in which space activities have had economic impacts Volume I in this series covered the antecedents to the U S space program as well as the origins and evolution of U S space policy and of NASA as an organizational institution Volume II addressed the relationship between the civilian space program of the United States and the space activities of other countries the relationship between the U S civilian and national security space and military efforts and NASA s relationship with industry and academic institutions As mentioned above future volumes will cover space transportation space science and human spaceflight

S. Civilian Space Program Volume II: External Relationships* John Logsdon,Dwayne Day,Roger Launius,1996-08-01 The documents selected for inclusion in this volume are presented in three chapters each covering a particular aspect of the evolution of U S space exploration These chapters address 1 the relations between the civilian space program of the United States and the space activities of other countries 2 the relations between the U S civilian space program and the space efforts of national security organizations and the military and 3 NASA s relations with industry and academic institutions NASA History Series SP 4407 Remembering the Space Age Steven J. Dick,2008 From the Publisher Proceedings of October 2007 conference sponsored by the NASA History Division and the National Air and Space Museum to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Sputnik 1 launch in October 1957 and the dawn of the space age Remembering the space age: Proceedings of the 50th Anniversary Conference , Proceedings of October 2007 conference sponsored by the NASA History Division and the National Air and Space Museum to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Sputnik 1 launch in October 1957 and the dawn of the space age NASA at 50 Rebecca Wright,Sandra Johnson,Steven J. Dick,United States. NASA History Program Office,2010 These interviews capture reflections from top decision makers as the space agency was completing its first 50 years Based on oral histories the book offers insights from those responsible for moving NASA through a deep transition from the end of the Space Shuttle Program the centerpiece of human spaceflight for three decades to the goals of the new policy known as the Vision for Space Exploration

NASA 50th Anniversary Proceedings: NASA's First 50 Years: Historical Perspectives Steven J. Dick,National Aeronautics and Space Administration,2010-07-07 On 29 July 1958 President Dwight D Eisenhower signed the National Aeronautics and Space Act creating the National Aeronautics and Space Administration NASA which became operational on 1 October of that year Over the next 50 years NASA achieved a set of spectacular feats ranging from advancing the well established field of aeronautics to pioneering the new fields of Earth and space science and human spaceflight In the midst of the geopolitical context of the Cold War 12 Americans walked on the Moon arriving in peace for all mankind Humans saw their home planet from a new perspective with unforgettable Apollo images of Earthrise and the Blue Marble as well as the pale blue dot from the edge of the solar system A flotilla of spacecraft has studied Earth while other spacecraft have probed the depths of the solar system and the universe beyond In the 1980s the evolution of aeronautics gave us the first winged human spacecraft the Space Shuttle and the International Space Station stands as a symbol of human cooperation in space as well as a possible way station to the stars With the Apollo fire and two Space Shuttle accidents NASA has also seen the depths of tragedy In this volume a wide array of scholars turn a critical eye toward NASA s first 50 years probing an institution widely seen as the premier agency for exploration in the world carrying on a long tradition of exploration by the United States and the human species in general Fifty years after its founding NASA finds itself at a crossroads that historical perspectives can only help to illuminate Fairing Well Christian Gelzer,2011 The Spoken Word II United States. National Aeronautics and Space Administration,2007 Exploring the Unknown: Using space ,1995 Exploring the Unknown ,1995 Voyager Stephen J. Pyne,2010-07-22 A brilliant new account of the Voyager space program its history scientific impact and cultural legacy Launched in 1977 the two unmanned Voyager spacecraft have completed their Grand Tour to the four outer planets and they are now on course to become the first man made objects to exit our solar system To many this remarkable achievement is the culmination of a golden age of American planetary exploration begun in the wake of the 1957 Sputnik launch. More than this, Voyager may be one of the purest expressions of exploration in human history. For more than five hundred years, the West has been powered by the impulse to explore, to push into a wider world. In this highly original book, Stephen Pyne recasts Voyager in the tradition of Magellan, Columbus, Cook, Lewis and Clark, and other landmark explorers. The Renaissance and Enlightenment, the First and Second Ages of Discovery, sent humans across continents and oceans to find new worlds. In the Third Age, expeditions have penetrated the Antarctic, ice reached the floors of the oceans, and traveled to the planets by new means, most spectacularly via semi-autonomous robot. Voyager probes how the themes of motive and reward are stunningly parallel through all three ages. Voyager, which gave us the first breathtaking images of Jupiter and Saturn, changed our sense of our own place in the universe.
