Colbert & William P. Colbert,2009-01-31 Helping Your Children with Reading and Writing at Home By Mary Ann Colbert Dr William P Colbert There really is no place like home when it comes to developing competent readers and writers And with the aid of our new world changing guide the process and the goal of developing lifelong readers and writers will be greatly facilitated Many years ago we set about finding out what type of reading and writing help parents and other adults were giving children and how it was working We asked everyone and anyone who would talk with us and we came up with some rather startling information to share in our guide Now talking with parents grandparents adults and children about the reading and writing activities they have experienced at home is second nature to us Through the years we have discovered that a great many things are happening in American homes relative to helping children in these areas and even greater things are possible The purpose of our book We like to call it a guide is to awaken parents grandparents and other adults who work with children to the great possibilities that are open to them that will revolutionize learning now and for future generations The ideas suggestions and strategies in our guide step off from the interests of the learners which are the best indicators of what the children are ready and able to learn next as opposed to curriculums and textbooks which often have an iron grip on what is available for young students to learn We show our readers how to take advantage of the great knowledge they have about their children and how to use it to guide their children s learning and more especially to identify what is the next appropriate step for their children to take in their learning All this is done in the home setting with family members participating and sharing the fruits of their learning labors Besides giant leaps in learning families can expect outstanding growth in family interpersonal relationships The family is actually drawn closer together by sharing their diverse interests At the onset of the guide adults are asked to compare their thinking on reading and writing learning with some of the experts in the field via a true false checklist This technique totally involves parents with the book from the start and parents are often surprised to see how their thinking coincides with experts in the field The next section contains three case studies that illustrate in detail exactly what some very effective adults did to further the reading and writing skills of the children with whom they worked The third sections contain some precise strategies that parents and other adults can begin using today with their children The next sections identifies what children see as effective reading and writing strategies that are used by parents and their teachers Section five is a summary of some ideas of some great teachers of reading and writing The ideas here are undergirded by some sound learning principles which every adult who works with children will want to know about The final section ends much like the guide begins with a checklist of some true false items that will help guide parents and other adults to increasing success in helping their children with reading and writing at home

How to Help Your Child Read Better Ruth Strang,2011-03-10 Can parents change or are they saddled with their present attitudes and habits Does understanding of a child and his problems of growing up make any real difference in what parents actually do or in how the child matures Many people today take a negative defeatist attitude toward those questions However there is a positive way of thinking about child growth and development We have sound psychological evidence that children learn under certain conditions when they feel a need for learning when the task is meaningful and appropriate to their ability when they can see results and when they experience satisfaction in the process and the product Parents can consciously help to create these conditions This is especially true in helping the child learn to read Parents not only can avoid creating situations in which the child becomes bored frustrated or resentful about reading they can also create situations in which the child can succeed with reasonable effort whatever his ability may be situations in which he can get some satisfaction from reading whether he reads a book of riddles an adventure story or fascinating facts about history or science In this book we have tried not to be prescriptive We do not want to sound like the voice of authority telling parents what to do about their child s reading Our aim is to give parents a background of understanding that will help them to determine their own role in the reading development of their child Many specific suggestions will be given as a reservoir of ideas from which parents may select any pattern or combination of patterns that seems appropriate to their child Thus they will become more competent and confident in their rightful role as co workers with teachers in the formal aspects of their child s education
