Merit, Justice, and the Political Theory of Academic

Knowledge Production Camilla Boisen, Matthew C. Murray, 2024-08-09 Academia has long established itself as an institution of knowledge and ideas Facing pressure many academic fields and institutions have turned their attention singularly and collectively to the task of what to do to rectify the causes of under representations both academic knowledge itself and who gets to be an academic producer of knowledge Boisen and Murray argue that simply solving the contemporary symptoms of inequity in ideas knowledge production and the academy is not enough Political Theory must be used to analyze why dominant ideas and institutions namely merit and the resulting meritocracy and meritocratic procedures were given power in the first place In using political theory and theories of justice the book argues that academia must radically shift rather than procedurally reform these methods of evaluation in order to achieve a more coherent approach to diversity in ideas academic knowledge producers and academic knowledge production which are necessary to bring about other forms of social change and reform in our larger world In questioning the ideals and the use of rival ideals to temper flawed concepts the present motivations and justifications for producing academic knowledge can be relegated as political tools allowing true meaningful reform Boisen and Murray show how contemporary crises in academia around diversification of perspectives can only be solved by considering the justifications of academic knowledge production and the inherent risk of retaining the established competitive and presumptively natural but ultimately biased methods of deriving academic authority

Crop Production and Global Environmental Issues Khalid Rehman Hakeem, 2015-12-08 Meeting the world's food security challenge will require a multi national collaborative effort to integrate the best research from science engineering and socioeconomics so that technological advances can bring benefits where they are most needed The present book covers the effect of major environmental problems on crop production and how to cope with these issues for sustainable agriculture and improvements of crops The world's population is predicted to hit 9.6 Billion by 2050 up from today's total of nearly 7.3 Billion and with it food demand is predicted to increase substantially The post war second agricultural revolution in developed countries and the green revolution in developing nations in the mid 1960s converted agricultural practices and elevated crop yields spectacularly but the outcome is levelling off and will not meet projected demand Simultaneously crop production is affected by many other factors including industrial pollution overuse of fertilizers and insecticides heavy metal and radiation stresses etc It has been noted that many pests are becoming resistant to insecticides Estimates vary but around 25% of crops can be lost to pests and diseases Climate change associated with agriculture is also a global issue Agriculture is a significant contributor to greenhouse gases and is estimated to account for 10-12% of total greenhouse gas GHG emissions Many of the issues highlighted are global problems and are addressed thoroughly in this work
