Beyond Strategic Kaizen Alin Postecă, 2023-02-16 Currently the challenge for manufacturing organizations is how to achieve their expected profit by continuously improving productivity or reducing costs Manufacturing organizations have been using different improvement approaches to achieving cost reduction and productivity improvement for years by eliminating various losses and waste structures such as excess inventory excessive workforce excessive capacity excessive utility consumption and so on But is the problem solved Unfortunately no Often manufacturing companies focus on maximizing the flow and meeting customer needs but forget their real aim to make a profit for their stakeholders Too many organizations meet customer expectations by seeking to continuously synchronize the flow to market demand but forget to check that they are doing it profitably enough to ensure business continuity and prosperity When the financial results show that they are not so profitable it is already too late Moreover the strategic direction of systematic improvements according to the sales trend depending on the current degree of production capacity utilization and its dynamic effects on cost structures is deficient in many manufacturing companies So would the failure of strategic and profitable systematic improvements be an option Of course not If the ultimate goal of the organization is to create target profit for stakeholders then the behavior and strategic systematic improvements must be directed to those scenarios strategies tasks problems and production levers that are best based on creating the target profit That s what Strategic Kaizen thinking does the simultaneous and consistent achievement of systematic operational and financial improvements in a strategic and operational manner It achieves both synchronous operations at market demand by fulfilling takt time and profitable operations in accordance with profit demand
