Grammar of Kwaza Hein van der Voort, 2008-08-22 This work contains a comprehensive description of Kwaza which is an endangered and unclassified indigenous language of Southern Rondônia Brazil. The Kwaza language also known in the literature as Koai is spoken by around 25 people today. Until recently our knowledge of Kwaza was based on only three short word lists from 1938, 1943 and 1984. Like the language, the culture and the history of its speakers are undocumented. The Kwaza people as an ethnic group have been decimated by increasing ecological, physical, social and cultural pressure from Western civilisation since contact in the past century. This is the situation for many indigenous peoples of Rondônia and of the Amazon region in general. Linguists expect that the majority of these peoples will cease to exist as distinct language communities during the coming decades. The present work is intended as a contribution to the documentation and preservation of the languages of the Amazon basin. In this respect Kwaza represents an especially urgent case in view of its undetermined classification, the lack of documentation and its endangered status. This work is based on the author's personal fieldwork conducted between 1995 and 2002 and it consists of three parts. Part I contains a thorough description of the phonology and morphosyntax of the language and a concise overview of its social, cultural and historical context. Part II contains a diverse selection of transcribed and translated texts with interlinear morphological analyses. Part III is a dictionary of Kwaza including many examples and an English Kwaza register. This complete description is of interest to linguists in general, scholars of South American languages in particular and anthropologists and historians interested in the Guaporé region.

Leaf Defence Edward E. Farmer, 2014-05-01 Leaves are among the most abundant organs on earth and are a defining feature of most terrestrial ecosystems. However, a leaf is also a potential meal for a hungry animal and the question therefore arises: why does so much foliage survive in nature? What mechanisms protect leaves so that on a global scale only a relatively small proportion of living leaf material is consumed? Leaf survival is in large part due to two processes: firstly, leaf-eating organisms fall prey to predators (top-down pressure on the herbivore); secondly, leaves defend themselves (bottom-up pressure on the herbivore Remarkably these two types of event are often linked they are controlled and coordinated by plants and the molecular mechanisms that underlie this are now beginning to emerge This novel text focuses exclusively on the leaf on the herbivorous organisms that attack leaves and the mechanisms that plants use to defend these vital organs It begins with an assessment of the scale of herbivory before examining direct physical and chemical defences on leaf surfaces and within the leaf itself Although some leaf defences are easily seen most operate at the molecular level and are therefore invisible to the naked eye Many of these recently elucidated mechanisms are described Throughout the book perspectives from both the laboratory and the field are combined A central feature of the work is its emphasis on the coevolution of leaf defences and the digestive tracts of animals including humans making the book of relevance in understanding the role of leaf defences in agriculture Leaf Defence is suitable for senior undergraduate and graduate students taking courses in plant science as well as a broader audience of biologists and biochemists seeking a comprehensive and authoritative overview of this exciting and emerging topic
