Fixing Superfund:

Footing the Bill for Superfund Cleanups Katherine N. Probst, Don Fullerton, Robert E. Litan, 2010-12-01 One of the difficulties associated with Superfund the federal government's program for cleaning up toxic waste sites in the United States is the poor understanding we have about who is actually bearing its costs While it is known that the tax on chemical and petroleum feedstocks raises about 570 million annually for the Superfund Trust Fund and the corporate environmental tax raises another 460 million each year further reliable data are only now becoming available Researchers are beginning to understand how much potentially responsible parties and their insurers are spending on both transaction costs and on site cleanups Unfortunately this is only the first part of the puzzle Ultimately these costs are borne by individuals as consumers of the products or services provided or as share or bond holders employees or managers of the company To date no one has attempted to estimate the distribution of initial costs under the Superfund liability system or examined carefully the indirect effects of the costs of the Superfund program on other industries In this book the authors develop information on who pays the costs and who bears the burden under the current liability scheme in Superfund on a site by site basis They look at short term financial implications of changes in liability and taxes on key sectors affected by Superfund chemicals oil mining wood preserving and commercial property casualty insurers They analyze the incidence of different taxing mechanisms and compare and contrast the financial effects on specific industries of the current Superfund program and of several alternative liability and tax based funding mechanisms available The alternative liability approaches examined include a scenario in which liability is eliminated for all sites created before Superfund was enacted as well as a scenario in which parties are released from liability at sites where municipal and industrial wastes were codisposed Because any change in liability will require a corollary change in trust fund revenues the authors also assess the economic implications of a variety of taxes that could be used to finance the creation of a larger trust fund for site cleanups These include an increase in the corporate environmental tax and the implementation of new taxes such as an excise tax on commercial insurance Don Fullerton is a professor of economics and public policy at Carnegie Mellon H John Heinz III School of Public Policy and Management Robert E Litan is a senior fellow at Brookings and formerly was deputy assistant attorney general in the Antitrust Division of the U S Department of Justice Paul R Portney is vice president and senior fellow at Resources for the Future Katherine N Probst is a fellow in the Center for Risk Management at Resources for the Future

Marie-Louise Larsson,2023-09-20 From its starting point within international law throughout its progression from regional to national law The Law of Environmental Damage combines the disciplines of environmental law liability law and insurance in its analysis of the development of reparative environmental law In the model adopted three generations of reparative schemes are identified based on civil liability or administrative liability or self taken measures from the area of insurance The analysis applied is based on factors of standard and designation of liability as well as the definition and assessment of environmental damage Issues such as environmental lender liability and damage to public natural resources are highlighted The results of the study are evaluated within the framework of a theory of environmental efficiency among other factors the reparative effect of liability rules is discussed Lees' Process Safety Essentials Sam Mannan,2013-11-12 Lees Process

Smith,2013-02-28 American manufacturing has been on the decline for at least two generations That fact is plain to any observer who travels through the Rust Belt of the Midwest where the closing of steel plants and automobile factories has created ghost towns that dot the landscape It is also clear from the dormant New England textile mills whose owners surrendered their production first to cheaper mills in the Southeast before they in turn lost out to Asian labor What caused this calamity and what can be done about it Andrew O Smith argues that we lost our manufacturing not simply to forces beyond our control such as globalization and cheaper labor overseas but as the result of misguided policies that are well within our abilities to reform for the benefit of manufacturing Examining six areas of public policy the tax system health care

the legal system workers compensation government regulations and labor policy Smith demonstrates that in each of these areas current policy choices have created a hostile environment for manufacturing Grounding his arguments not in polemic or ideology but in historical analysis and current research Smith illustrates his points with real world examples to show how a New Social Compact can fix the problems that manufacturers face without sacrificing public policy goals

Calculating Risks? James Hamilton, W. Kip Viscusi, 1999 By matching agency decision data to detailed census information using geographic information systems GIS technology the authors show that most hazardous waste sites do not pose sufficient risk to merit the most stringent cleanup options Those sites that do pose considerable risk to exposed populations often receive inadequate attention because government decisions to target cleanups are based more on political factors than on actual risks The authors propose policy reforms that could significantly reduce cleanup costs without sacrificing the protection of human health

BOOK JACKET Developing an Appropriate Contaminated Land Regime in China Xiaobo Zhao, 2012-12-13 Like all industrialized countries China has encountered increasing problems with land contamination in recent years Abandoned mining and manufacturing sites and obsolete industrial complexes while also creating new polluting industrial enterprises represent impending environmental threats More importantly a number of social and economic problems have developed and must be dealt with in some cases urgently Contaminated land laws and regulations have been established and have evolved in the US and UK and many other jurisdictions over the past few decades These regimes have substantially influenced the relevant legislation in the context of numerous Asian and European countries and will inevitably benefit similar legislative efforts in China This book is the first monograph that focuses on how China can learn from the US and UK with respect to contaminated land legislation and comprehensively illustrates how contaminated land law could be created in China It will be of interest to academics and practitioners in environmental law in China as well as the US and UK
