Java And Modern Europe Ambiguous Encounters:

Java and Modern Europe Ann Kumar, 2013-10-11 This book presents a case study of Europe's impact on an old and distinctive non-European civilisation. Part One deals with the elements in Europe's strength: technological, political and intellectual. It also uses Wallerstein's world systems perspective to give an economic dimension to this picture of the new world of Europe and then looks at the important question of the changing place of the Dutch in the new economic order from the seventeenth to the eighteenth century. This is followed by a brief account of the history of the Dutch East India Company in Java and its political effects. Part Two deals with the nature of the Javanese ancien regime both in court and in provincial circles with a focus on society and civilisation rather than those staples of Javanese historiography to date: political events and economic statistics. Part Three deals with the overall pattern set by the VOC's changing economic imperatives and with the impact of the successive tides of capitalism on three regional societies of Java. Part Four deals with intellectual shifts that took place in this period and argues that these shifts were less conservative than the socio-economic ones described in Part Three and though more fragile and vulnerable were crucial for the future. The conclusion attempts to show the significance of these developments for modern Indonesia and the way in which some of the dynamics begun in this period are being played out in the contemporary world.

Inventing the Performing Arts Matthew Isaac Cohen,2016-02-29 Indonesia with its mix of ethnic cultures cosmopolitan ethos and strong national ideology offers a useful lens for examining the intertwining of tradition and modernity in globalized Asia In Inventing the Performing Arts Matthew Isaac Cohen explores the profound change in diverse arts practices from the nineteenth century until 1949 He demonstrates that modern modes of transportation and communication not only brought the Dutch colony of Indonesia into the world economy but also stimulated the emergence of new art forms and modern attitudes to art disembedded and remooored traditions and hybridized foreign and local In the nineteenth century access to novel forms of entertainment such as the circus and newspapers which offered a new language of representation and criticism wrought fundamental changes in theatrical musical and choreographic practices Musical drama disseminated print literature to largely illiterate audiences

Javanese Gamelan and the West Sumarsam, 2013 Javanese Gamelan and the West studies the meaning forms and traditions of the Javanese performing arts as they developed and changed through their contact with Western culture. Authored by a gamelan performer teacher and scholar, the book traces the adaptations in gamelan art as a result of Western colonialism in nineteenth century Java, showing how Western musical and dramatic practices were domesticated by Javanese performers, creating hybrid Javanese Western art forms such as with the introduction of brass bands in gendhing mares court music and West Javanese tanjidor and Western theatrical idioms in contemporary wayang puppet plays. The book also examines the presentation of Javanese gamelan to the West, detailing performances in World's Fairs and American academia and considering its influence on Western performing arts and musical and performance studies. The end result is a comprehensive treatment of the formation of modern Javanese gamelan and a fascinating look at how an art form dramatizes changes and developments in a culture. Sumarsam is a University Professor of Music at Wesleyan University. He is the author of Gamelan Cultural Interaction and Musical Development in Central Java (University of Chicago Press, 1995) and numerous articles in English and Indonesian. As a gamelan musician and a keen amateur dhalang puppeteer of Javanese wayang puppet play, he performs, conducts workshops and lectures throughout the US, Australia, Europe and Asia.

The Sugar Plantation in India and Indonesia Ulbe Bosma, 2013-10-07 European markets almost exclusively relied on Caribbean sugar produced by slave labor until abolitionist campaigns began around 1800. Thereafter, importing Asian sugar and transferring plantation production to Asia became a serious option for the Western world. In this book, Ulbe Bosma details how the British and Dutch introduced the sugar plantation model in Asia and refashioned it over time. Although initial attempts by British planters in India failed, the Dutch colonial administration was far more successful in Java, where it introduced in 1830 a system of forced cultivation that tied local peasant production to industrial manufacturing. A century later, India adopted the Java model in combination with farmers' cooperatives rather than employing coercive measures. Cooperatives did not prevent industrial sugar production from exploiting small farmers and cane cutters, however, and Bosma finds that much of modern sugar production in Asia resembles the abuses of labor by the old plantation systems of the Caribbean.

Producing Indonesia Eric Tagliacozzo, 2014-02-26 The 26 scholars contributing to this volume have helped shape the field of Indonesian studies over the last three decades. They represent a broad geographic background: Indonesia, the Netherlands, the United Kingdom, Australia, the United States, Canada, and have studied in a wide array of key disciplines: anthropology, history, linguistics, and literature, government and politics, art history, and ethnomusicology. Together, they reflect on the arc of our field, the development of Indonesian studies over recent tumultuous decades. They consider what has been achieved and what still needs to be accomplished as they interpret the groundbreaking works of their predecessors and colleagues. This volume is the product of a lively conference sponsored by Cornell University, with contributions revised following those interactions. Not everyone sees the development of Indonesian studies in the same way. Yet one senses and this collection confirms that disagreements among its practitioners have fostered a vibrant resilient intellectual community Contributors discuss photography and the creation of identity the power of ethnic pop music cross border influences on Indonesian contemporary art violence in the margins and the shadows inherent in Indonesian literature These various perspectives illuminate a diverse nation in flux and provide direction for its future exploration Empire and Science in the Making P.
