concepts theories methods and models that shape spatial oriented approaches to the social sciences Expert Systems and Geographic Information Systems for Impact Assessment Agustin Rodriguez-Bachiller, John Glasston, 2004-08-12 Impact Assessment is becoming part and parcel of an increasing number of development proposals in the UK and Europe As the practice of Impact Assessment develops it becomes more standardized and good practice starts to be defined However the quality of Impact Assessment is still far from satisfactory Expert Systems and GIS for Impact Assessment The Ashgate Research Companion to Planning Theory Patsy Healey, 2016-11-03 At a time of potentially radical changes in the ways in which humans interact with their environments through financial environmental and or social crises the raison d'être of spatial planning faces significant conceptual and empirical challenges This Companion presents a multidimensional collection of critical narratives of conceptual challenges for spatial planning The authors draw on various disciplinary traditions and theoretical frames to explore different ways of conceptualising spatial planning and the challenges it faces Through problematising planning itself the values which underpin planning and theory practice relations contributions make visible the limits of established planning theories and illustrate how by thinking about new issues or about issues in new ways spatial planning might be advanced both theoretically and practically There cannot be definitive answers to the conceptual challenges posed but the authors in this collection provoke critical questions and debates over important issues for spatial planning and its future A key question is not so much what planning theory is but what might planning theory do in times of uncertainty and complexity An underlying rationale is that planning theory and practice are intrinsically connected The Companion is presented in three linked parts issues which arise from an interactive understanding of the relations between planning ideas and the political institutional contexts in which such ideas are put to work key concepts in current theorising from mainly poststructuralist perspectives and what discussion on complexity may offer planning theory and practice

This book explores how transportation models can play a role in a changing transport planning and policy making context. Most models are rooted in decades of development work and are geared to offer value free academic and explicit knowledge to transport planning experts. However, planning practice has changed dramatically over the years, resulting in a less technical, rational view on the use of such knowledge, especially so in early strategy making phases. More and more complex policy goals, integration of a wide area of other policy domains, a wider, ever-changing and much more mixed group of planning participants, and much more focus on wicked problems. The book maps how this influences the effectiveness of transport modelling exercises and explores several state-of-the-art implementations. This book was published as a special issue of Transport Reviews.

Sitte, Hegemann and the Metropolis Charles Bohl, Jean-François Lejeune, 2009-06-02. These essays from leading names in the field weave together the parallels and differences between the past and present of civic art. Offering prospects for the first decades of the twenty-first century, the authors open up a broad international dialogue on civic art, which relates historical practice to the contemporary meaning of civic art and its application to community building within today's multi-cultural modern cities. The volume brings together the rich perspectives on the thought, practice, and influence of leading figures from the great era of civic art that began in the nineteenth century and blossomed in the early twentieth century, as documented in the works of Werner Hegemann and his contemporaries, and considered fundamental to contemporary practice.

Planning and the Intelligence of Institutions Enrico Gualini, 2018-02-06. This title was first published in 2001. The hierarchical approach of regional planning institutions is facing crisis. In an era of globalization, the conditions of urban growth dynamics are dependent on innovation, entrepreneurial, and economic structures.
