Psychology and Geriatrics Benjamin A. Bensadon, 2015-04-16 Psychology and Geriatrics demonstrates the value of integrating psychological knowledge and insight with medical training and geriatric care Leading physician and geropsychologist contributors come together to share their collective wisdom about topics that are as emotionally uncomfortable as they are universally relevant As the world struggles to respond to unprecedented gains in life expectancy and an explosion of new retirees living with chronic health conditions this collaboration could not be more timely This exceptional resource is itself evidence that physicians and psychologists can work together to optimize truly patient centered geriatric care Here at last is a scientifically rigorous evidence based response to the aging mind and body from those most expertly trained Illustrates why and how psychologists must assume a more integrated role in meeting the health care needs of older patients Confronts emotionally laden topics such as cognitively impaired driving caregiver burden end of life communication suicide and systemic issues such as bias payment and the culture of medicine Challenges decades long barriers to integration from both physician and psychologist perspectives suggesting how they can finally be overcome Provides an innovative practical response to academic medicine s growing emphasis on psychological and behavioral science Demonstrates how health care reform creates a behavioral health niche that clinical psychologists are uniquely qualified to fill

The Dictionary of Psychology Ray Corsini, 2016-12-05 With more than three times as many defined entries biographies illustrations and appendices than any other dictionary of psychology ever printed in the English language Raymond Corsini s Dictionary of Psychology is indeed a landmark resource The most comprehensive up to date reference of its kind the Dictionary also maintains a user friendliness throughout This combination ensures that it will serve as the definitive work for years to come With a clear and functional design and highly readable style the Dictionary offers over 30 000 entries including interdisciplinary terms and contemporary slang more than 125 illustrations as well as extensive cross referencing of entries Ten supportive appendices such as the Greek Alphabet

Medical Prescription Terms and biographies of more than 1 000 deceased contributors to psychology further augment the Dictionary's usefulness. Over 100 psychologists as well as numerous physicians participated as consulting editors and a dozen specialist consulting editors reviewed the material. Dr Alan Auerbach, the American Psychological Association's de facto dictionary expert, served as the senior consulting editor. As a final check for comprehensiveness and accuracy, independent review editors were employed to re-examine, re-review, and re-approve every entry.

Aging Lewis R. Aiken, 1994-08-17

The aging process is a complex, sometimes mysterious evolution we will all experience. In this interdisciplinary text, author Lewis R. Aiken acquaints you with the elements and effects influencing people in the later stages of life. Beginning with an historical overview of gerontology, Aiken discusses both pragmatic and philosophical concerns within the field. Factors impacting the process and results of aging are carefully outlined and explicated; these address such areas as biology, psychology, sociology, economics, and politics. The interpersonal variability of the older population is stressed throughout the book, recognizing gender, ethnic, racial, and cultural differences. Each chapter concludes with a thorough review of the material covered, a series of questions and activities designed to enhance the learning experience, and a list of suggested readings that expand on the topics being discussed. Clearly written, authoritative, rich in information, and integration of research material in a wide range of disciplines, Aging: An Introduction to Gerontology is valuable for undergraduate certificate and community college programs in gerontology as well as graduate courses in applied professional disciplines. The book makes a contribution to the field; it is a praiseworthy effort and it has substantive merit. It reveals competence, good grasp of the subject matter, and a very good integration of research material in a wide range of disciplines. The information is generally very much up to date and relevant. It constitutes the right introduction for people interested to learn about the field of gerontology. The text is lucid, clearly written, and easy to read. It is definitely well attuned to its targeted audience. It introduces technical terminology with all the proper caveats and facilitates its comprehension with a glossary.

Abraham Monk, School of Social Work, Columbia University

This is a basic textbook of human gerontology that comprehensively covers aging and the aged, with a special emphasis on the psychology of aging. The purpose is to review what is known about aging and older adulthood, the methods by which this information is obtained, and to provide practical guidelines for dealing with the problems of an aged population. The author meets these goals very well. This book is written for undergraduate and graduate students. Even geriatricians in training will find this a lucid exposition of human gerontology. This book's well-organized chapters are clearly illustrated. There are boxes that highlight concepts and a list of further readings in addition to well-cited references. At the end of each chapter, there are questions and exercises. This textbook is a welcome addition to the field. It is very well written and organized. Both teachers and students will enjoy using this textbook. Rating: 98.

Geriatric Psychology Richard A. Hussian, 1981 National Directory of Educational Programs in Gerontology, 1976 The Clinical Psychology of Aging Martha Storandt, Ilene C. Siegler, Merrill F. Elias, 2012-12-06 It has been estimated that there are at least 2 500 000 adults 10% of the population above age 65 who are currently in need of some sort of mental health services Kramer Taube and Redick 1973 Other estimates are even higher e g Pfeiffer 1977 It is expected that this number will increase as the number of older adults increases over the next 40 years Probably less than 400 clinical psychologists are now providing services to this age group The number of elderly patients actually seen by these psychologists is very very small One national survey found that of 353 psychologists who reported that they had older clients only 495 individuals were seen for psychological testing and 1423 for psychotherapy in the one month just prior to the response Dye in press Assuming that the same individuals were not seen for both testing and therapy within the one month period a questionable assumption approximately 08% of the at least two and one half million older adults in need of psychological services are now being supplied with these services in some form or another Thus the need for increased involvement of clinical psychology with the aged is undeniable However few resources currently exist which will serve to increase the number of clinical psychologists trained to meet this need Probably less than 100 clinical psychologists living today have received any kind of formal graduate training in the clinical psychology of the aging Storandt 1977      Psychology of Aging Brian P.
