

A photograph of a dirt road winding through a forest. The trees on either side have autumn-colored foliage in shades of orange, yellow, and brown. The road leads towards a bright light at the end of the path, creating a strong perspective. The overall mood is serene and contemplative.

Getting Things Right Conor McHugh, Jonathan Way, 2022-09-29 Some of our attitudes are fitting others unfitting It seems fitting to admire Mandela but not Idi Amin and to believe that the Seine flows through Paris but not that the Thames does Fitting attitudes get things right Conor McHugh and Jonathan Way argue that fittingness is the key to understanding the normative domain the domain of reasons obligations and value They develop and defend a novel fittingness first approach on which fittingness is a normatively basic property and all other normative properties depend on fittingness They show how this approach illuminates central questions in ethics and epistemology How to Get Things Right Beatriz

Ombudsman, 2009 In 2007/08 the Parliamentary Ombudsman received 7 341 complaints about government departments and a range of other public bodies Of these 2 574 were about the Department for Work and Pensions DWP This is not surprising given the size and nature of DWP's business serving as they do over 20 million customers at any one time It is understandable even inevitable that mistakes will happen What is important is how DWP dealt with the complaints arising from mistakes Many but by no means all of the complaints received could have been resolved much sooner and by DWP themselves if the complaint handling had been more customer focused This report contains an anonymised digest of selected cases highlighting poor information delays poor record keeping poor communication Local resolution of complains should be the most efficient way to secure an appropriate outcome It is hoped the report will encourage DWP to seek ways to improve the service they provide to citizens Am I Dumb or are Others?
