Berkowitz, 2000 While the customary path to achievement in traditional China was through service to the state from the earliest times certain individuals had been acclaimed for repudiating an official career This book traces the formulation and portrayal of the practice of reclusion in China from the earliest times through the sixth century by which time reclusion had taken on its enduring character Those men who decided to withhold their service to state governance fit the dictum from the Book of Changes of a man who does not serve a king or lord he elevates in priority his own affairs This characterization came to serve as a byword of individual and voluntary withdrawal the image of the man whose lofty resolve could not be humbled for service to a temporal ruler Men who eschewed official appointments in favor of pursuing their own personal ideals were known by such appellations as hidden men yinshi disengaged persons yimin high minded men gaoshi and scholars at home chushi What distinguished these men was a particular strength of character that underlay their conduct they received approbation for maintaining their resolve their mettle their integrity and their moral and personal values in the face of adversity threat or temptation This book reveals that those who opted for a life of reclusion had a variety of motivations for their decisions and conducted widely divergent ways of life The lives of these men epitomize the distinctive nature of substantive reclusion differentiating them from those of the intelligentsia who on occasion voiced their desire for disengagement or for retreat but who nevertheless found or retained their places in government office Throughout the author places the recluse and reclusion within the social political intellectual religious and literary contexts of the times

Invisible Families Mignon Moore, 2011-07-30 Mignon Moore's title says it all Invisible Families Scholarship on lesbian and gay issues has been slow to recognize the importance of children and family among those in same sex relationships and has paid scant attention to racial minorities nor have students of African American life given much attention to Black lesbians and gay men We are left with the unfortunate impression to paraphrase the authors of But Some of Us Are Brave that all the lesbians and gays are White and all the Blacks are heterosexual This book stands as a significant corrective to these multiple myopias offering a nuanced account of the kinds of pressures Black women raising children with female partners encounter and revealing the creativity and resilience they bring to the struggle Ellen Lewin University of Iowa author of Gay Fatherhood Narratives of Family and Citizenship in America Invisible Families shakes up longstanding theoretical conceptualizations of racial identity family formation and motherhood contesting basic assumptions about black families Tightly conceptualized and highly engaging Kerry Ann Rockquemore author of Raising Biracial Children Lucian Tauno Yliruusi, 1970 A-gypsyng Anna Blake Mezquida, 1922 NPNF1-08.
