High Technology Policies A Five Nation Comparison:

High-technology Policies Richard R. Nelson, 1984 National Policies For Developing High Technology Industries Francis W. Rushing, 2019-03-14 This book discusses the informatics industry in Brazil France India Japan Korea Mexico Taiwan and the U S as models to examine the role of governments in promoting advanced technology It considers the long range policy analysis and evaluation necessary for fostering competitive industry International High-technology Competition Frederic M. Scherer, 1992 Innovation comparative advantage and R Case study evidence on R Imports exports and intra industry trade R D reactions to import competition Growth Policy in the Age of High Technology Jurgen Schmandt, Robert Wilson, 2018-03-29 Originally published in 1990 this book provides an authoritative and detailed account of the initiatives of US state governments with science and technology programs designed to foster economic growth Two key questions are posed Do state governments have policy instruments that are sufficiently powerful to affect the levels and growth rates of their regional economies and Are national and global economic forces so powerful that they render state action ineffective Several subsidiary themes are discussed in this context namely the most commonly used policy instruments the impacts on federalism and on governance and how well the universities and other educational institutions serve the economic activities imposed on them Global Competitiveness of U.S. Advanced-technology Manufacturing Industries, 1991 Federal Financial Support for High-technology Industries, 1985 High-Tech Europe Wayne Sandholtz, 2024-07-26 Governments have recognized for decades the dynamic role played by microelectronics computers and telecommunications in the modern economy Although Europe's deficiencies in these crucial sectors had long been acknowledged it was not until the 1980s that European nations began collaborating to develop and promote high tech industries Their collaboration gives rise to many questions Why for example did the joint efforts come at such a late date rather than in the 1960s or 70s And how is it possible to work together in economically sensitive areas These questions point to fundamental issues in the areas of international cooperation international institutions and technology policy Before the institution of the collaborative programs ESPRIT European Strategic Programme for Research and Development in Information Technology RACE R D in Advanced Communications technologies in Europe and EUREKA European Research Coordination Agency in the 1980s each European country sought its own technological renaissance through protection of national firms behind walls of technical standards procurement preferences and research subsidies This thoroughly researched work examines the breakdown of these walls It will appeal to political scientists economists and scholars of technology and Western Europe interested in the political contours of the high tech landscape This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893 Voices Revived makes high quality peer reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print on demand technology This title was originally published in 1992

Investment in Research and Development United States. Congress. Joint Economic Committee, 1988 "Rich Nation, Strong Army" Richard J. Samuels, 2018-08-06 Since World War II Japan has become not only a model producer of high tech consumer goods but also despite minimal spending on defense a leader in innovative technology with both military and civilian uses In the United States nearly one in every three scientists and engineers was engaged in defense related research and development at the end of the Cold War but the relative strength of the American economy has declined in recent years What is the relationship between what has happened in the two countries And where did Japan s technological excellence come from In an economic history that will arouse controversy on both sides of the Pacific Richard J Samuels finds a key to Japan s success in an ideology of technological development that advances national interests From 1868 until 1945 the Japanese economy was fired by the development of technology to enhance national security the rallying cry Rich Nation Strong Army accompanied the expanded military spending and aggressive foreign policy that led to the disasters of the War in the Pacific Postwar economic planners reversed the assumptions that had driven Japan s industrialization Samuels shows promoting instead the development of commercial technology and infrastructure By valuing process improvements as much as product innovation the modern Japanese system has built up the national capacity to innovate while ensuring that technological advances have been diffused broadly through industries such as aerospace that have both civilian and military applications Struggling with the uncertainties of a post Cold War economy the United States has important lessons to learn from the way Japan has subordinated defense production yet emerged as one of the most technologically sophisticated nations in the world The Japanese like the Venetians and the Dutch before them show us that butter is just as likely as guns to make a nation strong but that nations cannot hope to be strong without an ideology of technological development that nourishes the entire national economy Regional Innovation Potential: The Case of the U.S. Machine Tool Industry Steven R. Nivin, 2018-01-12 This title was first published in 2000 Steven Nivin analyzes a process vital to economic development technological change He furthers understanding of the processes driving innovation so that we may gain a deeper insight into the development of economies Specifically the study explores the concept of innovation potential and the factors that result in variations in innovation potential across metropolitan areas using the US machine tool industry as a case study To provide a comparison the same models are also estimated for the semiconductor industry The findings indicate that urbanisation economies localization economies human capital universities and invention derived knowledge are significant factors The study assesses the contributions of three different skill levels of human capital college educated graduate degree and locally produced PhD s in mechanical and electrical engineering Only the graduate and PhD degree measures are found to be significant indicating the importance of having a highly skilled pool of labour within the region The influences of the factors appear to be similar across industries with some slight differences The transfer of knowledge through patents is also studied It is found that the transmission of this knowledge is slower between different industries relative to the transmission

within the same industry The Technological Specialization of Advanced Countries D. Archibugi, Mario Pianta, 2013-04-17 Advanced countries have shown an increasing convergence in their economic performance and technological intensity with a relative decline of the position of the United States and the emergence of the European and Japanese economies The Technological Specialization of Advanced Countries moves beyond aggregate patterns and examines the sectoral structure of technological activities the process of specialization and the impact on national performance Indicators of technology and of scientific activity are examined together with other economic and R D data providing a wealth of empirical evidence on the activities and areas of strength and weakness of individual countries The amount of disaggregated data provided and the assessment offered on the state of art in science and technology indicators make The Technological Specialization of Advanced Countries an important reference work A description of the fields of national effort is provided and a special study is devoted to the fields of greater innovative dynamism where patenting has grown most rapidly Over time countries have concentrated their technological efforts in the fields of their greater strength under the pressure of increasing international competition and the proprietary nature of know how Conversely in science there has generally been a decrease in the degree of specialization with countries entering new fields of research taking advantage of the open flow of scientific knowledge For science and technology policy the findings of The Technological Specialization of Advanced Countries suggest that national efforts should be combined with the growing international integration The aims of maintaining established areas of strength and of developing new specializations in emerging fields should be balanced and a more selective policy at the sectoral level is suggested Competitiveness Matters Candace Howes, Ajit Singh, 2010-08-27 This book argues against the current view that competitiveness that is the competitiveness of the manufacturing sector matters to the long term health of the U S economy and particularly to its long term capacity to raise the standard of living of its citizens The book challenges the arguments popularized most recently by Paul Krugman that competitiveness is a dangerous obsession that distracts us from the question most central to solving the problem of stagnant real income growth namely what causes productivity growth especially in the service sector The central argument is that if the U S economy is to achieve full employment with rising real wages it is necessary to enhance the competitiveness of its tradable goods sector The book shows that current account deficits cannot be explained by macroeconomic mismanagement but are rather the consequence of an uncompetitive manufacturing sector It finds that the long term health of the manufacturing sector requires not only across the board policies to remedy problems of low or inefficient investment but also sectoral policies to address problems that are strategic to resolving the balance of payments problems Lessons are drawn from the experience of some European and Asian countries This book will be of interest to economists political scientists and business researchers concerned with the place of the manufacturing sector in overall health of the U S economy with issues of industrial policy and industrial restructuring and with the conditions for rising standards of living Candace Howes is Associate Professor Barbara Hogate Ferrin Chair preference to others What are the competitive implications of large firm mergers and alliances for government policy These are extremely important and highly topical questions which tend to be treated separately in most contemporary analysis However in this new book based on his original research Neil Kay shows how these questions are closely inter related and explores the implications this has for the formulation of corporate strategy and public policy Science and Technology Policy Takefumi Tanaka,1992 Research and Development in Indian Industry Govind Chand Beri,1993 The American Corporation Today Carl Kaysen,1996 Here is the American corporation from every angle its postwar history its relation to the law its financing its impact on technological innovation its role as employer and as political force and much more The contributors all of whom are recognized experts in their fields not only tackle many of the same key areas that the contributors to Mason s classic study looked at but they also illuminate issues that have only arisen in recent years
