Clark II,2012-12-05 The Next Economics focuses on how the field of economics must change and incorporate environment energy health and new technologies that are called externalities for stopping and reversing climate change The field of economics needs to become a science Economics in this book for the Green Industrial Revolution which goes beyond the third industrial revolution since it covers cases examples and specific economic analyses that both scientific and global The book concerns climate change and how the Economics for Externalities needs to range from energy and national security to infrastructure and communities Solutions and cases of the Next Economics are based in western philosophical economic paradigms and how that is changing due to the significance of current global economic and societal concerns Finally practical applications for economics are explored using global environmental and energy issues Areas that need a fresh look at and be integrated with economics include the environment social and political issues energy health climate change and their infrastructures as they are major components of the macroeconomics for the future Based on past economic models these subjects have been lost or ill fitted into modern economic theory The challenge is to explore and to look deeply into economics in order to provide it a new direction with the possibility for understanding changing and saving the planet from climate change This book presents to economists and policy makers alike areas of environmental economics energy policy health and social issues which are needed to stop and reverse climate change The Impacts of Automotive Plant Closure Andrew Beer,Holli Evans,2013-09-13 Economic restructuring has been a notable feature of so called mature industrial economies such as the UK and Australia in the last two decades with deregulation privatisation technological change and globalisation combining to reshape such economies Some industries have grown while others have declined Moreover while overall employment in the UK and Australia has grown many newly created positions require skills not found in the industries shedding labour or are in casualised and low paid occupations Many lesser skilled workers leaving declining industries are therefore at risk of long term unemployment or leaving the workforce entirely Both mental and physical health can be affected after redundancy It is therefore crucial that the measures put in place in many domains of social policy such as formal health policy employment assistance community development housing assistance and so on to adequately address the difficulties confronting this group This volume takes a closer look at the impact of manufacturing notably automotive plant closures in the UK Birmingham and Australia Adelaide in recent years and policy responses to those closures It attempts to tease out differences in policy response and effectiveness and attempts to identify areas where policy could be made to work better in terms of adjusting to large scale manufacturing change and resulting job losses In so doing it begins for the first time we believe to take a comparative approach to understanding the impact of plant closures and policy responses This book was published as a special issue of Policy Studies

Augustine, 2007 This analysis of the relationship between science and totalitarian rule in one of the most technically advanced countries in the East bloc examines professional autonomy under dictatorship and the place of technology in Communist ideology In Cold War era East Germany the German tradition of science based technology merged with a socialist system that made technological progress central to its ideology Technology became an important part of East German socialist identity crucial to how Communists saw their system and how citizens saw their state In Red Prometheus Dolores Augustine examines the relationship between a dictatorial system and the scientific and engineering communities in East Germany from the end of the Second World War through the 1980s Drawing on newly opened archives and extensive interviews Augustine looks in detail at individual scientists interactions with the East German system examining the effectiveness of their resistance against the party's totalitarian impulses She explains why many German scientists and engineers who were deported to the Soviet Union after World War II returned to East Germany rather than defecting to the capitalist West traces scientists attempts to hold on to some aspects of professional autonomy and describes challenges to their professional identity on the factory floor Augustine examines the quality of science and technology produced under Communist rule looking at failed research projects and clashing cultures of innovation She looks at technological myth building in science fiction and propaganda She explores individual career strategies including the role played by gender in high tech professions and the ways that both enterprises and individuals responded to increasing state and party control of research during the 1980s We cannot understand the economic choices made by East Germany Augustine argues unless we understand the cultural values reflected in the East German belief in technology as indispensable to progress and industrial development
