Pieter Mijer, 1919 Building on Batik Michael Hitchcock, Wiendu Nuryanti, 2016-12-05 The word batik is possibly of Malay origin from the word tik meaning to drip or to drop The term is applied to a resist dye technique invented independently in locations as diverse as Ancient Egypt Japan and Turkestan Batik is a remarkably flexible textile technique and is suited to small scale methods of production but demand from the fashion and tourism industries is increasing This volume brings together the experiences and concerns of the international community of batik producers It gives voice to their suggestions for ensuring that the producers of this traditional craft are integrated into its increasingly global production rather than excluded from it Building on the work of batik designers and producers the book discusses the emergence of a global craft consciousness Batik producers report on innovative measures taken both individually and collectively to hold their market position while commercial producers frequently annex and mass produce traditional batik design The book concludes with a discussion of marketing and production innovations and tourism which enable the producers of batik to maintain the integrity of their designs whilst harnessing the benefits of new commercial forms The Domestication of Desire Suzanne April Brenner, 2012-10-11 While doing fieldwork in the modernizing Javanese city of Solo during the late 1980s Suzanne Brenner came upon a neighborhood that seemed like a museum of a bygone era Laweyan a once thriving production center of batik textiles had embraced modernity under Dutch colonial rule only to fend off the modernizing forces of the Indonesian state during the late twentieth century Focusing on this community Brenner examines what she calls the making of the unmodern She portrays a merchant enclave clinging to its distinctive forms of social life and highlights the unique power of women in the marketplace and the home two domains closely linked to each other through local economies of production and exchange Against the social political and economic developments of late colonial and postcolonial Java Brenner describes how an innovative commercially successful lifestyle became an anachronism in Indonesian society thereby challenging the idea that tradition invariably gives way to modernity in an evolutionary progression Brenner's analysis centers on the importance of gender to processes of social transformation. In Laweyan, the base of economic and social power has shifted from families in which women were the main producers of wealth and cultural value to the Indonesian state which has worked to reorient families toward national political agendas. How such attempts affect women's lives and the meaning of the family itself are key considerations as Brenner questions long held assumptions about the division between domestic and public spheres in modern society.
