Hidden Web Finding Quality Information On The Net:

The Hidden Web William O. Scheeren, 2012-02-02 Google is certainly a useful Internet search tool for general topics but most of the information available on the Invisible Web can't be found through Google. This book explains the value of the Invisible Web and how to access it. Most students and researchers possess only rudimentary Internet searching skills. The majority of school and public librarians are not aware of the breadth and depth of information available on the Hidden Web. This is unfortunate as the ability to navigate the Hidden Web in schools and public libraries is essential to locating the most current and authoritative information. The Hidden Web A Sourcebook serves as a valuable source of information about the Hidden Web much of which comprises websites containing statistical information or data from a wide variety of government agencies. The concepts, search techniques and specific websites presented will be helpful in information literacy instruction and the teaching of research skills.

A Guide to Finding Quality Information on the Internet Alison Cooke, 2001 This book addresses the growing problem of how to sort the quality sites from the mass of junk available. Uniquely it suggests a system of criteria and guidelines developed through empirical research for selecting and evaluating high quality information resources. It also advises on devising checklists and rating schemes for numerically evaluating the quality of information. This edition updates the user on the latest developments in Internet based search tools for locating quality information including search engines, subject catalogues and directories, rating and reviewing services, subject based gateway services, virtual libraries. Information and guidance about the new Resource Discovery Network, the potential role and usefulness of metadata in locating quality information and using web citations for retrieving quality material have also been added to this edition. Step by step examples have been included on how to evaluate particular types of resources available via the Internet.
