Innovation, Networks and Localities Manfred M. Fischer, Luis Suarez-Villa, Michael Steiner, 2012-12-06 The relationship between innovation networks and localities is of central concern for many nations However despite increasing interest in the components of this research triangle efforts in these fields are hampered by a lack of conceptual and empirical insights This volume brings together contributions from a distinguished group of scholars working in different but related disciplines and aims to provide a fresh look at this research triangle The objective is to offer a concise overview of current developments and insights derived from recent studies in Europe and North America All of the contributions are based on original research undertaken in the various regions and nations and are published here for the first time We are grateful to all those who have contributed to this volume for their willingness to participate in the project Without their co operation this book would not have been possible We should like in addition to thank Angela Spence for her careful linguistic editing and assistance in co ordinating the production of the camera ready copy Lastly but not least we wish to express our gratitude for support from our home institutions and in particular the Austrian Academy of Sciences Institute for Urban and Regional Research the Austrian Ministry for Science and Transport the Styrian Government Section for Science and Research and the Federation of Austrian Industry in Styria for the financial backing received April 1999 Manfred M Oversight Hearings on the Service Contract Act United States. Congress. House. Committee on Education and Labor. Subcommittee on Labor-Management Relations, 1982 Are Regions Prepared for Industry 4.0? János Abonyi, Tímea Czvetkó, Gergely Marcell Honti, 2020-09-15 The concept of industry 4 0 is spreading worldwide and readiness models exist to determine organizational or national maturity On the other hand the regional perspective of the digital transformation is yet to be widely researched

although it significantly determines how the concept of industry 4.0 can be introduced to the organisations This book identifies the regional aspect of industry 4.0 and provides a regional NUTS 2 classified industry 4.0 indicator system model that is based on open data sources This new model serves as a tool to evaluate regional economy to support governmental decisions It also provides territorial councils with a decision support tool for field investment decisions And finally this model offers investors with a heat map to evaluate regional economies successful implementation of industry 4.0 solutions

OECD Reviews of Regional Innovation: Basque Country, Spain 2011 OECD,2011-04-07 Through a diagnostic of the innovation system and the policy mix in the Basque country this review offers some policy and governance recommendations to help achieve the region's desired transition in light of global trends in the innovation process and innovation policy

Industrial Property Rick Ball,Andy C. Pratt,2018-01-12 This volume first published in 1994 is the first collection of original research on the relationships between industrial property and economic development The contributors all specialists in their field highlight the emerging conflicts between the users and the providers of industrial premises conflicts that may undermine economic potential The need for flexibility in the use and provision of industrial premises is explored in three contexts the transformation of the urban fringe the development of hi tech premises and the redevelopment of old or derelict premises International Trade in Services Olivier Cattaneo,Michael Engman,Sebasti n S ez,Robert M. Stern,2010-06-24 The services sector is key to economic growth competitiveness and poverty alleviation Comprising more than two thirds of the world economy services are now commonly traded across borders helped by technological progress and the increased mobility of persons In recent years a number of developing countries have looked at trade in services as a means to both respond to domestic supply shortages and to diversify and boost exports Any country can tap into the trade potential of services but not every country can become a services hub across sectors The opening of the services sector potentially comes with large benefits but also fears and costs that should not be overlooked This book provides useful guidelines for the assessment of a country's trade potential and a roadmap for successful opening and export promotion in select services sectors It looks at both the effects of increased imports and exports and provides concrete examples of developing country approaches that have either succeeded or failed to maximize the benefits and minimize the risks of opening It focuses on sectors that have been rarely analyzed through the trade lens and or have a fast growing trade potential for developing countries These sectors are accounting construction distribution engineering environmental health information technology and legal services This book is designed for non trade specialists to understand how trade can help improve access to key services in developing countries and for trade specialists to understand the specific characteristics of each individual sector It will be a useful tool for governments to design successful trade opening or promotion strategies and for the private sector and consumers to advocate sound domestic policy reforms accompanying an offensive trade agenda Working Regions Jennifer Clark, 2013-05-29 Working Regions focuses on policy aimed at building sustainable and resilient regional economies in the wake of the global recession Using examples of four working regions regions where research and design functions and manufacturing still coexist in the same cities the book argues for a new approach to regional economic development It does this by highlighting policies that foster innovation and manufacturing in small firms focus research centers on pushing innovation down the supply chain and support dynamic design driven firm networks This book traces several key themes underlying the core proposition that for a region to work it has to link research and manufacturing activities namely innovation and production in the same place Among the topics discussed in this volume are the issues of how the location of research and development infrastructure produces a clear role of the state in innovation and production systems and how policy emphasis on pre production processes in the 1990s has obscured the financialization of intellectual property Throughout the book the author draws on examples from diverse industries including the medical devices industry and the US photonics industry in order to illustrate the different themes of working regions and the various institutional models operating in various countries and regions The Global Competitiveness of Regions Robert Huggins, Hiro Izushi, Daniel Prokop, Piers Thompson, 2014-06-27 The aim of this book is to consider theoretically the notion of the global competitiveness of regions as well as giving attention as to how such competitiveness may be empirically measured With this in mind the book has three specific objectives first to place the concept of regional competitiveness within the context of regional economic development theory second to present a rationale and method for quantifying the global competitiveness of regions and third to undertake the most geographically widespread analysis of regional competitiveness differences across the globe With regard to the third goal the analysis incorporates more than 500 regions across Europe North and South America Asia Pacific the Middle East and the so called BRIC economies of Brazil Russia India and China The importance of the concept of competitiveness has increased rapidly in recent years with the issues surrounding it becoming at the same time more empirically refined and theoretically complex The focus on regions reflects the growing consensus that they are the primary spatial units that compete to attract investment and it is at the regional level that knowledge is circulated and transferred resulting in agglomerations or clusters of industrial and service sector enterprises This growing acknowledgement of the region's role as a key spatial unit of organisation has led to attention turning to competitiveness at a more regional level The book explores the results of the World Competitiveness Index of Regions WCIR covering the rankings and results of the 2014 edition The WCIR provides a tool for analysing the development of a range of regional economies across the globe It enables an illustration of the changing patterns of regional competitiveness on the international stage to be generated In fundamental terms the WCIR aims to produce an integrated and overall benchmark of the knowledge capacity capability and sustainability of each region and the extent to which this knowledge is translated into economic value and transferred into the wealth of the citizens of each region Innovation in Estonian Enterprises, 2007 Essentials of Marketing High Technology William L.
