Framing Places Mediating Power In Built Form:

Framing Places Kim Dovey, 1999 Framing Places investigates how the built forms of architecture and urban design act as mediators of social practices of power. It is an account of how our lives are framed within the clusters of rooms, buildings, streets, and cities we inhabit. Kim Dovey contends that the nature of architecture and urban design, their silent framings of everyday life, lend them to practices of coercion, seduction, and authorization. The book draws from a broad range of social theories and deploys three primary analyses of built form: namely, the analysis of spatial structure, the interpretation of constructed meanings, and the interpretation of lived experience. These approaches to programme, text, and place are woven together through a series of narratives on specific cities: Berlin, Beijing, and Canberra, and Melbourne, and building types: this corporate tower, shopping mall, and domestic house.

Framing Places Kim Dovey, 2014-04-23 Framing Places is an account of the nexus between place and power, investigating how the built forms of architecture and urban design act as mediators of social practices of power. Explored through a range of theories and case studies, this examination shows how lives are framed within the clusters of rooms, buildings, streets, and cities. These silent framings of everyday life also mediate practices of coercion, seduction, and authorization as architects and urban designers engage with the articulation of dreams, imagining, and constructing a better future in someone's interest. This second edition has been thoroughly revised and updated to include a look at the recent Grollo Tower development in Melbourne and a critique on Euralille, a new quarter development in Northern France. The book draws from a broad range of methodology, including analysis of spatial structure, discourse analysis, phenomenology. These approaches are woven together through a series of narratives on specific cities: Berlin, Beijing, and Bangkok, and global building types, including the corporate tower, shopping mall, domestic house, and enclave.

Foucault, Politics, and Architecture Farzaneh Haghighi, 2018-10-01 To examine the political role of architecture this book presents an original engagement with the largest center of attraction in Tehran namely its bazaar Through a rigorous study it goes beyond the conventional sociopolitical and architectural discourses of this marketplace by considering architecture as an event This book offers alternative modes of spatial thinking on a micropolitical level Emphasis is placed on the focused exploration of key notions mainly drawn from the works of Michel Foucault It deploys effective methods and shows how philosophical concepts can be deployed as a tool to analyse the ways through which architecture transforms individuals through the act of exchange whether of words things bodies or thoughts Narratives of Place in Literature and Film Steven Allen, Kirsten Møllegaard, 2018-12-12 Narratives of place link people and geographic location with a cultural imaginary through literature and visual narration Contemporary literature and film often frame narratives with specific geographic locations which saturate the narrative with cultural meanings in relation to natural and man made landscapes This interdisciplinary collection seeks to interrogate such connections to probe how place is narrativized in literature and film Utilizing close readings of specific filmic and literary texts all chapters serve to tease out cultural and historical meanings in respect of human engagement with landscapes Always mindful of national cultural and topographical specificity the book is structured around five core themes Contested Histories of Place Environmental Landscapes Cityscapes The Social Construction of Place and Landscapes of Belonging Ceremony and Ritual in Parliament Shirin M. Rai, 2013-10-18 Ceremony and Ritual in Parliament breaks new ground in the study of legislatures It combines mainstream historical and social science approaches with cultural theory to consider how parliamentary ritual is constructed through ceremony space and socialisation The focus is on the marginalised groups especially women and members of ethnic minorities who seek inclusion as representatives in democratic legislatures This book assesses aspects of the role that ceremony and ritual in legislatures play especially but not exclusively in their gendered and racialised dimensions Within this broad frame it considers the impact of space identity ritual and or ceremony on the institutional form of parliament how power is shaped within it how the behaviour of members is facilitated constrained and shaped how power and rituals interact to and how they impinge upon the relationships between representative institutions and citizens Contributions are theoretical and empirical comparative or single country studies of national or sub national legislatures They have interdisciplinary historical or postcolonial perspectives that contribute to this emerging field in the study of parliaments This book was previously published as a special issue of the Journal of Legislative Studies Constructing a Sense of Place Haim Yacobi, 2017-05-15 While it is widely recognized that architects and their architecture play a key role in constructing a sense of place the inherent nexus between an architectural ideology and the production of national space and place has so far been neglected Focusing on the Zionist ideology this book brings together practising architects and academics to critically examine the role of architects architecture and spatial practices as mediators between national ideology and the politicization of space The book first of all sets out the wider context of theoretical debates concerning the role of architecture in the process of constructing a sense of place then divides into six main sections The book not only provides an innovative new perspective on how the Israeli state had developed but also sheds light on how architecture shapes national identity in any post colonial and settler state Consuming Architecture Daniel Maudlin, Marcel Vellinga, 2014-03-05

Projecting forward in time from the processes of design and construction that are so often the focus of architectural discourse Consuming Architecture examines the variety of ways in which buildings are consumed after they have been produced focusing in particular on processes of occupation appropriation and interpretation Drawing on contributions by architects historians anthropologists literary critics artists film makers photographers and journalists it shows how the consumption of architecture is a dynamic and creative act that involves the creation and negotiation of meanings and values by different stakeholders and that can be expressed in different voices In so doing it challenges ideas of what constitutes architecture architectural discourse and architectural education how we understand and think about it and who can claim ownership of it Consuming Architecture is aimed at students in architectural education and will also be of interest to students and researchers from disciplines that deal with architecture in terms of consumption and material culture

Feminist Practices Lori A. Brown, 2016-04-15 Women continue to be extremely under represented in the architectural profession Despite equal numbers of male and female students entering architectural studies there is at least 17 25% attrition of female students and not all remaining become practicing architects In both the academic and the professional fields of architecture positions of power and authority are almost entirely male and as such the profession is defined by a heterosexual Eurasian male perspective This book argues that it is vital for all architectural students and practitioners to be exposed to a diversity of contemporary architectural practices as this might provide a first step into broadening awareness and transforming architectural engagement It considers the relationships between feminist methodologies and the various approaches toward design and their impact upon our understanding and relationship to the built environment In doing so this collection challenges two conventional ideas firstly the definition of architecture and secondly what constitutes a feminist practice This collection of up and coming female architects and designers use a wide range of local and global examples of their work to question different aspects of these two conventional ideas While focusing on feminist perspectives the book offers insights into many different issues concerns and interpretations of architecture proposing through these types of engagement architecture can become more culturally politically and environmentally relevant This next generation of architects claim feminism as their own and through doing so help define what feminism means and how it is evolving in the 21st century

Transforming Public Space through Play Gregor H. Mews, 2022-04-21 This book provides an empirical analysis of the concept of play as a form of spatial practice in urban public spaces The introduced City Play Framework CPF is a practical urban analysis tool that allows urban designers landscape architects and researchers to develop a shared awareness when opening up this window of possibility for adventure Two case studies substantiate and illustrate the development process and testing of the framework in Canberra Australia and Potsdam Germany The appropriation of public spaces that transcend boundaries can facilitate an intrinsic connection between people and their immediate environment towards a more joyful ontological state of human existence in which imagination co creation and a sense of agency are key elements of the design approach The framework presents an alternative understanding of public spaces and public life reflecting on theory and its implications for practice in a post pandemic world in dense urban centres A bridge between theory and practice this book explores possibilities on what future design ought to be when openness and ambiguity are consciously integrated parts of practice and process The book presents a valuable discussion on public space and play for academic audiences across a wide range of disciplines such as landscape architecture urban design planning architecture and urban sociology which is informative for future practice

Writing the Global City Anthony D King, 2016-04-14 Over the last three decades our understanding of the city worldwide has been revolutionized by three innovative theoretical concepts globalisation postcolonialism and a radically contested notion of modernity The idea and even the reality of the city has been extended out of the state and nation and re positioned in the larger global world In this book Anthony King brings together key essays written over this period much of it dominated by debates about the world or global city Challenging assumptions and silences behind these debates King provides largely ignored historical and cultural dimensions to the understanding of world city formation as well as decline Interdisciplinary and comparative the essays address new ways of framing contemporary themes the imperial and colonial origin of contemporary world and global cities actually existing postcolonialisms claims about urban and cultural homogenisation and the role of architecture and built environment in that process Also addressed are arguments about indigenous and exogenous perspectives Eurocentricism ways of framing vernacular architecture and the global historical sociology of building types Wide ranging and accessible Writing the Global City provides essential historical contexts and theoretical frameworks for understanding contemporary urban and
