

systems of notation for them but in the meantime we must have as large a collection of annotated records as possible.

CHAIRMAN: I think it is quite clear that one wants all of the records possible, but that the process is not complete when it has been recorded. Either the collector himself should make the transcription or if he cannot he should get someone to assist with him.

It is now time that we should close this symposium. I am sorry that we have not been able to finish on quite the same note that the symposium on collecting did, but I suppose that after all archiving is not quite as human a subject. I think it would not be possible to summarize easily all that we have said here but I am sure we have brought up a number of questions that we may be trying to answer through the year.

End of Symposium

SYMPOSIUM III

Making Folklore Available

FIRST SESSION

Chairman: Mr. Jean O'Halloran

CHAIRMAN: In this third symposium we plan to discuss the problem of making folklore available (1) to the scholar and (2) to the general public. The first of these has been dealt with to a certain extent in Symposium II on archiving, and we can touch on it again at a later session. It will be well at this morning session for us to turn attention on making folklore available to the public.

The subject subdivides itself into various sections: making folklore available through museums, the radio, the schools, public stages and story-tellers, folk-dance groups, folklore books for the general public, and through record albums. In addition Dean Thompson has added some other suggestions: through local folklore societies, folklore journals, and folk festivals. Mr. Alan Lomax has kindly offered to open up the discussion.

MR. ALAN LOMAX (New York City): The question of making folklore available seems to me always raises uncomfortable points which we can avoid so long as we stick to strictly laboratory folklore. Because when we begin to make folklore available, we come into contact with all sorts of other fields, with other cultural workers. And these cultural workers begin to ask questions about us and about our material. They say, "Well, why concern yourself with folklore and why bother us with your material?" As long as we just collect and classify nobody bothers with us very much. The sociologist and anthropologist look in upon us, and feel that we are somehow their brothers, and they worry about their business. But when folklorists appear as beneficiaries of the public and providers of public taste, etc., then folks ask why, and I think they are fair in raising that question.

First of all, in terms of the history of our craft, there is no question about why it has been supported, why national folklorists centers on the life and education of the author Bruno Nettl a well known ethnomusicologist Focusing on eleven individuals who influenced him significantly it follows their roles through his career from his childhood in Czechoslovakia and his family's forced departure in 1939 to his education in the United States and career as a scholar These essays contribute to an understanding of the life of Jewish and German minorities in Bohemia through the first half of the 20th century of pre World War II Prague of the experience of intellectual and academic refugees in the United States during and after World War II and of the early development of ethnomusicology as a field of study This work opens with the author's exploration of the careers of his father the well known music historian Paul Nettl and his mother Gertrud Nettl a pianist and piano teacher From his boyhood in Prague Nettl provides insights into his own evolution as a musicologist He discusses the rise of the discipline of ethnomusicology from the studies of Native American music by his mentor George Herzog to the work of linguist C F Voegelin and folklorist Stith Thompson He also looks back on the contribution and input of his principal consultants in his fieldwork on Native American Iranian and Indian music These essays contribute significantly to the history of musicology containing the longest to date treatments of the contributions of the distinguished scholars Paul Nettl and George Herzog This work will interest students and scholars of immigration history Native American culture and the history of ethnomusicology itself

Defining the Yiddish Nation Itzik Nakhmen Gottesman, 2003 Defining the Yiddish Nation examines the evolution of Yiddish folklore and the pioneering work of three important folklore circles in independent Poland the Warsaw group led by Noyekh Prilutski the S Ansky Vilne Jewish Historical Ethnographic Society and the YIVO Ethnographic Commission Much more than a study of one particular folklore tradition however Defining the Yiddish Nation reveals how the work of the Yiddish folklorists sought to connect Jewish identity with the past while simultaneously contributing to an autonomous Jewish national culture that would help reshape the present and create a future

BOOK JACKET Nettl's Elephant Bruno Nettl, 2010-10-01 From one of the most lauded scholars in ethnomusicology comes this enlightening and highly personal narrative on the evolution and current state of the field of ethnomusicology Surveying the field he helped establish Bruno Nettl investigates how concepts such as evolution geography and history serve as catalysts for advancing ethnomusicological methods and perspectives This entertaining collection covers Nettl's scholarly interests ranging from Native American to Mediterranean to Middle Eastern contexts while laying out the pivotal moments of the field and conversations with the giants of its past Nettl moves from reflections on the history of ethnomusicology to evaluations of the principal organizations in the field interspersing those broader discussions with shorter essays focusing on neglected literature and personal experiences

Staging Tradition Michael Ann Williams, 2024-03-18 Based on extensive archival research and oral history Staging Tradition traces the parallel careers of the creators of the Renfro Valley Barn Dance and the National Folk Festival Through their devotion to the staging of traditional culture including folk country and bluegrass music John Lair 1894 1985 and Sarah Gertrude Knott 1895 1984 became two of the mid twentieth century's most notable producers Lair and Knott's discovery of new developments in theater and entertainment during the 1920s led the pair to careers that kept each of them center stage. Inspired by programs such as WLS's Barn Dance and the success of early folk events, Lair promoted Kentucky musicians. Knott staged her own radically inclusive festival which included Native and African American traditions and continues today as the National Folk Festival. Michael Ann Williams shows how Lair and Knott fed the public's fascination with the art of the common man and were in turn buffeted by cultural forces that developed around and beyond them. *Arthur S.
