Framework For The Development Of National Shipping Policies

Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Transport Committee

Framework For The Development Of National Shipping Policies:

Framework for the Development of National Shipping Policies United Nations. Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific, 1999 In the last decade developing countries in the Asia Pacific region achieved a high degree of economic growth and this was accompanied by a rapid increase in sea carried overseas trade In 1998 nine out of the world's twenty largest container ships were from Asia but their ownership was limited to a handful of countries in the region The disparity between the success stories and the shipping services of the majority of the region's developing countries is very wide and still widening Part of the explanation for this is that while developing countries wish to maintain a shipping presence their shipping industries have not been afforded the high priority within the industrial development of these countries Recently countries in the region have recognised that shipping services are an important element of continued economic growth and that unless concerted action is taken their national shipping services will be marginalised by the global competition The dilemma for many countries is this on the one hand they wish to maintain a presence through the development of national shipping capabilities on the other hand they want their overseas trade to enjoy the competitive shipping services offered by foreign shipping lines National maritime administrations must evaluate the shipping potential of their country and formulate appropriate shipping policies to reconcile these issues The focus of this publication is trade and service related shipping policies It sets out issues that should be considered by policy makers in determining national shipping policies and provides a framework and the tools to analyse these issues A policy that is appropriate for one country may not be appropriate for another and so each country has to work out its shipping policies in the overall context of national economic objectives and its shipping potential

The proposal for a national policy statement on ports Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Transport Committee, 2010-03-17 National Policy Statements NPS are a key component of the new planning system for nationally significant infrastructure projects introduced by the Planning Act 2008 The Act stipulates that a proposal for a National Policy Statement will be subject to public consultation and allows for parliamentary scrutiny before designation as national policy by the Secretary of State The draft Ports National Policy Statement Department for Transport 2009 has been welcomed by many organisations as a good start which can be built upon The Committee has recommended a number of modifications and expects the Department will improve the draft as a result of the consultation and scrutiny processes The Committee has reservations regarding the Government's 2007 policy for ports and the lack of guidance on location for port development in the NPS but this of itself does not make the NPS unfit for purpose But the Committee cannot recommend designation at this stage on two counts Firstly a key related policy statement the National Networks NPS has yet to be published Secondly the organisation likely to be one of the principal decision makers for port development the Marine Management Organisation has yet to be established and so has been unable to comment on guidance that will be of great importance to its role These are fundamental flaws in the consultation process and the Ports NPS should not be designated until they are rectified

Routledge Handbook of National and Regional Ocean Policies Biliiana Cicin-Sain,David Vanderzwaag,Miriam C. Balgos,2015-05-15 This comprehensive handbook prepared by leading ocean policy academics and practitioners from around the world presents in depth analyses of the experiences of fifteen developed and developing nations and four key regions of the world that have taken concrete steps toward cross cutting and integrated national and regional ocean policy All chapters follow a common framework for policy analysis While most coastal nations of the world already have a variety of sectoral policies in place to manage different uses of the ocean such as shipping fishing oil and gas development in the last two decades the coastal nations covered in the book have undertaken concerted efforts to articulate and implement an integrated ecosystem based vision for the governance of ocean areas under their jurisdiction This includes goals and procedures to harmonize existing uses and laws to foster sustainable development of ocean areas to protect biodiversity and vulnerable resources and ecosystems and to coordinate the actions of the many government agencies that are typically involved in oceans affairs The book highlights the serious conflicts of use in most national ocean zones and the varying attempts by nations to follow the prescriptions emanating from the 1982 UN Law of the Sea Convention and the outcomes of the 1992 2002 and 2012 sustainable development summits The interrelationship among uses and processes in the coast and ocean requires that ocean governance be integrated precautionary and anticipatory Overall the book provides a definitive state of the art review and analysis of national and regional ocean policies around the world

The National Planning Policy Framework Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Communities and Local Government Committee,2011-12-21 This report recommends that a default answer of yes to development should be removed from the National Planning Policy Framework NPPF The phrase significantly and demonstrably must also be removed from the presumption that all planning applications should be approved unless the adverse effects significantly and demonstrably outweigh the benefits because it adds a further barrier to the achievement of truly sustainable development The definition of sustainable development is inadequate and often conflated with sustainable economic growth The framework gives the impression that greater emphasis should be given in planning decisions to economic growth undermining the equally important environmental and social elements of the planning system The NPPF should require local planning decisions to be taken in accordance with the presumption in favour of sustainable development consistent with Local Plans It is unacceptable that so many parts of England have yet to develop and adopt a new Local Plan Clarity within the NPPF has suffered in the pursuit of brevity Inconsistent drafting could create gaps in planning policy or guidance that could lead to a huge expansion in the size of Local Plans as local authorities attempt to plug those gaps The test for viability as currently worded risks allowing unsustainable developments to go ahead if measures to make them sustainable are deemed to make them unviable for the developer MPs also call for a sensible transition period to give local authorities time to put Local Plans in place where they have not already done so

International Handbook of Leadership for Learning Tony Townsend, John MacBeath, 2011-07-10 The International Handbook of Leadership for Learning brings together chapters by distinguished authors from thirty one countries in nine different regions of the world The handbook contains nine sections that provide regional overviews a consideration of theoretical and contextual aspects system and policy approaches that promote leadership for learning with a focus on educating school leaders for learning and the role of the leader in supporting learning It also considers the challenge of educating current leaders for this new perspective and how leaders themselves can develop leadership for learning in others and in their organisations especially in diverse contexts and situations The final chapter considers what we now know about leadership for learning and looks at ways this might be further improved in the future The book provides the reader with an understanding of the rich contextual nature of learning in schools and the role of school leaders and leadership development in promoting this It concludes that the preposition for between the two readily known and understood terms of leadership and learning changes everything as it foregrounds learning and complexifies rather than simplifies what that word may mean Whereas common terms such as instructional leadership reduce learning to outcomes leadership for learning embraces a much wider developmental view of learning
