

A photograph of a cemetery at night. In the foreground, a glowing, ethereal, yellowish-orange figure, resembling a ghost or a spirit, stands on a dirt path. The figure is out of focus, giving it a spectral appearance. In the background, several wooden crosses of various sizes are visible, some illuminated by a warm light. The scene is framed by a dark, textured border.

Drinking from the Cosmic Gourd B. Nyamnjoh, 2017-03-15 This book questions colonial and apartheid ideologies on being human and being African, ideologies that continue to shape how research is conceptualised, taught, and practiced in universities across Africa. Africans immersed in popular traditions of meaning-making are denied the right by those who police the borders of knowledge to think and represent their realities in accordance with the civilisations and universes they know best. Often the ways of life they cherish are labelled and dismissed too eagerly as traditional knowledge by some of the very African intellectual elite they look to for protection. The book makes a case for sidestepped traditions of knowledge. It draws attention to Africa's possibilities, prospects, and emergent capacities for being and becoming in tune with its creativity and imagination. It speaks to the nimble-footed, flexible-minded frontier African at the crossroads and junctions of encounters, facilitating creative conversations and challenging regressive logics of exclusionary identities. The book uses Amos Tutuola's stories to question dualistic assumptions about reality and scholarship and to call for conviviality, interconnections, and interdependence between competing knowledge traditions in Africa.
