Laeken Council:

Europe Stefania D'Avanzo, 2012-11-30 Following the entry into force of the Treaty of Amsterdam on 1 May 1999 and the European Council at Tampere in October 1999 the European Union committed itself to developing a common policy on immigration and asylum to ensure more effective management of migration flows to the EU From 2001 to 2005 Directives were introduced by the EU in order to guarantee refugees and displaced people civil and human rights and promote a balance of efforts between Member States in receiving such persons thus improving the process of harmonisation Nevertheless EU policy and legislation did not prove to be as effective as expected For example Europe's response to the crisis of displaced Iraqis has been hugely inadequate with European governments failing to fairly share the responsibility for Iraqi refugees with one another and with other countries around the world This study aims to investigate the extent to which the language employed in the Directives has contributed to the failure to adopt common procedures for guaranteeing refugees civil and human rights Particularly vagueness of lexis and legal concepts were investigated Vagueness in normative texts is a crucial issue People may not necessarily and not always be aware of vagueness in language use while in other cases they choose deliberately to be vague This holds particularly true for the use of vagueness in normative texts which are usually taken to have a high degree of precision Bhatia Engberg Gotti and Heller 2005 It is worth noting that in EU legislation Directives represent particular legislative instruments involved in EU harmonisation processes The Council of Ministers Fiona Hayes-Renshaw, Helen Wallace, 2017-09-16 The Council of Ministers provides a comprehensive analysis of the Council of Ministers how it works its varied activities functions and its relationships with the other key EU institutions and the member states It is a key legislative institution which lies at the fulcrum of decision making in the European Union

The Great Deception Christopher Booker, Richard North, 2021-08-19 Since its publication in 2003 The Great Deception has taken on the role of the Eurosceptics bible with the third edition helping to fuel the debate during the 2016 EU Referendum This fourth edition celebrates the moment when the UK broke away from the European Union having been extensively re edited to incorporate newly available archive material and updated to include the tumultuous events of recent years The Great Deception therefore tells for the first time the inside story of the most audacious political project of modern times from its intellectual beginnings in the 1920s when the blueprint for the European Union was first conceived by a British civil servant right up to the point when the UK resumes its path as an independent sovereign nation after 47 years of membership of the European project in its various guises Drawing on a wealth of new evidence and existing sources scarcely an episode of the story does not emerge in startling new light from the real reasons why de Gaulle kept Britain out in the 1960s to the fall of Mrs Thatcher and the build up to the referendum campaign which had its roots in the Maastricht Treaty The book chillingly shows how Britain's politicians were consistently outplayed in a game the rules of which they never understood It ends by evaluating the post referendum negotiations and asking whether this is the end of an episode or just a new beginning      The Rise and Fall of the European Constitution NW Barber, Maria Cahill, Richard Ekins, 2019-01-10

The Draft European Constitution was arguably both an attempt to constitutionalise the Union re framing that project in the language of the state and an attempt to stretch the boundaries of constitutionalism itself re imagining that concept to accommodate the sui generis European Union The partial failure of this project is the subject of this collection of essays The collection brings together leading EU constitutional scholars to consider with the benefit of hindsight the purportedly constitutional character of the proposed Constitutional Treaty the reasons for its rejection by voters in France and the Netherlands the ongoing implications of this episode for the European project and the lessons it teaches us about what constitutionalism really means      National Interests and European Integration K. Milzow, 2015-12-11 This study combines an account of Blair Chirac Schröder and their attitudes towards European integration It analyzes political discourses on national interests and the EU the frequently debated role of political discourse the concept of national interest and offers an alternative point of view on intergovernmental interaction      Foreign policy aspects of the Lisbon Treaty Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Foreign Affairs Committee, 2008-01-20 Although this report mainly examines the foreign policy aspects of the Lisbon Treaty the Committee makes some general comments on the process leading to signing of the Treaty Chapters examine the 2007 Intergovernmental Conference process foreign policy in that process foreign policy in the Lisbon Treaty new foreign policy posts the European External Action Service and the European Security and Defence Policy The Government should have provided more information to Parliament during Spring 2007 about its approach to the renewed EU Treaty reform process Parliament was entitled to expect adequate time to be consulted and to be able to make an input into the contents of the Treaty through the Government After the Treaty was finalised Parliament was also entitled to have adequate time to make a thorough examination of the Treaty's detailed impact on the EU and the United Kingdom constitution Parliament has been denied these opportunities on both counts The procedure followed meant that the 2007 Intergovernmental Conference mandate was agreed with little scope for UK public or Parliamentary debate and engagement This sets an unfortunate precedent which is damaging to the credibility of the institutional reform process itself The Committee believes the creation of the post of High Representative for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy and of the European External Action Service represent major and significant innovations in the EU's foreign policy making machinery These developments and two UK inspired Declarations on the Common Foreign and Security Policy are the only material differences between the provisions on foreign affairs in the Constitutional Treaty and those in the Lisbon Treaty      The Past, Present and Future of the European Union A. Deardorff, 2004-05-11 This volume collects selected papers on the European Union from the 13th Congress of the International Economic Association held in Lisbon September 2002 It starts with an address by Romano Prodi President of the European Commission who sets the tone for the other papers by describing and evaluating two of the greatest accomplishments of the EU economic and monetary union and EU enlargement Other authors

German politics with general theorizing and conceptual grounding in international relations and political science

Institutionalisation beyond the Nation State Elaine Fahey, 2018-04-26 This volume collects papers that explore institutionalisation in contemporary transatlantic relations Policymakers lawyers and political scientists reflect on contemporary understandings of the process as an integration of regimes and orders from an EU perspective The papers assess whether contemporary transatlantic relations call for a different approach to global governance with a heightened emphasis on institutionalisation The book explores a diverse range of case studies of interest to a broad readership In particular it focuses upon two cutting edge issues transatlantic data privacy rules that are emerging after the post Edward Snowden NSA PRISM revelations and trade aspects especially the Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership TTIP Agreement The contributors consider these case studies from a variety of perspectives honing in on the dynamism method and high politics of transatlantic relations as they have recently evolved They critically explore the commonly held assumption that transatlantic relations have historically been considered quasi institutionalised at best or at worst lacking in terms of laws and institutions Is institutionalisation a useful meeting point for all disciplines Does it explain regional integration meaningfully across subjects Can institutionalisation serve to promote accountability and good governance Contributors across disciplines and subjects address these increasingly challenging and salient questions

Precedents and Judicial Politics in EU Immigration Law Marie De Somer, 2018-07-27 This study explores the use of precedents in the case law of the Court of Justice of the European Union CJEU It argues that a strategic use of precedent based discourses aids the Court in developing its jurisprudence autonomously that is independent of the political preferences of EU member states The study is based on a long term assessment of CJEU case law in the politically sensitive area of immigration law It traces the Court's rulings in this area from the 1970s up until the most recent period The study identifies a series of consistent discursive patterns that slowly but surely moved EU immigration law beyond what member states had intended The work takes an interdisciplinary approach engaging with both political science and legal discussions on the Court of Justice and its role in processes of European integration
