License to Harass Laura Beth Nielsen, 2009-01-10 Offensive street speech racist and sexist remarks that can make its targets feel both psychologically and physically threatened is surprisingly common in our society Many argue that this speech is so detestable that it should be banned under law But is this an area covered by the First Amendment right to free speech Or should it be banned In this elegantly written book Laura Beth Nielsen pursues the answers by probing the legal consciousness of ordinary citizens Using a combination of field observations and in depth semistructured interviews she surveys one hundred men and women some of whom are routine targets of offensive speech about how such speech affects their lives Drawing on these interviews as well as an interdisciplinary body of scholarship Nielsen argues that racist and sexist speech creates reproduces and reinforces existing systems of hierarchy in public places The law works to normalize and justify offensive public interactions she concludes offering in essence a license to harass Nielsen relates the results of her interviews to statistical surveys that measure the impact of offensive speech on the public Rather than arguing whether law is the appropriate remedy for offensive speech she allows that the benefits to democracy to community and to society of allowing such speech may very well outweigh the burdens imposed Nonetheless these burdens and the stories of the people who bear them should not remain invisible and outside the debate License to Harass Laura Beth Nielsen, 1999

will examine mature industries and newer industries In examining mature industries we can trace the long term consequences of government policies We can see the cause and the effect We can see which policies resulted in innovation and progress and which did not In identifying the results of past policies we can predict the future consequences of today s policy debates Virtually everyone claims to support innovation and progress But claiming such support and advocating policies that make innovation possible are not the same thing We cannot discern the difference merely on the basis of claims and professed intentions We must look at the principles the fundamental ideas being advocated
