Parliament. House of Commons. Communities and Local Government Committee,2008 Remaking Community? Andrew Wallace,2016-03-23 New Labour deployed community as a conceptual framework to rearticulate the state citizen relationship to be enacted at and through new spaces of governance An important example of this was how successive New Labour governments sought to renovate the social political and economic cultures of poor neighbourhoods and generate trajectories of strong empowered and ordered civic space This was pursued through programmes such as the New Deal for Communities NDC that sought to invigorate and embed socially excluded citizens within localised regeneration projects In attempting to construct community as a space through which personal and spatial renewal could be achieved New Labour relied on problematic assumptions about the nature scope and meaning of community and its relationship with individual social agents Drawing on original research conducted in an NDC neighbourhood Remaking Community addresses the interlinking uses of community in government rhetoric and practice It explores why this concept was so central to the New Labour governing project and what it meant for individuals enveloped in the regeneration of their citizenship and locality It seeks to understand how community is conceptualised applied constructed misunderstood exploited experienced contested mobilised and activated by both policy actors and neighbourhood residents and situates this discussion within an examination of the political emotional and cultural impact of the regeneration experience Offering a timely analysis of New Labour regeneration and the politics of community this book makes an original and important contribution to debates around new spaces of

Research with Arctic Inuit Communities Tristan Pearce,2021-08-26 This book shares graduate student experiences lessons and life learnings from research with Inuit communities in the Canadian Arctic The results of graduate student research are often disseminated in a thesis or dissertation but their personal experiences building relationships with Inuit working together to design and conduct research and how this shaped their research approach and outcomes are rarely captured As such there are limited resources available to new researchers that share information about the practical aspects of community based research in the Arctic The book is intended to provide a glimpse into what it is like to do research together with Inuit and in doing so contribute to the development of more productive and equitable relationships between Inuit and researchers The chapters are written as structured narratives in the first person and include reflections and lessons learned

Introduction to Ethnographic Research Kimberly Kirner,Jan Mills,2019-09-05 Introduction to Ethnographic Research streamlines learning the process of research speaks to the student at a foundational level and helps the reader conquer the apprehensions of mastering research methods Written in a conversational style authors Kimberly Kirner and Jan Mills use a focus on scaffolding across the chapters to help the student transition from step to step in the research process Case studies and first hand accounts are also featured in each chapter allowing the student to see the early steps successes and at times failures that accomplished researchers experienced in their past These real examples further encourage the student that even the best researchers failed along the way and more importantly learned from those mistakes This text is designed to be used as a stand alone book but is enhanced by the use with the supplemental workbook Doing Ethnographic Research by the same authors This text has call outs to the supplemental text which allow for application and practice of the material learned

Sustainable Communities, Sustainable Development Paul James,Yaso Nadarajah,Karen Haive,Victoria C. Stead,2012-07-31 Papua New Guinea is going through a crisis A concentration on conventional approaches to development including an unsustainable reliance on mining forestry and foreign aid has contributed to the country s slow decline since independence in 1975 Sustainable Communities Sustainable Development attempts to address problems and gaps in the literature on development and develop a new qualitative conception of community sustainability informed by substantial and innovative research in Papua New Guinea In this context sustainability is conceived in terms that include not just practices tied to economic development It also informs questions of wellbeing and social integration community building social support and infrastructure renewal In short the concern with sustainability here entails undertaking an analysis of how communities are sustained through time how they cohere and change rather than being constrained within discourses and models of development From another angle this project presents an account of community sustainability detached from instrumental concerns with economic development Contributors address questions such as What are the stories and histories through which people respond to their nation s development What is the everyday social environment of groups living in highly diverse areas migrant settlements urban villages remote communities They seek to contribute to a creative and dynamic grass roots response to the demands of everyday life and local global pressures While the overdeveloped world faces an intersecting crisis created by global climate change and financial instability Papua New Guinea with all its difficulties still has the basis for responding to this manifold predicament Its secret lies in what has been seen as its weakness underdeveloped economies and communities where people still maintain sustainable relations to each other and the natural world

Online Communities and Open Innovation Linus Dahlander, Lars Frederiksen, Francesco Rullani, 2014-07-16 The advent of Internet marked a significant change in how users and customers can be involved in the innovative process History is rife with examples of how users innovate but Internet and its associated communication technologies brought radically new means for individuals to interact rapidly and at little cost in communities that spur new innovations These communities are initiated and governed by people that differ in their motivations for taking part and participate to varying degrees Such communities are outside the immediate control of companies seeking to develop open innovation strategies aimed at harnessing their work This book brings together distinguished scholars from different disciplines economics organization theory innovation studies and marketing in order to provide an improved understanding of how technological as well as symbolic value is created and appropriated at the intersection between online communities and firms Empirical examples are presented from different industries including software services and manufacturing The book offers food for thought for academics and managers to an important phenomenon that challenges many conventional wisdoms for how business can be done This book was published as a special issue of Industry and Innovation Innovation Communities Klaus Fichter, Severin Beucker, 2012-01-05 Self organising networks have become the dominant innovators of complex technologies and radical innovation The growing need for co operation to ensure innovation success calls for a broader understanding of what makes innovation projects successful and requires new concepts The book introduces the new concept of innovation communities defining them as informal networks of like minded individuals who act as innovation promoters or champions These key figures come from various companies and organisations and will team up in a project related fashion jointly promoting a certain innovation product or idea either on one or across different levels of an innovation system The publication presents findings from surveys that demonstrate that networks of champions are a success factor in radical innovation Five case studies of noteworthy innovation projects illustrate why the collaboration of champions can make innovation projects more successful Furthermore the book presents hands on methods and includes best practice cases and guidelines on how to develop innovation communities This publication comprises empirical findings and practical experiences that are valuable for the following groups in particular Entrepreneurs Innovation R Innovation and strategy consultants Innovation and start up intermediaries Innovation researchers Government officials and politicians responsible for R D and innovation programmes and funding
