Libraries And How To Use Them A First First:

Academic Library Services for First-Generation Students Xan Arch, Isaac Gilman, 2020-07-16 Presenting strategies for improving academic library services for first generation students this timely book focuses on programs and services that will increase student academic engagement and success Demographic data and secondary school graduation rates suggest that colleges and universities will enroll growing numbers of first generation students over the next decade Academic Library Services for First Generation Students focuses on ways academic libraries can uniquely contribute to the successful transition to college and year to year retention of first generation students The practical recommendations in this book include a wide range of ideas for the design and modification of library services and facilities to be more inclusive of the needs of first generation students All of the recommendations are specifically aimed at addressing challenges faced by first generation students Topics covered range from study spaces and service points to information literacy instruction and campus partnerships The book makes the case both explicitly and implicitly that academic libraries can help address known risk factors e g by helping students build academic cultural competencies and thereby improve success persistence and retention for first generation students Academic library professionals in both leadership roles and public service positions will benefit from the actionable strategies presented here Part the first. History of libraries Edward Edwards, 1859

Library Statistics for the Twenty-First Century World Michael Heaney, 2009-05-08 An international collaboration between IFLA the UNESCO Institute of Statistics and the International Organization for Standardization ISO has developed standards for new library indicators for the twenty first century The existing international library statistics were developed nearly 40 years ago This book presents the first results using the new statistics and look forward to the next steps It also contains other initiatives and developments in the fields of library statistics benchmarking and indicators The First Century of Leiden University Library Elfriede Hulshoff Pol, 1975 Libraries in the Twenty-First Century Stuart J. Ferguson, 2007-05-31 Libraries in the Twenty First Century brings together library educators and practitioners to provide a scholarly yet accessible overview of library and information management and the challenges that the twenty first century offers the information profession The papers in this collection illustrate the changing nature of the library as it evolves into its twenty first century manifestation The national libraries of Australia and New Zealand for instance have harnessed information and communication technologies to create institutions that are far more national even democratic in terms of delivery of service and sheer presence than their print based predecessors Aimed at practitioners and students alike this publication covers specific types of library and information agencies discusses specific aspects of library and information management and places developments in library and information services in a number of broad contexts socio economic ethico legal historical and educational Library of Universal Literature: First principles , 1900 Libraries, the First Amendment, and Cyberspace Robert S. Peck, 2000 Provides answers to questions librarians often have about the First Amendment and library services discussing basic First Amendment principles the right to offend religious motivations and library use and other topics Evaluating the Twenty-First Century Library Donald L. DeWitt, 2013-10-31 Explore the ARL's initiatives for identifying formulating and testing new criteria for evaluating academic libraries in the digital age The proliferation of electronic information resources in the past decade has changed the ways in which research libraries evaluate their service and holdings This collection of articles thirteen of which previously appeared in ARL's bimonthly newsletter report on research issues and actions examines new measures for library evaluation that are being developed by the Association of Research Libraries It presents an overview of how the Association of Research Libraries new measures initiative developed plus insightful reports on the details of the SERVQUAL LibQUAL and E metrics projects Handy flow charts and tables make the information easily accessible and understandable From the editor The profound changes in library management and collection development brought about by digital technology in the closing decade of the twentieth century have changed the way we think about libraries If we were to ask librarians who have been in the profession for more than a decade how they evaluated a library we probably would hear statistics about the number of volumes held and added annually the number of serial subscriptions how much money a library has to spend and how many professionals are on staff These are the traditional criteria by which libraries have been judged throughout much of the twentieth century Newer librarians however especially those who entered the profession in the late 1980s and 1990s use a different yardstick and frequently recite different statistics that include terms such as user satisfaction spending on electronic resources and services document delivery services numbers of databases and electronic journals available and services provided to distance learners In Evaluating the Twenty First Century Library you'll find valuable information on current performance measures for academic libraries the continuing search for accurate new performance measures the uses of learning outcomes assessment SERVQUAL LibQUAL and the ARL LibQUAL Pilot Project the results of the 2000 Symposium on Measuring Library Service Quality the uses of E metrics in assessing the academic networked environment and accurately measuring use users services resources and other factors an insightful discussion of the rise in spending on electronic information by research libraries

The Library in the Twenty-first Century Peter Brophy, 2007 Social cultural and technological developments are revolutionizing library services The way ahead for the profession is now generally seen as a practical blend of traditional and electronic materials with integrated support services which fit seamlessly into users normal ways of working This is leading to a fundamental rethinking of the role of the library in society Drawing on the author's recent research this timely second edition of The Library in the Twenty first Century offers a clear new model of how traditional and electronic sources can co exist in the library of the future building on the previous work by focusing on the library as a vehicle for encouraging creativity as well as a provider of information resources It is now commonplace that libraries have a major role to play as expert intermediaries helping users to gain access to the tools needed for effective acquisition and use of information within the broader context of the networked information world But it is beginning to be recognized that they still have a profounder role within their communities and this book emphasizes that beyond the intermediary role is the vital requirement to promote understanding and engagement Written by one of our most experienced librarians and drawing on a range of international research and development experience this authoritative work offers the following topics libraries in the modern world the view from the sectors cross sectoral models the profession's view digital libraries what is a good library linking users to resources beyond the intermediary the library user the information universe Readership This incisive text supported by an extensive glossary and bibliography proposes a practical agenda of issues for the information profession to tackle and is essential reading for both established library practitioners and LIS students as well as for library managers and administrators across all sectors

Transforming Medical Library Staff for the Twenty-First Century Melanie J. Norton, Nathan Rupp, 2017-12-20 The services provided by the twenty first century medical library are evolving from circulating print materials interlibrary loan and traditional reference desk services to services like in depth literature searches systematic reviews and research impact studies To support these changing services the medical library must re evaluate reassess and redeploy its staff providing them with new opportunities to grow and develop in new areas to support the evolving needs of the library However staff cannot be expected to embrace new roles without buy in training and without developing a plan for assessing whether or not they are successful in their new roles Transforming Medical Library Staff for the Twenty First Century focuses on how the medical library can redeploy its staff to support these new services through actively engaging and empowering them in the process This book shares best practices in developing and motivating staff to accept and welcome the changing priorities of medical libraries
