Americans in the fledgling United States pointed to evidence of the past in the world around them and debated whether and how to preserve historic structures as permanent features of the new nation's landscape. From Indigenous mounds in the Ohio Valley to Independence Hall in Philadelphia from Benjamin Franklin's childhood home in Boston to St Philip's Episcopal Church in Charleston South Carolina from Dutch colonial manors of the Hudson Valley to Henry Clay's Kentucky estate early advocates of preservation strove not only to place boundaries on competitive real estate markets but also to determine what should not be for sale how consumers should behave and how certain types of labor should be valued. Before historic preservation existed as we know it today many Americans articulated eclectic and sometimes contradictory definitions of architectural preservation to work out practical strategies for defining the relationship between public good and private profit. In arguing for the preservation of houses of worship and Indigenous earthworks for example some invoked the public interest of their stewards to strengthen corporate control of these collective spaces. Meanwhile businessmen and political partisans adopted preservation of commercial sites to create opportunities for and limits on individual profit in a growing marketplace of goods. And owners of old houses and ancestral estates developed methods of preservation to reconcile competing demands for the seclusion of and access to American homes to shape the ways that capitalism affected family economies. In these ways individuals harnessed preservation to garner political economic and social profit from the performance of public service. Ultimately Martinko argues by portraying the problems of the real estate market as social rather than economic advocates of preservation affirmed a capitalist system of land development by promising to make it moral.

The National Party Chairmen and Committees Andrew Goldman, 2019-06-19 This study traces the history of the national committee chairmanships of the two major political parties in the United States emphasizing the national conventions and presidential campaigns where national factions often reveal themselves. Candidate and ideological factionalism as the evidence of this volume demonstrates has been the principal engine of convention action. Factional conflicts have had consequences not just for the political parties but for the party system itself. The institutional history of the two national committees and their chairmanships reveals a previously unrecorded aspect of United States national party development.

The Athenæum, 1845 Kentucky Rising James Ramage, Andrea S. Watkins, 2011-11-01 Drawing on primary and secondary sources this book offers a new synthesis of the sixty years before the Civil War. James A. Ramage and Andrea S. Watkins explore this crucial but often overlooked period finding that the early years of statehood were an era of great optimism and progress. Ramage and Watkins demonstrate that the eyes of the nation often focused on Kentucky which was perceived as a leader among the states before the Civil War. From publisher's description Champion Hill Timothy B. Smith, 2004-08-19 The Mississippi battle between Grant's and Pemberton's forces that sealed Vicksburg's fate. The Battle of Champion Hill was the decisive land engagement of the Vicksburg Campaign. The fighting on May 16 1863 took place just twenty miles east of the river city where the advance of Gen Ulysses S Grant's Federal army attacked Lt Gen John C Pemberton's hastily gathered Confederates. The bloody fighting seesawed back and forth until superior Union leadership broke apart the Southern line sending Pemberton's army into headlong retreat. The victory on Mississippi's wooded hills sealed the fate of both Vicksburg and her large field army propelled Grant into the national spotlight and earned him the command of the entire US armed forces. Timothy Smith a historian for the National Park Service has written the definitive account of this long overlooked battle. This book winner of a nonfiction prize from the Mississippi Institute of Arts and Letters is grounded upon years of primary research rich in analysis and strategic and tactical action and a compelling read. The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 1992 A.L.A. Catalog, 1926 Isabella Mitchell Cooper, Marion Horton, 1926 Representative Americans, the Romantics Norman K. Risjord, 2001 Like the preceding books in The Representative Americans series The Romantics makes history human by putting tissue on the skeletal framework of names and dates. It treats people whose principal contributions fell in the first half of the nineteenth century. And while certain individuals may be unfamiliar to readers the slaves Prince and Fred, Frank a black farmer of Kentucky and Illinois and the Lowell Girls Lucy Lacom and Sarah Bagley the majority of the figures studied are well known such as Andrew Jackson and John Quincy Adams, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Margaret Fuller, Horace Mann and Catharine Beecher. Tying it all together is the prevailing spirit of American Romanticism.
