Bickenbach, Franziska Felder, Barbara Schmitz, 2015-07-30 This collection of original essays from both established scholars and newcomers takes up a recent debate in philosophy sociology and disability studies on whether disability is intrinsically a harm that lowers a person's quality of life While this is a new question in disability scholarship it also touches on one of the oldest philosophical questions what is the good human life Historically philosophers have not been interested in the topic of disability and when they are it is usually only in relation to questions such as euthanasia abortion or the moral status of disabled people Consequently disability has been either ignored by moral and political philosophers or simply equated with a bad human life a life not worth living This collection takes up the challenge that disability poses to basic questions of political philosophy and bioethics among others by focusing on fundamental issues and practical implications of the relationship between disability and the good human life Catering Industry Employee ,1912 Youth's Penny Gazette ,1858
