Dancing on His Grave Barbara Richards, 2007-02-12 My earliest memories are only fear A great hurting fear that made my heart as big as a pumpkin that welled up into my throat choking me dizzying my head turning my legs to rubber Fear of moving and making noise fear of sleep that was invaded by terrible nightmares fear of waking up to the daily beatings for wet beds fear of the dark fear of guns and knives fear of loud noises fear of making a mistake fear of forgetting fear of Mom going away and most of all fear of the constant presence we called Daddy These are my oldest sister's words Dancing on His Grave is a memoir set on an eastern Montana ranch between 1930 and 1955 My four sisters my mother and I all contribute first person narrative to this story along with excerpts from the extensive journals my mother kept throughout her life It is the story of five sisters who survived unspeakable deprivation and abuse sexual and physical at the hands of our sadistic father A friend gave me his strong opinion As the psychologist for the prison in Deer Lodge he said I meet inmates with stories like yours all the time What makes your story unique is the outcome This story is not about him This is about five little girls who literally survived him excelled in school married and raised families of normal productive contributing citizens My father was not an alcoholic or drug addict All his abuse was administered cold sober I am convinced he was not mentally ill in the legal or moral sense of the phrase He knew right from wrong but as a narcissistic sociopath he believed that the world revolved around him so the rules of decency that other people follow did not apply The only rule he held himself to was Don't get caught The state of being purely evil does not constitute mental illness By my estimation he was born without a conscience and perhaps without a soul The most important message of this story is the resilience and strength of the human spirit
