

1. The first step is to identify the problem or question that needs to be answered. This is often done by the researcher or a team of researchers who are interested in the topic. The problem is then stated in a clear and concise manner, often in the form of a hypothesis or a research question.

2. The second step is to design the study. This involves deciding on the methods that will be used to collect data and analyze it. The design should be based on the problem and the research question, and it should be feasible and ethical.
