

HEAR and LISTEN (to)

We hear something because a sound comes to our ears.

I heard the sound of a drum beating.

When we listen to something, we have to pay attention to the sounds.

I listened to an interesting radio programme yesterday.

You can hear a sound without listening to it.

I hear the adverts on TV, but I don't listen to them.

I didn't hear the doorbell because I was listening to my iPod.

Practice: Fill in the gaps using hear or listen to (watch your tenses).

Last night I (1)..... to the radio when I (2)..... a strange noise in the street. I went outside because I couldn't (3)..... the sound properly. I could (4)..... the noise better in the street, so I (5)..... it for a minute. It was a kind of music. Then I (6)..... my friend shouting. "What are you (7).....?" he asked.

"I'm (8)..... that strange noise. Don't you (9)..... it?"

"I can (10)..... something," he laughed. Suddenly, I knew what it was. My friends were singing "Happy Birthday" to me. I've (11)..... cats who can sing better! My friends aren't very musical!

Smith, Ellen Van Oosten, 2019-08-20 You're trying to help but is it working Helping others is a good thing Often as a leader manager doctor teacher or coach it's central to your job But even the most well intentioned efforts to help others can be undermined by a simple truth We almost always focus on trying to fix people correcting problems or filling the gaps between where they are and where we think they should be Unfortunately this doesn't work well if at all to inspire sustained learning or positive change There's a better way In this powerful practical book emotional intelligence expert Richard Boyatzis and Weatherhead School of Management colleagues Melvin Smith and Ellen Van Oosten present a clear and hopeful message The way to help someone learn and change they say cannot be focused primarily on fixing problems but instead must connect to that person's positive vision of themselves or an inspiring dream or goal they've long held. This is what great coaches do: they know that people draw energy from their visions and dreams and that same energy sustains their efforts to change even through difficult times. In contrast, problem-centered approaches trigger physiological responses that make a person defensive and less open to new ideas. The authors use rich and moving real-life stories as well as decades of original research to show how this distinctively positive mode of coaching, what they call coaching with compassion, opens people up to thinking creatively and helps them to learn and grow in meaningful and sustainable ways. Filled with probing questions and exercises that encourage self-reflection, Helping People Change will forever alter the way all of us think about and practice what we do when we try to help.

Listening Judi Brownell, 2015-09-21 Listening takes an experiential approach to listening instruction, providing extensive applications and cases within the context of a sound theoretical framework. The text encourages students to view listening as a process involving six interrelated components which are developed along the parallel dimensions of theory and skill building. Within the unifying theoretical framework of the HURIER model, students develop an understanding of the listening process and gain powerful listening skills. The fifth edition continues to explore the impact of culture, technology, and globalization and raises timely ethical questions to promote students' consideration of the responsibilities associated with listening in today's complex world. Self-assessment activities and case studies further distinguish this engaging text. Students will readily recognize the important role listening plays in helping them achieve their personal and professional goals while they become more engaged and informed citizens.
