Community After Totalitarianism Kristina Stoeckl, 2008 Starting with a definition of political modernity from the angle of its greatest trial namely totalitarianism this study pursues two questions How to conceptualize community after the experience of totalitarianism And what can the Eastern Orthodox intellectual tradition contribute to this debate In both parts of Europe totalitarianism raised the same political philosophical challenge How to conceptualize the relationship between the individual and community in the light of the absolute communization of society and the simultaneous absolute atomization of individuals which totalitarianism had brought about In contemporary Western political philosophy the reflection upon this experience has taken three principled directions the unequivocal embrace and conceptual elaboration of liberalism for which the works of John Rawls and Jürgen Habermas are exemplary the communitarian critique of liberalism for which the works of Charles Taylor and Alasdair MacIntyre are representative and the postmodern critique which most clearly expressed in the works of Jean Luc Nancy ties the question of community back to the singular human being In the present study I add to these three approaches a viewpoint which challenges the limits of all of them Focusing on the works of Sergej Horowitz and Christos Yannaras I demonstrate how these authors while accepting the lesson of totalitarianism seek foundations for their conceptualization of community and human subjectivity in the spiritual and intellectual tradition of Eastern Christianity My aim is to re think the political problematic of modernity from the East and beyond liberal communitarian and postmodern political philosophy in order to extend the interpretative space of political modernity to sharpen the problematic of community and the human subject after the experience of totalitarianism and to single out those elements which are especially pertinent for a post totalitarian philosophy of community the quality of freedom the role of practices and the meaning of tradition

Dostoevsky in the Arts and Beyond Olga Tabachinkova, Liudmila Saraskina, Galima Lukina, Ekaterina Salnikova, 2024-08-30 The book is a substantial contribution to international Dostoevsky research exploring Dostoevsky's contemporary relevance from a multicultural and multidisciplinary perspective. It offers some fresh readings of Dostoevsky's texts presenting new complex studies on the writer and his works in the mirror of several arts of the last three decades. The book is divided into three Parts featuring researchers from Bulgaria, Great Britain, Russia, and Ukraine. Part One deals with conceptual issues treating Dostoevsky above all as a prophet and philosopher and thus determines the ideological system of coordinates for the studies presented in the rest of the book. Part Two examines Dostoevsky's legacy through the lenses of literary theory, music, and illustration art, and Part Three via world cinema and theatre. The volume has gathered together an array of original and innovative studies from world-leading experts in Dostoevsky's creative universe to make an authoritative input into the field. Pragmaticalization Elena Graf, Ulrich Schweier, 2024-09-23. The present volume is dedicated to the phenomenon of pragmaticalization in the context of the theory of grammaticalization. While in recent decades the growing interest in the analysis of pragmatic phenomena within grammaticalization research was triggered amongst others by studies in the field of subjectivity and intersubjectivity in language, we still lack a model for a broad understanding of how changes on the discourse level come about and face a lack of information which provides a conclusive theoretical framework to systematically record the emergence of an entire layer of discourse units in language. The book is one of the first comprehensive collections contributed to the topic of pragmaticalization and includes empirical studies on a wide range of languages from diachronic and synchronic perspectives. Aiming to refine our understanding of pragmatic shifts which can be observed by several linguistic units, the contributions discuss such issues as pros and cons of the concept of pragmaticalization, the parameters of pragmaticalization, the emergence of discourse markers and constructions with various pragmatic functions, pathways of change including the influence of language contact. Religious Schism in the Russian Aristocracy 1860–1900: Radstockism and Pashkovism E. Heier, 2012-12-06. My research in the intellectual and spiritual sphere of nineteenth-century Russia revealed that ever since the penetration of the fashionable anti-ecclesiastical views of the Encyclopedists into Russia, the aristocrats had grown indifferent to religion. The spiritual vacuum created as a result of such conditions could not last; however, for a prolonged period of time, at least of all during the decades following the 1860s when Russia's moral, socio-political, and religious problems were most acute. The subsequent quest for salvation and the general religious inquiry among Russia's elite as they were known in the West manifested itself chiefly in the writings of such profound religious and philosophical thinkers as V. Solov'ev, K. Leont'ev, N. Fedorov, Dostoevskij, and Tolstoj. They constitute, however, only a fraction of those tormented by the longing for religious truth and guidance in an age of transition and uncertainty. There existed among Russia's aristocracy in the second half of the nineteenth century a widespread socio-religious movement known as Radstockism or Pashkovism, which aimed for a religious renovation and with it a transformation of Russia on an ethical and moral basis. These aristocrats were men and women who in their youth were in different to all faith but who had never abandoned the search for a solution to their own and to Russia's problems. The solution to these problems they believed to be based on moral and religious principles found in Evangelical Christianity.

Convention and Innovation in Literature Theo Döhaen, Rainer Gröbel, Helmut Lethen, 1989-01-01. This work is a critical evaluation of the concepts of convention and innovation as applied in the study of changing literary values, hierarchies and canons. Two approaches are analyzed: 1. the linking of convention and the subject's awareness of convention and 2. systems theory. The merits of both approaches are discussed and an attempt is made to combine them and to regard systems of literary communication primarily as systems of conventions. Specific cases of changing conventions and innovation are illustrated with examples from the field of versification, Rimbaud reception studies, Pushkin, Goethe, George Eliot, the dichotomy of forgetting/remembering, Nietzsche, Proust, avant-garde, the American dream and popular genres assimilated in Postmodernism.

Identities and Conflicts F. Cerutti, R. Ragionieri, 2001-03-12. Identities and Conflicts is about the role of cultural and political identities in generating or settling conflicts. It attempts both to work out a theoretical frame of reference and to analyze the Mediterranean as a case study. The contributors examine the transformation of religion in Western and non-Western societies and the evolution of religious identity as an essential component of political identity in non-Western Mediterranean countries.

Under Indifferent Skies Vasken Berberian, 2018-08-22. A historical saga that follows three siblings through the Armenian genocide and beyond. A novel to remember. La Stampa. This absorbing novel from a multiple award-winning author recounts the story of the Armenian genocide and other twentieth-century occurrences ranging from the shores of the Mediterranean to the frozen Siberian coast from the plush palazzi of Venice to the cruel Soviet concentration camps as it follows the lives of two twin brothers, Mika and Gabriel, and their younger sister Rose. Exploring the historical events of the last century that shook the very foundations of humanity, Under Indifferent Skies is full of suspense and unexpected narrative twists while evoking universal emotions and tackling collective aspects of our existence: primordial instincts like survival, the experience of motherhood, the bond of blood, ties, the need to belong, the quest for a purpose in life. Above all, it is a story of resilience and hope, a story of faith in a supreme force that governs the Cosmos that inexorably renders justice in the end.
