Literacy Theory In The Age Of The Internet:

Literacy Theory in the Age of the Internet Todd W. Taylor, Irene Ward, 1998 Today nearly everyone agrees that the Internet has vast potential as a learning tool This collection of essays reconsiders what it means to be literate in the information age and offers practical advice not only for getting networked computers into the classroom but also for instructing students and teachers how to take advantage of their boundless potential

Cultural Practices of Literacy Victoria Purcell-Gates, 2020-07-24 This volume presents case studies of literacy practices as shaped by culture language community and power Covering a range of contexts and exploring a number of relevant dimensions in the evolving picture of literacy as situated multiple and social the studies are grouped around four overarching themes Language Literacy and Hegemony The Immigrant Experience Language Literacies and Identities Literacies In Out of School and On the Borders and New Pedagogies for New Literacies It is now generally recognized that literacy is multiple and woven within the sociocultural lives of communities but what is not yet fully understood is how it is multiple how this multiplicity plays out across and within differing sociocultural contexts Such understanding is critical for crafting school literacy practices in response to the different literacy sets brought to school by different learners Toward this end it is necessary to know what those sets are composed of Each of the case studies contributes to building this knowledge in new and interesting ways As a whole the book provides a rich and complex portrait of literacy in use Cultural Practices of Literacy Case Studies of Language Literacy Social Practice and Power advances sociocultural research and theory pertaining to literacy development as it occurs across school and community boundaries and cultural contexts and in and out of school It is intended for researchers students professionals across the field of literacy studies and schooling including specialists in family literacy community literacy adult literacy critical language studies multiliteracies youth literacy international education English as a second language language and social policy and global literacy

Digital Hemlock Tara Brabazon, 2002 This wide ranging book examines the state of tertiary education in Australia and exposes the myths and assumptions on which current education policy is based This book should be of interest to all academics and students in Australia Tara Brabazon is a senior lecturer at Murdoch University in Perth

What's the Matter with the Internet? Mark Poster, 2001 In What's the Matter with the Internet leading cultural theorist Mark Poster offers a sophisticated and astute assessment of the potential the new medium has to redefine culture and politics Avoiding the mindless hype and meaningless jargon that has characterized much of the debate about the future of the Web he details what truly distinguishes the Internet from other media and the implications these novel properties have for such vital issues as authorship national identity and global citizenship the fate of ethnicity and race and democracy Arguing that the Internet demands a social and cultural theory appropriate to the specific qualities of cyberspace Poster reformulates the ideas of thinkers associated with our understanding of post modern culture and the media including Foucault Deleuze Heidegger Baudrillard and Derrida to account for and illuminate the virtual world paying particular attention to its political dimensions and the nature of identity In this innovative analysis Poster acknowledges that although the colonization of the Internet by corporations and governments does threaten to retard its capacity to bring about genuine change the new medium is still capable of transforming both contemporary social practices and the way we see the world and ourselves Resources in Education ,2000 Computers and Writing James A. Inman,2004-04-13 In this book James A Inman explores the landscape of the contemporary computers and writing community Its six chapters engage critical issues including redefining the community s generally accepted history connecting its contemporary innovators with its long standing spirit of innovation advocating for increased access and diversity and more Between chapters readers will find Community Voices sections which provide a snapshot of the contemporary computers and writing community and introduce in a non hierarchical form more than 100 of its members from around the world in their own voices Computers and Writing The Cyborg Era features a simultaneous emphasis on individuals communities and contexts they share a creative rethinking of the character and values of the computers and writing community a holistic exploration of meaning making and an activist approach to pedagogy It is a must read book for anyone interested in rhetoric technology and pedagogy including faculty graduate students and colleagues in professions outside the academy Electronic Collaboration in the Humanities James A. Inman,Cheryl Reed,Peter Sands,2003-10-03 This volume provides an informed view of how information technology is shaping the contemporary humanities It specifically reflects five ideals humanities scholars with all levels of access are doing important work with technology humanities scholars projects with technology reflect significant diversity both across and within disciplinary bounds using information technology in the humanities is a continuous conversation information technology offers new options for humanities education and just as collaboration changes the nature of any project so does information technology change the nature of collaboration its speed character methods and possible implementations The first to explore new and important ways for humanities scholars to collaborate across disciplines via electronic media this book redefines electronic collaboration presents insightful models of student collaboration provides important models of faculty collaboration with special emphasis on professional development and offers a look at the future of electronic collaboration and the overall future of the humanities Featuring the voices of humanities teacher scholars at all stages of their professional careers the chapters emphasize pedagogy outlining contemporary issues and options Electronic Collaboration in the Humanities speaks directly to anyone involved with interdisciplinary initiatives in colleges and universities such as writing across the curriculum and communication across the curriculum programs and to specific populations within the humanities including literacy and technology language and literature literacy studies professional writing and English education Multiliteracies for a Digital Age Stuart A. Selber,2004-01-23 Multiliteracies for a Digital Age serves as a guide for composition teachers to develop effective full scale computer literacy programs that are also professionally responsible by emphasizing different kinds of literacies Stuart A Selber also proposes methods for helping students move among these literacies in strategic ways Defining computer literacy as a domain of writing and communication Selber addresses the questions that few other computer literacy texts consider What should a computer literate student be able to do What is required of literacy teachers to educate such a student How can functional computer literacy fit within the values of teaching writing and communication as a profession Reimagining functional literacy in ways that speak to teachers of writing and communication he builds a framework for computer literacy instruction that blends functional critical and rhetorical concerns in the interest of social action and change Multiliteracies for a Digital Age reviews the extensive literature on computer literacy and critiques it from a humanistic perspective This approach which will remain useful as new versions of computer hardware and software inevitab

Dialogic: Education for the Internet Age Rupert Wegerif,2013-01-04 Dialogic Education for the Internet Age argues that despite rapid advances in communications technology most teaching still relies on traditional approaches to education built upon the logic of print and dependent on the notion that there is a single true representation of reality In practice the use of the Internet disrupts this traditional logic of education by offering an experience of knowledge as participatory and multiple This new logic of education is dialogic and characterises education as learning to learn think and thrive in the context of working with multiple perspectives and ultimate uncertainty The book builds upon the simple contrast between observing dialogue from an outside point of view and participating in a dialogue from the inside before pinpointing an essential feature of dialogic the gap or difference between voices in dialogue which is understood as an irreducible source of meaning Each chapter of the book applies this dialogic thinking to a specific challenge facing education re thinking the challenge and revealing a new theory of education Areas covered in the book include dialogical learning and cognition dialogical learning and emotional intelligence educational technology dialogic spaces and consciousness global dialogue and global citizenship dialogic theories of science and maths education The challenge identified in Wegerif s text is the growing need to develop a new understanding of education that holds the potential to transform educational policy and pedagogy in order to meet the realities of the digital age Dialogic Education for the Internet Age draws upon the latest research in dialogic theory creativity and technology and is essential reading for advanced students and researchers in educational psychology technology and policy

The Remaking of Memory in the Age of the Internet and Social Media Qi Wang,2024-10-29 It has long been believed that individual human memory has been strengthened by the storage representational reproductive and connective capacities of technologies and media However such views of how memory works are being challenged amidst today's digital maelstrom In particular the Internet and social media platforms have profoundly transformed the ways individuals receive store share and lose information Memory has become more externalized dialogical and transactive yet at the same time unwieldy opaque and inaccessible In The Remaking of Memory in the Age of the Internet and Social Media Qi Wang and Andrew Hoskins have assembled scholars from cognitive psychology philosophy neuroscience and media and communication studies to synthesize emerging social and cognitive science research on the impact of the Internet and social media on remembering and forgetting They probe whether human memory is being threatened by a shift from a healthy reliance to a dependency on digital media and technologies The book illuminates theoretical and empirical research which shows the consequences of human entanglements with the Internet and social media for memory representation expression and socialization in individuals and the implications for the family community and society Gathering the leading international scholars of Memory Studies together this volume offers a new interdisciplinary agenda of inquiry into the digital remaking of individual collective and cultural memory
