Emerging Civil Society:

Emerging Civil Society in Development David Sanders, Frances Baum, Ruth Stern, 2005 The Emerging Civil Society Irene Nørlund, Dang Ngoc Dinh, 2006 Constructing Human Rights in the Age of Globalization Mahmood Monshipouri, Neil Englehart, Andrew J. Nathan, Kavita Philip, 2015-06-01 Both human rights and globalization are powerful ideas and processes capable of transforming the world in profound ways Notwithstanding their universal claims however the processes are constructed and they draw their power from the specific cultural and political contexts in which they are constructed Far from bringing about a harmonious cosmopolitan order they have stimulated conflict and opposition In the context of globalization as the idea of human rights has become universal its meaning has become one more terrain of struggle among groups with their own interests and goals Part I of this volume looks at political and cultural struggles to control the human rights regime that is the power to construct the universal claims that will prevail in a territory with respect to property the state the environment and women Part II examines the dynamics and counterdynamics of transnational networks in their interactions with local actors in Iran China and Hong Kong Part III looks at the prospects for fruitful human rights dialogue between competing universalisms that by definition are intolerant of contradiction and averse to compromise Rethinking Vietnam Duncan McCargo, 2004-07-31 Drawing on fieldwork and analysis by an international team of specialists this book covers all aspects of contemporary Vietnam including recent history the political economy the reform process education health labor market foreign direct investment and foreign policy Rise of the Bourgeoisie, Demise of Empire Fatma Müge Göçek, 1996 Examining the process of Westernization and social change during the 18th and 19th centuries in the Ottoman Empire this study uses archival documents and historical chronicles to argue that social change precedes and contributes to the process of Westernization Environmental Change and Agricultural Sustainability in the Mekong Delta Mart A. Stewart, Peter A. Coclanis, 2011-05-13 The Mekong Delta of Vietnam is one of the most productive agricultural areas in the world The Mekong River fans out over an area of about 40 000 sq kilometers and over the course of many millennia has produced a region of fertile alluvial soils and constant flows of energy Today about a fourth of the Delta is under rice cultivation making this area one of the premier rice granaries in the world The Delta has always proven a difficult environment to manipulate however and because of population pressures increasing acidification of soils and changes in the Mekong s flow environmental problems have intensified The changing way in which the region has been linked to larger flows of commodities and capital over time has also had an impact on the region For example its re emergence in recent decades as a major rice exporting area has linked it inextricably to global markets and their vicissitudes And most recently the potential for sea level increases because of global warming has added a new threat Because most of the region is on average only a few meters above sea level and because any increase of sea level will change the complex relationship between tides and down river water flow the Mekong Delta is one of the areas in the world most vulnerable to the effects of climate change How governmental policy and resident populations have in the past and will in coming decades adapt to climate change as well as several other emerging or ongoing environmental and economic problems is the focus of this collection

Transformative Sustainable Development Kei Otsuki, 2014-12-05 Recent debates about sustainable development have shifted their focus from fixing environmental problems in a technocratic and economic way to more fundamental changes in social political processes and relations In this context participation is a genuinely transformative approach to sustainable development yet the process by which participation leads to transformation is not sufficiently understood This book considers how the act of participating in sustainable development projects can bring about social transformation that is considered to be fair and just by the participants and non participants in a broader societal context Drawing on ideas from social theory and applied anthropology the book proposes a reflexivity based framework to analyse participation as a type of social action underpinned by primary experience Development projects have a transformative effect when participants are given the opportunity to reflect on their experience share the reflection with others and open new space for collective deliberation and change The book applies this framework to assess community based participatory projects in the Amazon African slums and rural settlements and disaster stricken areas in Japan It also outlines potential institutions of governance to institutionalize the change by referring to current food governance drawing out lessons with international relevance This book will be of interest to students of sustainable development environmental policy and development studies as well as practitioners and policy makers in these fields

Debating Political Reform in China Suisheng Zhao, 2014-12-18 The growing disconnect between China's market oriented economy with its emerging civil society and the brittle anachronistic and authoritarian state has given rise to intense discussion and debate about political reform not only by Western observers but also among Chinese intellectuals While some expect China's political reform to lead to democratization others have proposed to strengthen the institution of single party rule and provide it with a solid legal base This book brings the ongoing debate to life and explores the options for political reform Offering the perspectives of both Western and Chinese scholars it presents the controversial argument for building a consultative rule of law regime as an alternative to liberal democracy It provides several critiques of this thesis and then tests the thesis through empirical studies on the development of the rule of law in China

Chinese Democracy after Tiananmen Yijiang Ding, 2011-11-01 In 1989 most observers believed that China's political reform process had been violently short circuited but few would now dispute that China is in a very important transition Central to this transition has been an extraordinary change in the formal intellectual conception of democracy In this book Yijiang Ding presents a multi dimensional picture of China at the political crossroads Chinese Democracy looks at the significant change in the state society relationship in contemporary China in three interrelated areas intellectual social and cultural Drawing heavily on recent Chinese scholarship Ding shows that the emergent theory on the dualism of state and society is contemporaneous with a new cognitive and cultural appreciation of the people's independence from state authority Is China moving toward liberal democracy Does Western engagement with China contribute economically and politically to this shift These are the questions at the heart of the book Which are especially timely given the recent reconstruction of political regimes worldwide

The Challenges for Russia's Politicized Economic System Susanne Oxenstierna, 2015-04-10 During the early 2000s the market liberalization reforms to the Russian economy begun in the 1990s were consolidated But since the mid 2000s economic policy has moved into a new phase characterized by more state intervention with less efficiency and more structural problems Corruption weak competitiveness heavy dependency on energy exports an unbalanced labour market and unequal regional development are trends that have arisen and which this book argues will worsen unless the government changes direction The book provides an in depth analysis of the current Russian economic system highlighting especially structural and institutional defects and areas where political considerations are causing distortions and puts forward proposals on how the present situation could be remedied
