Family Night:

Living Simply with Children Marie Sherlock, 2010-05-26 Raising children ranks as one of life's most rewarding adventures. Yet between Mom and Dad working full-time jobs, endless carpooling of overscheduled youngsters and the never-ending pressures to buy and consume, family life can be incredibly needlessly complex. What if you could find a way to spend more time with your children, replace unnecessary activities with meaningful ones, and teach your children an invaluable life lesson in the process? Living Simply with Children offers a realistic blueprint for zeroing in on the pleasures of family life. How and why to live simply and find more time to be with your children. Activities and rituals that bring out the best in every family member. Realistic ways to reclaim your children from corporate America. Helping children of any age deal with peer pressure. Raising kids who care about people and the planet. How to focus on the good stuff with less stuff. Including sections on limiting television, environmentally friendly practices, celebrating the holidays, and tapping into the growing community of families who embrace simplicity, this inspiring guide will show you how to raise children according to your own values and not those of the consumer culture as you enjoy both quality and quantity time with your family.

Family Night Maria Flook, 1993 Family Night cracks open one American family and shows us the values and the dysfunctions that make up the gothic attractions within it. At the center of this family stands a mysterious father figure whom Margaret and her stepbrother Cam have never met. All they know is that he had been a model, the last Arrow Collar Man. Tracy, Margaret's lover, ever eager to enrich his encyclopedic awareness of fixations, cajoles Margaret and Cam into a trip to find this absent father. The Arrow Collar Man as missing patriarch. Margaret, Cam, and Tracy themselves haunted by recent divorces by their own children by their undecided instincts set out in a powder blue Plymouth Duster on an unpredictable journey through the intimacies, obligations, and obsessions that bind us to each other. Family Night is an American family romance that neither Freud nor James Cain could have imagined.

Building School and Home Connections, Latinos in Libraries, Museums, and Archives Patricia Montiel-Overall, Annabelle Villaescusa Nuñez, Verónica Reyes-Escudero, 2015-12-17 Written by three experienced LIS professionals, Latinos in Libraries, Museums, and Archives demonstrates the meaning of cultural competence in the everyday work in libraries, archives, museums, and special collections with Latino populations. The authors focus on their areas of expertise, including academic, school, public, libraries, health sciences, archives, and special collections, to show the importance of understanding how cultural competence affects the day-to-day communication, relationship building, and information provision with Latinos. They acknowledge the role of both tacit and explicit knowledge in their work and discuss ways in which cultural competence is integral to successful delivery of services to communication with and relationship building with Latino communities.
