THE INDIVIDUAL INVESTOR'S GUIDE to Investment Web Sites

By Jean Henrich

4TH ANNUAL EDITION
2000

Today, individuals in search of investment data and information need venture no further than their computer screens, where they can tap into the vast resources of the World Wide Web. From stock and market statistics to financial and retirement planning calculators, from charting services to on-line brokerage accounts—there is probably something helpful to you somewhere on the Web.

Finding it, though, is another matter. While many sites provide in-depth financial statistics, research, and other information, other sites are purely promotional, with little or no useful information; even worse, still other sites offer pure junk. In addition, some sites have free access to useful information, while other sites charge a fee. Sorting through various sites to weed out the junk and to determine their value can result in an enormous investment of your time.

This guide is designed to lower your investment costs and help you find the most useful investment-related Web sites more easily. The AAII editors have spent hours researching and rating various sites. The guide presents the top-rated sites for the most common investment needs as well as a directory that lists 556 sites of interest to individual investors—close to 100 more sites than last year. Included in the directory are details about the information and services each site offers to help you decide whether or not to pay a visit.

To facilitate use of the guide, AAII's Web site at www.aaia.com presents the complete list with hyperlinks directly to each site, as well as lists of the top-rated sites by subject. See page 18 for details.

Our Top-Rated Sites

To make the Investment Web Guide more useful to investors, our Top Investment Web Sites listing allows you to find top-rated sites for the kind of investment information or service that you need.
